

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

In 1914 the foot ball season opened earlier than it has in many years. In fact, there was really more substantial summer and early fall practice, and practice of a more organized character, than has ever before been the custom in this country. Part of this is to be explained by the fact that the scheduled contests began very early, in several cases the first game being played before the college proper assembled. This made some kind of preparation necessary if the men were to avoid taking serious chances of physical injury. But what really stimulated the preliminary groups was the practice of forward and lateral passing, which, taken with the kicking and general handling of the ball, went to make up most of the work done in this late summer season.

The contests of the first week seemed to go consistently, Harvard defeating Bates, Yale defeating End.

Maine, Princeton defeating Rutgers, Penn defeating Gettysburg, the Army defeating Stevens, the Navy defeating Georgetown, Dartmouth defeating the Massachusetts "Aggies." But then surprises commenced to come hot and fast. Pennsylvania was defeated by Franklin and Marshall, Cornell was defeated by Pittsburgh, and a week later again by Colgate. The Navy was also defeated by Pittsburgh. For a week or two, therefore, we were prepared to see the unusual, which came again when Washington and Jefferson almost defeated Harvard and did actually take the victory from Yale. Then Penn State held Harvard to a tie score. Meanwhile, Cornell, coming back, smote the Indians, 21 to 0, and snowed under Brown, 28 to 7. Dartmouth was defeated by Princeton, 16 to 12, but later annihilated Pennsylvania and Syracuse. Harvard had a hard time defeating Michigan by a single touchdown, but turned about and played an almost faultless game against Princeton, defeating the supposedly strong Tiger team no less than 20 to 0. Yale, having run wild over Colgate, 49 to 7, had a hard time in defeating Brown, 14 to 6. Princeton, the week before the Harvard game, had been tied by Williams, 7 to 7. Pennsylvania had gone out to Ann Arbor for the annual contest with Michigan, with her adherents quite hopeful, and had been buried by the Yost machine, 34 to 3.

The so-called big games of late November, therefore, assumed much interest and great importance. Yale in the first three quarters of her game with Princeton scored with ease and ran up 19 points. Then Princeton came to life, and, playing by all odds the best foot ball of her season, scored twice before the call of time put an end to the game at 19 to 14. This final exhibition of Yale's vulnerability in her line showed even her staunchest adherents that she had no line defense and must rely entirely upon her attack. Harvard held that attack except when Yale, after getting within a few feet of Harvard's goal, fumbled. Harvard's attack was strong throughout, her interference fine, and her handling of the ball well-nigh perfect. The combination resulted in a victory for the Crimson, 36 to 0.

The history of the season's style of play is even more interesting than the records of the teams. Many of the organizations had professedly determined that the new or open game—the passing game—was the one that should be developed. Probably the final game of the season of 1913 had a great deal to do with this, in that the Army, supposedly the weaker team and certainly the team of the two which had less of heavy line-plunging possibilities and tactics, defeated the Navy through brilliant forward passing. Yale, Harvard, and Princeton all had Canadian players illustrating the Rugby lateral passing game for them, but of these teams Yale alone stuck faithfully to that method of play as worked out by Coach Hinkey and Captain Talbot with Dr. Bull. Princeton retained some portion of it, but not very much, and Harvard reverted even farther than in 1913 to the line-plunging game. But it should be borne in mind that it was not by any means the old line-plunging that usually proved so effective, but rather a scientific development of masked deception, with hard-hitting interference and cleaning up of the secondary defense as its basis.

A heavy, powerful, hard-hitting set of backs made this by all odds the best foot ball judgment on the part of the Harvard coaching, for with two or three places splendidly filled in the line and this veteran back-field it was wiser to proceed on these lines than to take up an entirely new game. Yale, with quicker handlers of the ball and an absolutely green line, developed along the lateral passing game until the facility with which her backs handled the ball was really remarkable. Michigan had some intricate passes, but used practically none of them and none of the forward pass variety in her principal game—that against Harvard—answering Harvard's line-plunging game by sending Maulbetsch, their wonderful half-back, dodging and piercing through to the point of exhaustion, and not even making an effort, through the forward pass game, to ' score in the last period.

The open attack, as was predicted very early in the season, proved during the first weeks too much for the defense, and those teams that had developed it scored with comparative ease and very little expenditure of effort. Then the defense studied out its own part and gradually overtook the offense until it required the greatest speed and precision in the open and lateral passing game to succeed in getting the ball and the man clear. The addition of lancing-line plays to this lateral passing followed, and put the defense once more in some difficulty, but not so seriously as at first.

If we could combine the skill in line work of the best exponent of the close game—namely, Harvard—with the execution of the double and triple passing, lateral and forward, and the speed of those passes displayed by Yale, it would take a phenomenal defense to stand up against it. But it took Harvard all the season, up to the Princeton game, to perfect her style of play, and it occupied Yale all of that same season to perfect her open play. Some day a combination of the two is likely to come, unless the exponents of open play become too much discouraged at the fact that the old style, while producing shorter gains, is more to be relied upon under all conditions of weather and defense. The open game requires playing for big stakes and taking big risks. The closed game takes far less risk, but the gains must be more frequently repeated, and no team has as yet succeeded in combining both with proper skill.

Harvard, under Coach Haughton, although going through a season of great vicissitudes, turned out in the end for its final and principal game a team of marvelous proficiency and an all-around perfection in every point of the game. Yale, the eleven which had been able with its lateral and forward passing to score upon any team it had met up to this time, was unable to get over Harvard's goal line, in spite of the fact that on two occasions it was within a few yards of it. Harvard's team demonstrated the value of an attack, not necessarily because it gains enough ground to make touchdowns, but because it enables the side to keep possession of the ball more than half the playing time, and so prevents the other side from developing its attack. Thus, Harvard made her attack a defensive power as well as an offensive weapon.

Probably most important of all in its influence upon the game, Haughton's team demonstrated that the old-fashioned defense of simply lining up the forwards and letting them lower their heads and charge back the other side blindly must be consigned to the scrap heap as a means of stopping an attack that has in it any of the varied possibilities of present day foot ball. When one takes into consideration the entire play of Harvard in its conception, it will be found that Harvard offered fully as much of advanced foot ball as has been seen on any field for years. The attack did not provide as much of this as did the defense.

The man who was willing to divorce attention long enough from the exciting amusement of watching a runner run or a tackler seize an opponent, and instead attend every time to the placing of the Harvard defense and the attitudes assumed by the men when the ball was in play, saw a great deal more of science and skill than the grid-iron has offered us in the last three years.

by her opponent, not one of Harvard's team was in a traditional position of defense, as exhibited by most foot ball elevens to-day. Furthermore, even when closer to the goal line Harvard drew in her defense, the men in her forward line were not down low and with one foot extended backward for a brace ready to shoot into their opponents. They were crouched, it is true, and the middle men were close up to the end of the ball, but their feet were drawn up and their crouch was the preparation for a spring directly upward, their out-shooting hands meeting their opponents', thus leaving those hands ready to act further. At the same time they avoided getting their heads buried under the line.

These men did not charge in a straight line; they converged instead, or, rather, their charge was somewhat diagonal (as necessity might demand) to the line, so that they occupied far more space effectively than a man charging straight through. And they never were forced into a position in that charge, where, after the impact of their hands on their opponents', they could not get a look at what was coming. It was a defense that might be forced a little; it was a defense that occupied an enormous amount of space laterally compared to that of many teams and admitted of few clean breaks. The only really vulnerable point against them was found by LeGore's forward passes after a run and turn. It might be said in extenuation that this young man is certainly a wizard at throwing a foot ball.

Now for Harvard's attack. It had a perfect deception in it as against any low, straight charging line, the handling of the ball being always masked. Otherwise it was comparatively simple. Harvard had in Mahan, with his runs from short-kicking formation, the most solid, smothering interference thrown upon an end and tackle that can possibly be made out of six men, and in all plays the cleaning up of secondary defense was a prime feature. Incidentally, the foot ball season of 1914 confirmed the prediction made by the writer in November, 1913, as follows: "If some patron of foot ball would send East some of the backs of the New Zealand team, who played on the Pacific Coast, this would offer a possibility of one of the most suggestive demonstrations of passing skill that could be imagined. American players have indulged in their own game so long that it is well-nigh impossible to persuade an American back to spend the necessary time in acquiring skill at passing—not alone forward passing, but even passing back.

"A convincing experiment would be to take six of these New Zealanders and put them on one of our 'varsity teams in the East in the following positions: two ends, the quarter, two half-backs, and a full-back. Then, after two or three days' practice, a team made up of an All-America line from tackle to tackle, and with these half dozen New Zealanders, would open the eyes of all our American players to the possibilities of the passing game."

Several of our American teams tried the experiment of having Canadian Rugby players come down and give a demonstration of this lateral passing. One or two of them followed it up consistently, and thus opened the way to a new form of our American game. The team that carried it to its highest pitch of perfection was

Yale, under Coach Hinkey, but he was handicapped at the same time by an almost entirely green line.

Very few in the North understand the conditions of what is generally known as "Southern foot ball." There are really three main groups. That section of the South which is nearest Mason and Dixon's line found on the eve of the final contest last year two leading teams in Virginia and North Carolina. Tandy, the center of North Carolina, is one of the good centers of the year. Virginia, however, on Thanksgiving Day demonstrated her superiority over North Carolina conclusively.

Farther south the real Southland had likewise two teams which had not been defeated and which played sterling foot ball, namely, Alabama Polytechnic Institute and Tennessee. The former had a good center in Pitts, and Taylor was a strong guard. Tennessee had a capital tackle in Kelly, Georgia a good quarter and back-field man in Paddock, and Vanderbilt a good half in Curry.

Southern foot ball gains rapidly in quality and prestige, and the coaches of the various teams are producing increasingly good results. In the Southwest the University of Texas has maintained its leadership and has a good team. Had Virginia come North to meet Yale in some other year when the New Haven team had not developed her lateral passing, the result would have been at least far closer, for in many respects the Virginia team showed up especially well. Indeed, Gooch, the Virginia quarter, is one of the strongest in the country. Virginia's work was most noteworthy in runs from kick formation. An idea of how the forward pass is used in the South can be gathered from the Texas-Mississippi game. Texas tried 31 forward passes, succeeded with 13, and made by these 227 yards, while Mississippi tried 17, succeeded with 6, and made by its use 131 yards—one resulting in a touchdown from midfield.

The Missouri Valley Conference championship went deservedly to Nebraska, which on November 14 met Kansas at Lincoln, where the two undefeated teams fought out the local issue. Nebraska settled that issue conclusively by a score of no less than 35 to 0. With Halligan at tackle and Rutherford and Chamberlain as half-backs—the former 184 pounds and the latter 196, and a man of remarkable speed—one can imagine the character of its offense.

Southern California had a most successful season. Pomona finally winning, by defeating Occidental, 3 to 0, before more than ten thousand people, the largest crowd ever gathered there.

The material for the selection of the All-America eleven of 1914 is especially strong in many respects. So far as the back-field is concerned, there is material for easily a half dozen first class elevens, while when one takes the country over the forward line is also well provided for, although it contains far fewer stars in number than the back-field. As stated formerly by the writer, no first class squad would think of entering a campaign without three available players for each position, and consequently the selection of the All-America eleven is always a team of thirty-three men, divided into first, second, and third strings. On the first eleven the ends would be Hardwick of Harvard and O'Hearn of Cornell, both pre-eminently stars in their positions. At right and left tackle would be Ballin of Princeton and Trumbull of Harvard, who, 1 flanked, as they can be on this All-America eleven, by proper assistance to the right and to the left, would be unbeatable in the positions. At guard, Pennock of Harvard, as chosen by the writer for the last two years, becomes a certainty again, while the other guard's position has been earned by Chapman of Illinois, through a season in which he has been the bulwark of the middle section of his team, which won the Middle-West championship.

McEwan of West Point secures the center position through all-around excellence, especially in his big game, just beating out DesJardien of Chicago, who held the position last year. The quarter-back position goes to Ghee of Dartmouth, closely pressed by Barrett of Cornell, Wilson of Yale, and Prichard of West Point. Ghee, after he found how to handle his engine of attack, did it marvelously well, and is individually a wonderful runner, a remarkable forward passer, a deadly tackler, and a man who can stand a lot of punishment and last through the season. Behind him stands a trio in which the first selection is a foregone conclusion, the best all-around back-field man in the country by all odds, Mahan of Harvard. The second position goes to Bradlee of Harvard. He is the sturdiest and strongest line-plunging back on the gridiron, and, most necessary to this All-America eleven, his defensive work stamps him as the best to back up a line that we have seen in two years. Between his line breaking and defense he is ideal and he is, like Ghee, a man who can stand the vicissitudes and pounding of the season. The last place is the hardest of all, but Maulbetsch of Michigan gets it by a shade over Spiegel of Washington and Jefferson because his style of running is so unexpected to the opponents, as was proved repeatedly, and especially in his ability to constantly pierce the Harvard defense, which, as everyone knows, was especially strong. The team, therefore, as finally selected, would have tremendous offensive strength, with the contrast between Maulbetsch's low-shooting, dodging runs, Brandlee's line plunging, Mahan's runs off tackle, and especially from short-kick formation. Then we have the forward passing of Mahan and Ghee, with two excellent receivers in Hardwick and O'Hearn; while for kicking, Mahan is equally proficient at punting and drop-kicking.

Bradlee (Harvard),

Mahan (Harvard),
Full-back.

Now, as to the offensive strength of the line, with Pennock and Ballin on one side to open holes, and Chapman and Trumbull on the other, and with McEwan in between Pennock and Chapman to split up the middle, if that part of the opponents' line was found at all shaky, the backs could be sure of striking the soft spots. Then Hardwick's coming around from end has already been proved a terrible weapon against Harvard's opponents. Ghee ran two-thirds the length of the field after receiving a kick-off in the Princeton game, and is likely at any time to put the opponents in distress by running a kick back past the point from which it was punted, and Mahan has the same ability.

On defense the line, as it stands, is a marvel, and every man has been tested in games this season. The ends have speed and the rest of the line has power, and behind it is Bradlee—the sturdiest man on the gridiron to-day when it comes to hitting a runner as he comes through—with Maulbetsch and Mahan for speed or pursuit, and Ghee's final tackling ability as the last resort.

As for the second eleven, its offensive strength, by means of what has been termed the "aerial route," would be greater than that of the first, for LeGore has no equal in his ability to hurl the forward pass, and in Merillat and Brann he has two choice receivers. Cahall can score field goals when given the smallest opportunity, and Spiegel is a puzzle to any line with his speed and dodging runs, while Barrett and LeGore are both especially dangerous in their ability to run back kicks. It would be a team that depended upon forward passing and open-field running rather than line breaking, but when in scoring mood, and against any defense that did not especially protect against forward passing, it would keep things moving.

The third team, like the first, would have line-smashing ability in Whitney and Talman, while Solon could also be called back (though he played end in 1913 on the Minnesota team he was used as a back-field man last season) for running or kicking. It would have in Wilson a defensive back-field man nearly as powerful as Bradlee, and in Pogue a wonderful open-field runner.

Altogether, if each one of these elevens played the other two, the odds would not be heavy on any of the games either way, but the first eleven could stand the hardest season, and an All-America eleven must possess the prime factor of endurance.

Besides the men mentioned on the second and third elevens, there are a number who should be commented upon because of their work. The quarterbacks Prichard of West Point, Logan of Harvard, Clark of Illinois, Pultz of Purdue, Gooch of Virginia, and Russell of Chicago are all of a high class, and there have been years when any one of them would have had a good chance in an All-America selection. In the back-field positions, this is true of Hastings and Miller of Pittsburgh, Toolan of Williams, Wescott of Tufts, Chamberlain and Rutherford of Nebraska—two men of remarkable speed and weighing 190-odd pounds—stars in their section. In the line, Coolidge of Harvard, Squier and Graves of Illinois, and Cherry of Ohio State, all ends, are especially worthy of mention. At tackle, Toohey of Rutgers, Cochran of Michigan and Shull of Chicago are reliable. At guard, Trenkman of Princeton, Overin of Pomona, and Routh of Purdue can bolster up any line, while Journey of Pennsylvania is a sturdy center, as is also Raynsford of Michigan.

Some Representative Teams and Their Work in 1914

YALE—HARVARD:

The new Yale bowl was opened to the entire satisfaction of the Harvard visitors by a tremendous victory over Yale. Seventy-one thousand people sat out in this magnificent structure on a glorious afternoon and saw Harvard march up and down the field with regularity and precision, while Yale, upon the one or two occasions when they were almost across Harvard's goal line, always had the mortifying experience of a cog slipping somewhere in the machine and failure thwarting their efforts. Upon one occasion, when the Yale side of the stands were on their feet ready for wild cheering as their half-back was just carrying the ball over the line—a fumble—and the Harvard end ran the length of the field for another unneeded score of the Crimson. Yale's attack was at times excellent, but their defense was poor throughout and Harvard had no difficulty in making steady and consistent gains. The final score was 36 to 0.

YALE—PRINCETON:

The Yale-Princeton game was played in the new Princeton stadium and up to the fourth period was too one-sided to be interesting. It looked like a complete walkover for Yale; so much so, in fact, that Yale took out several of her first-string men. Then Princeton braced and with fresh men commenced marching towards Yale's goal. When they had secured one touch-down, Yale began to be uneasy and commenced to put back the first-string men. They appeared, however, too cold and stiff to get into action, and it was real anxiety that paled the faces of the Yale cohorts on the bleachers as Princeton repeated her advance. Yale's 19 points, which had looked enormous, began to seem less and less, as Princeton scored 14 and was actually on its way into Yale's territory when the call of time put an end to the game, with a final score of 19—14.

HARVARD—MICHIGAN:

The visit of Yost's team to Cambridge was backed by a number of Michigan adherents who followed the team East and who went out to the field with distinct hopes of a success, although Michigan, in the early part of the season, had not shown the strength of former teams. The game was interesting from start to finish, Maulbetsch of Michigan doing some remarkable work in penetrating the Harvard line. But the Crimson eleven had had some trying experiences early in the season, which had really knit them together, and this experience told, for although Michigan at one time was so close to the Harvard goal that it looked like a certain score, Harvard finally stalled them off and won in the end by a score of 7 to 0.

HARVARD—PRINCETON:

The Harvard-Princeton game lacked interest from start to finish, for Princeton seemed more or less dazed and unable to make much headway and, as the game wore on, less and less able to stop Harvard's attacks, especially Bradley's fake turn and run straight through the line. Both teams did some bad fumbling to begin the game, but after that settled down to better handling of the ball. The final score was 20 to 0 in favor of Harvard.

HARVARD—PENN STATE:

Penn State made an excellent showing against Harvard, and it seemed for a time as though they were going to win, but the final score was a tie, with Harvard breathing a sigh of relief on leaving the field with the score 13 to 13.

HARVARD—WASHINGTON AND JEFFERSON:

This game was similar to the Penn State game in that Harvard was apparently beaten, but finally pulled the game out of the fire by a score of 10 to 9. The game was a fierce one, particular trouble coming from the question of how far interferers could aid in a forward pass by knocking down the secondary interference.

HARVARD—BROWN:

The Harvard-Brown game was a tie, the same as Harvard-Penn State, but in this particular instance neither side was able to score, the play going up and down the field but without results. It was this and the two or three other very hard close games which did so much to build up the Harvard team.

PRINCETON—DARTMOUTH:

Princeton defeated Dartmouth in this contest—the first in the new stadium—more by better generalship in the first periods, for Dartmouth for a considerable time seemed determined to exhaust its energy in pounding the Princeton line in Dartmouth territory. Toward the end of the game, Ghee got his forward pass going and had Princeton extremely nervous. With the score 16 to 12, any successful pass of Dartmouth in that territory might have resulted in a touchdown and victory.

MICHIGAN—PENNSYLVANIA:

The Michigan-Pennsylvania game was altogether too easy for the Ann Arbor men. Pennsylvania held them for a short time, but, as a rule, Michigan could run almost at will, and the final score of 34 to 3 showed their great superiority.

DARTMOUTH—PENNSYLVANIA:

The Dartmouth-Pennsylvania game was far more of a hardship for Pennsylvania than the Pennsylvania-Michigan. Dartmouth was at the top of her game and, going strong all the way, ran up 41 points to Pennsylvania's 0.

WEST POINT—NOTRE DAME:

West Point took revenge upon the Notre Dame team for its disastrous defeat of the previous year and ran up a score of 20 to 7 against the Westerners.

YALE—NOTRE DAME:

Yale also settled old scores with Notre Dame for the defeat of 1913. In this game Notre Dame had to pay the penalty of being one of the first teams to defend against Yale's lateral passing, which was working exceedingly well. The result was a victory for Yale by a score of 28 to 0.

PITTSBURGH—CORNELL:

Pittsburgh, a good team, came at the Ithacans with confidence and by good work defeated them 9 to 3. It is true that Cornell was not as good as later in the season, but great credit is due to Pittsburgh just the same.

COLGATE—CORNELL:

Colgate also took Cornell in the budding stage and got away with a victory of 7 to 3.

CORNELL—BROWN:

In this game Cornell had begun to come to her own, while Brown's team lacked experience, and, although the latter played pluckily and acquired knowledge and skill which proved of much benefit for their later season's work, they were defeated by the big red team, 28 to 7.

CORNELL—MICHIGAN:

Cornell, practically at the height of her game, with everything working well, although Michigan gave them a bad scare at first, worked their way to success in the end by a score of 28 to 13.

WILLIAMS—AMHERST:

Williams was successful over her old rival, Amherst, and, although the latter put up a plucky defense, Williams won out by a score of 14 to 6.

CORNELL—PENNSYLVANIA:

Cornell was a strong favorite, but at one time in the game Pennsylvania braced and had the score in its favor, with Cornell in difficulties. But two kicks out of bounds on the following kick-off turned the tables and Cornell scored again and won, 24 to 12.

ARMY—NAVY:

This game was even more marked in the Army's favor than the game of 1913. The eleven was much stronger in the forward line, while the Navy was unable to get its plays started. There were some brilliant pieces of play by each side, but on the whole the all-around work of the Army was superior and won a deserved victory, 20 to 0.

ILLINOIS—MINNESOTA-CHICAGO-WISCONSIN:

Illinois, which carried off the Conference championship in the West last year, played the most consistent game of any team of the season, as will be seen by the scores against her three main rivals. Minnesota was defeated 21 to 6, Chicago 21 to 7, and Wisconsin 24 to 9.

MINNESOTA—CHICAGO:

Coach Williams' men, although defeated decisively by Illinois, came back, and after defeating Wisconsin played a strong game against Stagg's team and succeeded in winning a much-cherished victory by a score of 13 to 6.

Review of Middle Western Foot Ball for the Season of 1914

BY "CRITIC."

Although two of the West's representative teams suffered defeat at the hands of Harvard and Yale in the most important inter-sectional games of the year, the season of 1914 must be accredited with being the most successful since the advent of the forward pass and ten-yard rules. The interest displayed by foot ball fans was not only a valuable financial asset, but in addition proves that in order to have good teams they must be backed by large and enthusiastic crowds. Not since the days of the famous Chicago-Michigan games, which terminated in 1905, have so many people attended as did last year. This was not only true of the larger teams, because the smaller colleges and schools also passed through their most successful seasons from the attendance standpoint. The general public is gradually coming to the realization that the new game is a great improvement over the old mass play, and that they get fully as much, if not more, chance to give vent to their approval than in former years.

In addition, the coaches are finally being weaned away from the close formations and line-plunging which, from all indications, cannot hope to be successful in the face of the intricate forward pass and open play by which as much ground is gained as was formerly possible in four or five masses on tackle. Practically all the scoring in the big games was made possible by some cleverly executed forward pass or kick which brought the ball close to the goal, from where cross bucks or smashes in the line made a touchdown possible.

In order to compete with this style of play, the coaches have been forced to meet it with the same tactics, the result being open foot ball, which not only gives the spectator some chance to know what is taking place on the field of play, but puts a premium on good open field runners and more accurate tackling. Less chance of injury is another good result of this change.

Mr. A. A. Stagg, of the University of Chicago, is, no doubt, responsible to a great extent for this radical change, for it was he who first saw the possibilities of the new game. He proceeded at once to instruct his teams so efficiently in open foot ball that they proved, beyond a doubt, that if they were to be defeated, some one had to meet them at their own game. There is no doubt that the present style is more hazardous and that mistaken play may cause an entire reversal of the possibilities of the game being won or lost. The weaker teams are also in a position to give their opponents a harder tussle, because there is always a chance that through some unexpected pass or kick the stronger team may be put completely on the defensive. This is what the public wants, and the West has gone far to prove that they are going to receive their full share of excitement and good foot ball.

Possibly the fact that most of our big teams were made up of veterans caused the West to stand out as teachers of open foot ball, but the truth remains that the brand displayed was highly appreciated by all who saw some of the larger and more important battles, for they were replete with surprises from start to finish, and kept one on his toes to know what would be sprung next. The variety of attack and the shifting of the defense to meet it was another pleasant feature, and goes to show that every man playing must have his actions under complete control at all times if he expects to do his share to maintain the prestige of his school. The days of brawn and muscle only are past, for the needs of the present game demand a greater amount of brains and keen insight as to the best method to fathom the ever changing style of attack. This has finally put the game on a plane where real athletic science must be brought into play.

ALBRIGHT COLLEGE, MYERSTOWN, PA.

In the Conference, the University of Illinois won the undisputed championship for the first time in the history of the institution. That this victory was a great boon to Western foot ball is not doubted by any one who has followed the game in the West. Year in and year out they have struggled in vain to reach the greatest honor a team can receive, until finally, under the tutelage of Robert Zuppke, they made a clean sweep of every game. It is hard to conceive of an aggregation better versed in all departments than the Orange and Blue. They were proficient in meeting any attack and, on the other hand, had the necessary punch to drive the ball over the line for a score when needed.

It has been said that Zuppke had an easy job with such a collection of stars, and the results forecasted themselves, but such remarks do not give the credit to the man that he deserves, for it was he who made the stars. The team was led by Watson, as great a player as Illinois has possessed in years. Playing at center, he was a tower of strength all along the line and deserves equal recognition with the stars of the past. He was equally at home at other positions in the line besides his own. In Pogue, the one hundred and fifty-five pound half-back, Illinois possessed one of the best backs seen in this section in years. From his looks one would never call him a foot ball man, but his wonderful ability in picking holes, skirting the ends and driving off tackle, has not been surpassed. On defense he was just as good and was in every play, either by deadly tackling or breaking interference. His great speed made him a dangerous opponent for any team.

At quarter-back, Clark surpassed even the fondest hopes of his many admirers. His keen judgment in selecting plays and the cool manner in which he piloted the team proved him to be one of the best in the West. He was also very proficient running with the ball, and on a number of occasions in his big games brought the crowd to their feet by a sparkling run from his position. There were a number of other stars, including Macomber and Shobinger in the back-field. Macomber, especially, deserves mention as one of the most unerring forward passers ever seen in the West. Combined with this, he was a high class field goal kicker and punter.

Generally speaking, Illinois was the class of the Conference, and is entitled to equal recognition with Nebraska and Notre Dame for the Western championship. Michigan did not lose a Western game, but it is doubtful if the Wolverines could have won from Illinois.

On account of losing only one game, and that to the strong Illinois eleven, Minnesota is awarded second place. The Gophers finished the season with a more powerful team than they had at any time during the foot ball period. They started the year with but two old players, and Dr. Williams had to fill the remaining positions from a crop of raw material, but the manner in which they absorbed his teachings should show great results in the coming year, and make them strong contenders for the championship.

After meeting defeat at the hands of Illinois, Minnesota came back strong and won from Chicago in the final battle of the Conference. Against the Maroons the Gophers played an advanced article of foot ball, and if they had displayed the same grim determination and fight against Illinois, it is a problem as to whether or not Illinois would have been able to beat them so decisively.

The Gophers possessed a man in Solon who was the peer of any line-plunger in the Conference. Playing out of his regular position at end, where he was a star, he was put in at full-back so that his line-plunging proclivities could be taken advantage of. In every game he played he gained more ground than any of his team-mates. In addition to this he was an accurate field goal kicker and was a dangerous man anywhere inside the forty-yard line. His defensive play could hardly be improved upon. Rosenthal, at center, was another high class man who played consistent foot ball all year.

Chicago and Wisconsin are placed on even terms for third place, owing to the fact that they both lost two Conference games and played each other a scoreless tie. Neither team was as strong as in former years, owing partly to the lack of first-class material. In the case of the Maroons the illness of Mr. Stagg can be used as an effective alibi, for there is no doubt but that the team lost a great deal of his magnetism and fighting spirit by his inability to be right behind them at all times.

Chicago started the season with bright prospects of becoming Conference champions and displayed an advanced style of foot ball up to the Wisconsin game at Madison. In this contest each team had two chances to score by the touchdown route, and each had one opportunity to score by a field goal, but all attempts were of no avail and the teams left the field without either having scored. In this struggle, after five minutes of play, when it looked as if the Maroons would score, they lost the services of Gray, who was injured after he had carried the ball to the Badgers' five-yard line. As is the case in most hard fought games when the star player is injured, it seems the Maroons relaxed and the ball was taken from them on downs. Thus Chicago's golden chance for a touchdown went a-glimmering. Gray's injury prevented his playing in any future contests, except for a few minutes in the Illinois game and only one play in the Minnesota game. Chicago was thus deprived of her chief ground gainer in the two most important games of the year.

Russell, the Maroon quarter-back, was injured in the Illinois game and consequently was not of much value to the team in the Minnesota game. This little player deserves a great deal of credit for his gameness in trying to stave off defeat against the Gophers. He tried time and again to break away with a run from his position to tie the score, but his attempts were of no avail, as he was a marked man when he entered the game.

In Des Jardien, Chicago had the kingpin of centers in the West, if not in the country. There was never a play in which he did not take a prominent part both offensively and defensively. In addition to this he did the kicking and was further burdened with the captaincy. A powerful man, standing six feet four and weighing two hundred pounds, he moved around with the grace and ease of a half-back, and time and again brought the runner to the ground with one of his vicious tackles. He was justly feared by every opposing team.

Wisconsin was not what might be called a well balanced team. It had one of the best lines in the Conference, but a weak back-field, with the exception of Bellows, who was the mainstay of the offense. He was a marked man in every contest and, with no protection to speak of, it was a hard task for him to get away on runs from his position or from punt formations. In Buck, Wisconsin had one of the best tackles in this part of the country, and he no doubt could fill a similar position on any aggregation. The Badgers played their best game against Chicago, but after this game they went back instead of showing improvement.

Fourth place in the final rating is awarded to the State University of Iowa, the hard luck aggregation of the Conference. The Hawkeyes, with a good team, were defeated by Chicago and Minnesota by the narrow margin of one touchdown. The element of luck was a strong factor in these two games, as Iowa was a much stronger eleven than its showing during the season indicated. Under the guidance of Jesse Hawley, former Dartmouth star, the Iowa team played hard, consistent foot ball in every contest. The eleven was well versed in the most open variety of plays, and if they had received some of the breaks of the game would be entitled to a much higher position in the rating.

In practically every game played the Iowa team would spread all over the field when they had the ball, and consequently had their opponents guessing at most stages, but when the final effort was needed there was a break and they lost the ball. It is hard for anyone to account for this failing, and it seems only fair to give Iowa a great deal of credit for sticking and fighting to the finish as they invariably did.

Purdue University, coached by Andy Smith, formerly of the University of Pennsylvania, is awarded fifth position. The Boiler-makers started the season with championship prospects, and at the time of their journey to Madison to meet the Badgers they were hot favorites. The game was hardly five minutes old before it looked as if Purdue would win easily, but a blocked kick, which enabled a Wisconsin man to gather in the oval and run for a touchdown, completely changed the complexion of the game. With the confidence of a touchdown to the good, Wisconsin fought like demons, and Purdue had to be content with its first defeat. With a number of his stars under the weather from the results of the Wisconsin game, Smith had to send a weaker team against Chicago, which defeated them in a hard luck battle. By reorganizing his team for the remaining game, he succeeded in winn' this, and placed Purdue on a higher plane than it has ever occupied in foot ball. Most of the team was composed of green men and, with the exception of such stars as O'Brien and Routh, had to be taught from the rudiments up. From the present outlook Smith, if given sufficient time, will make all the West take notice. He is one of those men who live for foot ball and knows how to get the best results out of what he has to work with.

Ohio State University, the last member admitted to the Conference, is placed in sixth position. The Buckeyes played inconsistently most of the season and were not nearly as strong as the teams rated above them. The season was started with bright prospects, but the team failed to live up to expectations when the stronger elevens were met. Cherry, left end, was one of the best in his position and ranks with the rest of the stars. He is a shifty man and very clever at receiving forward passes. It is to be hoped that Wilce, the old Wisconsin man who coaches Ohio State, has a more successful season this year, as he will be thoroughly acclimated and able to get the best results.

Indiana, which won only one Conference game, is placed in seventh position. The Hoosiers played the Eastern style of game, owing to the presence of C. C. Childs, a Yale man, as coach. No doubt Mr. Childs' efforts were greatly handicapped on account of the complete reversal of style from that with which the Bloomington players were acquainted. His men were not adept at taking to the slow moving attack so common among Eastern teams, consequently their plays were broken up before they were fairly started. However, if good, conscientious work and a knowledge of foot ball are any criterion, his efforts will produce results the coming season. The team had several good men in Whitaker, the Erehart Brothers and McIntosh.

Northwestern, owing to the fact that it met defeat in all Conference games, is placed in last position. Its trouble seems to have been similar to that of Indiana, for the coach, Fred Murphy, being an Eastern man, tried to instill in them Eastern methods to an extent which could not possibly produce results the first year. In Hightower, Northwestern had a star, but his ability was not recognized as it should have been, owing to the weakness of the team he was on. Had he been with either Chicago, Illinois or Minnesota, he would surely have ranked with the stars of the West.

Outside of the Conference, there are four teams which demand an equal amount of attention from lovers of foot ball, and one of them at least is always in the limelight as a claimant of the Western title in connection with the winner of the Conference. It is hardly fair for any of the leading teams to claim the undisputed championship without having some tangible evidence to prove that claim other than comparative scores. It is doubtful if any team deserves more to be ranked with Illinois than Nebraska, the undisputed champions west of the Mississippi. Coached by Stiehm, the old Wisconsin center, they have been constantly in the limelight since his arrival. They went through the entire season without meeting defeat. The Corn Huskers were a mighty strong aggregation both on offense and defense. Heavy and fast, they would have been a worthy foe to any team they might meet. Their decisive defeat of the Michigan "Aggies" was one game in which they showed their ability to contend with any team for the championship.

Capt. Halligan, playing left tackle, was the main factor in nearly all the games. He was strong on carrying the ball from his position, and could generally be relied on for good gains. As a place-kicker he was a star. In the Iowa game alone he made three scores by the air route and was successful in numerous attempts in other games. His defensive work was equally as good. All this, combined with his qualifications as a leader, made him a star of the first magnitude.

Notre Dame, as usual, had a strong team, although they went down to defeat in the Yale and Army games. It is hard to say just what was wrong unless it was too much travelling which took the edge off the players. That Coach Jesse Harper had a collection of first grade men was apparent, but there was something radically wrong which even Harper failed to diagnose.

Such men as Ray Eichenlaub, the giant full-back; Bergman, the star quarter, and Bachman and Jones in the line, are wonderful assets to any team. Unfortunately, Eichenlaub was injured in an early season game and was unable to do himself justice. Bergman, however, was a star of the first mag-tude, and needed a whole lot of watching by the opposing team. Although small, he was a "speed man," and liable to run away with the game at any stage.

Because of the fact that Notre Dame played one of the hardest schedules any team has been called on in years to play, some leeway must be allowed them. No team, however good, can stand too much travelling from one end of the country to the other and play consistent foot ball. Harper is to be congratulated on the results as they are.

Michigan, playing a schedule of games with Eastern, Western and Southern teams, harder than any heretofore tried by any Western team, had a fairly successful season. Against Harvard, a score of 7 to 0 shows the brand of foot ball put up by Yost's men. After holding the crimson to this score, they returned home to defeat Pennsylvania. They were finally defeated again by Cornell. Previous to this they were defeated by Syracuse.

Yost uncovered a wonderful foot ball man in half-back Maulbetsch, who, despite his weight of one hundred and fifty-five pounds, punctured the big Harvard line time and time again for big gains. This man is a marvel at keeping his feet and carrying the ball, and dyed-in-the-wool Michigan fans assert he is as good as "Willie" Heston in his palmiest days. That we will hear more of this grand little player is confidently expected, as he still has two years to play, this being his initial effort in fast company.

Michigan has two other stars in Capt. Raynsford, at center, and Cochran, at tackle. Both big, powerful men, they had the real foot ball intuition and worked wonders with an otherwise green line. The Wolverines should be strong in 1915, for with the experience gained in the big games last year and with a much easier schedule, they will surely make a strong bid for the Western championship.

Last, but not least, is the Michigan Agricultural College of Lansing, Michigan. Until the arrival of big John Macklin of Pennsylvania, the "Aggies" were never taken seriously. They have forged to the front under his tutelage until now they are greatly feared by all who come in contact with them. Although they lost two of their most important games to Michigan and Nebraska, they had an exceptionally good team. There is no disputing the ability of Julian, the "Aggies'" full-back. The West has yet to see any better, and Blake Miller, the end, was another star who deserves special mention. With these two men as a nucleus and a wealth of good material to pick from, Michigan Agricultural College justly deserves to be called one of the big institutions in Western foot ball.

In general, the Western season was a huge success, and if the coaches maintain the same quality of foot ball and the players show the same determination to help the game along, there is no doubt but that the public will be more enthusiastic in the coming season than they were last year, thereby making 1915 the greatest success ever.

University of Cincinnati, Cincinnati, Ohio.—Cincinnati's season was considered a success. A majority of the games were won, and Baehr, full back; Fries, tackle, and Goosman, half-back, were picked for the All-Ohio team. The defeat of Denison, regarded as State champions, and of the State of University of Kentucky were regarded as the biggest achievements of the season. The defeat by Miami on Thanksgiving Day cost Cincinnati the State championship.

University of Wooster, Wooster, Ohio.—While the result obtained by the 1914 team did not come up to expectations, the individual work of some of its members is worthy of note. Charles C. Forrest, captain for 1915, showed splendid offensive and defensive ability, being one of the mainstays of the team. He could be counted on for gains. For the good of the team, part of the season, he gave up his natural position at end and went to full-back, where he played a good, consistent game. He was one of the chief scorers. Harry S. Manchester, half-back, should be mentioned for his place-kicking ability. He could be counted on to score from the thirty-yard line at any time. In one game he made a forty-three yard kick, and twice made about thirty-eight yard kicks. Robert J. Hole, end, at the beginning of the season showed brilliant form. He was nervous, heady and strong. He made his end a hard one to circle. He was likewise a good offensive man. William A. Eddy, quarter-back, should be mentioned for his punting ability. In one game his punts averaged fifty-five yards, and they always averaged considerably over forty. He also has ability as place-kicker and is developing. He is an accurate forward passer.

Foot Ball in the South

BY W. A. LAMBETH.

Those of us in the South who have watched, with growing interest, the development of the most distinctive college game find much encouragement in contrasting foot ball of today with foot ball of twenty years ago. At that time the game was played in only a few of the leading institutions; it was under the inspiration, control and guidance of the undergraduates. Today it is played in nearly all of the universities, colleges and schools of the South, and in many instances the control has passed from undergraduate associations into the hands of faculties or permanent administrative officers. We no longer find the old warlike attitude, which gave rise to proselyting, evasion and even corruption. On the contrary, the contests are generally marked by friendly consideration and propriety of conduct.

The results of the past season show that Virginia, North Carolina and Vanderbilt were the teams which played the greatest number of leading Southern opponents. Of these universities, Virginia lost to Yale, won from Swarthmore, and was victorious in all her contests in the South. North Carolina lost only one game, while Vanderbilt lost five. Though Georgetown fell below her usual form, North Carolina Agricultural and Mechanical College and Washington and Lee had strong teams. Their schedules, however, did not include many representative Southern teams. Of the games played, Washington and Lee was throughout victorious, while both Georgetown and North Carolina Agricultural and Mechanical College lost to Washington and Lee. Under such circumstances, it would be illogical to try to name the best team. If measured by the difficulty of the schedules and number of victories, Virginia presents the best record. If rated by comparative scores, Virginia is also the leader, for she won by larger scores over the same teams in every instance.

North Carolina loomed large in Southern foot ball, and enjoyed uninterrupted victory until her final contest. Tennessee, which has made steady progress during the past three years, is generally regarded as having had the best team in the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association last fall. The team went through the season undefeated. Vanderbilt had lost many of her ablest players of the previous year and was the victim of early injuries. In view of these facts, and, above all, because of the unreasonable difficulty of her schedule, the disastrous results of the season cannot be a just measure of her notable foot ball development and position. Georgia, Georgia School of Technology, and Alabama Polytechnic Institute maintained their usual excellence, while the Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical College seems to have developed a team far ahead of her past records.

Many All-Southern teams have been selected by various local observers and critics. Having profited greatly by these selections and the judgment of other councillors, the writer proposes the following:

ALL-SOUTHERN ELEVEN.

MacDougall (North Carolina "Aggies") and Homewood (North Carolina), ends.
 Stoney (South Carolina) and Shultz (Washington and Lee), tackles.
 Coleman (Virginia) and Tandy (North Carolina), guards.
 Petritz (Georgetown), center.
 Gooch (Virginia), quarter-back.
 Mayer (Virginia) and Curry (Vanderbilt), half-backs.
 Kimball (Mississippi "Aggies"), full-back.

MacDougall of North Carolina Agricultural and Mechanical College was selected by many competent critics as the greatest end of the year. His form showed the effect of several years' splendid coaching, which he received at Phillips Exeter. He is tall and powerful, fast in getting down on punts.

a deadly tackler. His work in receiving forward passes was of the highest order.

Stoney of the University of South Carolina, while playing center in 1914, can play any line position. His experience in the forward pass and general open game, coupled with splendid line defensive and offensive work, makes him one of the most useful men on the All-Southern Team.

Coleman of Virginia was the best guard on any Southern gridiron. Nothing could stop his charging, and although a big lineman his tackling was low and certain. On the offense very few opponents could prevent his opening for substantial gains.

Petriz of Georgetown is a better performer at center than either Tandy of North Carolina, or Evans of Virginia, and for this reason Tandy is shifted to guard. Petriz has the advantage of longer experience.

Tandy of North Carolina is selected for right guard because of his strong and aggressive defensive work and also for his great ability as a drop-kicker. He can put more drive in a drop-kick than any man the writer has ever seen perform.

Shults of Washington and Lee clearly established his title to a tackle position. He is fast for a big man, and helps his neighbor while taking care of his own duties.

Homewood, although part of the season out of form, played the game of his life on Thanksgiving Day. He is an able and worthy partner of MacDougall. His defensive flanking work is perhaps better than that of MacDougall, but in other departments he is not quite MacDougall's equal.

Gooch of Virginia is another man holding an uncontested position. No other man in the South played in form equaling this man. Steady, alert, resourceful and powerful, he was always able to get gains from his backs and then gain still more for himself. Good at passing, a sure tackle and a spectacular broken-field runner.

Mayer of Virginia was easily the most brilliant half-back playing in the South. His clean-cut gains in the line and in the open field were the result of his great speed and unusual agility, supplemented by great physical power.

Curry of Vanderbilt is chosen for right half. He is the lightest man on the team, but is alert, agile and full of courageous ability.

Kimball of Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical College was generally chosen for full back.

Ohio Northern University, Ada, Ohio.—Having had only three of the previous year's men on the team, Ohio Northern contends it had quite a successful season in 1914. Cobb, at quarter-back; Fyke, at full-back, and Kemery, at end, were the stars. The principal games were with Antioch, Marshall, Indiana "Aggies," Adrian and University of Detroit. The university expects to have a much stronger team in 1915, having most of last season's players back.

University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wis.—Lack of experience in the back-field and injuries at critical times hindered the development of the team at Wisconsin in 1914. It gave some promise at the beginning and looked as though it would be a powerful defensive team. In the closing games, however, the defense showed weaknesses which were taken advantage of by Minnesota and Illinois. The team gave its best display against Chicago. Against Illinois, however, it again demonstrated the lack of a "punch" to put the ball over the line inside the ten-yard line. Once, in the latter game, after Stavrum had intercepted a forward pass and carried the ball to Illinois' ten-yard line, the Badger backs could not make the remaining distance. Buck, at left tackle, was a power and without him the team's record would have been a poor one. Keeler played a good game at right tackle, but failed to live up to the reputation he made as a guard. Stavrum, at end, was a reliable player, while Smith made good in his first year at half-back. In the Minnesota game, after leading by a score of 3 to 0 at the end of the first half, failure to kick at the right time and a subsequent fumble gave the ball to Minnesota within twenty yards of the Wisconsin goal line. The Gophers lost no time in making a forward pass to Solon, who carried it across the line. The other score was made on an intercepted forward pass. Although a number of veterans will be graduated in 1915, the outlook is brighter than it has been for several seasons. Coach Jones' freshman team contained some excellent material that ought to make competition for places on the 'varsity interesting next season. Simpson, All-State quarter-back, is expected to fill a long felt want at Wisconsin.

Foot Ball in the Middle States

BY GEORGE W. ORTON, UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Foot ball in the Middle States in 1914 enjoyed a popularity such as it has not experienced for several seasons. The standard was again extremely high. Princeton, Pennsylvania, Washington and Jefferson, Pittsburgh, Lehigh, Rutgers, Penn State, the Navy, Lafayette, Franklin and Marshall and Carlisle form a group that would be impossible to duplicate in any other section of this country. As usual we shall leave the merits of Pennsylvania and Princeton to the editor, who takes these two universities up in detail. It may merely be stated that both of these members of the "Big Four" had very disappointing seasons. Pennsylvania was especially poor and in any ranking of colleges of this section would have to take a rather inferior place. Both Pennsylvania and Princeton, however, have made arrangements this season for a different coaching system and both are expecting great results from the change.

One college in the Middle States stood out above all the others because of the magnificent game which it played during the entire season. This was Washington and Jefferson, coached by Bob Folwell, formerly of Pennsylvania. The college had a most successful season, being defeated only by Harvard, by ten points to nine. It won from Yale, Pittsburgh, Rutgers and other institutions, and showed a versatility of attack and defense that was up to the very best seen in the East during the season. In fact, in ranking the college teams of America, Washington and Jefferson would have to be given serious consideration as ranking next to Harvard. This is its place, but it is deserved and well won by the great victories last season. Several men on the team were of All-America caliber. This refers especially to Cruikshank, at center; Spiegel, at half-back; Goodman, at quarter-back, and Patterson, at tackle. The latter was chosen by many experts for their All-American Eleven, while Cruikshank was mentioned by several.

Two institutions tied for second place in the ranking of teams of the Middle States. These were Pittsburgh and Lehigh. Both of them played the game up to the very highest standard, as was shown by their victories against some of the best colleges of the country. Pittsburgh won from Cornell, Penn State, the Navy, Indians and others and was defeated by Washington and Jefferson by only three points. It undoubtedly had a fine team and would rank high in any list of American college elevens. The remarkable thing about Pittsburgh's season was the fact that though getting in very good shape for the opening game with Cornell, it did not go really stale during the season; but played up to form practically during the entire fall. The best three men were Peck, at center; Miller, at half-back, and Hastings, at quarter. The latter was one of the most consistent drop-kickers in the East. He scored in this way against Cornell, the Indians, and Washington and Jefferson, while against Penn State he put two over the goal posts.

Pittsburgh's rise in the athletic world has been rapid, and may be expected to maintain the high position which the university won the last two seasons. The adoption of a one year freshman rule and the engagement of Glenn Warner as coach, indicates that it has every confidence in the future.

Lehigh did not play so many of the big teams as Pittsburgh, but it made an excellent showing. The team was defeated only by Yale, and it scored victories over Penn State, Lafayette, Franklin and Marshall, Carlisle and others. Lehigh had one of the greatest back-fields playing for any of the colleges of the East. Hoban and Cahall were regarded by many critics as two of the best backs playing the game, while Chenoweth was mentioned by several for the highest honors at quarter-back position. Were it necessary to make a division between Pittsburgh and Lehigh, the writer would have to give Pittsburgh slightly the preference, though in all-round play the teams were evenly matched.

URSINUS COLLEGE, COLLEGEVILLE, PA.

Rutgers must be mentioned next in any review of Middle States foot ball. This is, it is true, a big advance for the New Brunswick institution, but it is well deserved. On looking over the work of the colleges in the section Rutgers and Colgate seem to be very much on a par. The latter is somewhat North, geographically, for the Middle States, so we shall dismiss that university with a word or two. It had a very good team, played some hard games and invariably made an excellent showing. Colgate, for the third straight year, defeated Cornell, played the Army a close game, and tied Syracuse. This is surely honor enough for one of the so-called minor colleges.

Rutgers, under the coaching of Sanford, formerly of Yale, had by far the best season in its history. The team met Princeton in the opening game and for a time seemed to have the better of the Tigers. The latter braced, however, and won, 12—0. Rutgers also showed great strength in the game with the Army. Syracuse was held to a draw, while the team kept the great Washington and Jefferson eleven playing at its very best for the entire game, the score finally being against Rutgers, 20—13. This was the largest score made against Washington and Jefferson last season. Against its natural rivals, Stevens Institute and New York University, Rutgers was victorious by large scores. As this was the second year that Rutgers has shown great power on the gridiron, the public can confidently look to the coaches the coming season to maintain the high grade of foot ball which has been developed at this college. The best player was Toohey, who was regarded by many as one of the best tackles of the year. He was an All-America choice by several of the best critics. Tallman was one of the best punters in the East, while Garrett was especially notable for his line-bucking during the season.

Pennsylvania State College should be placed next in this review. As usual, it played some of the biggest teams in the country, and though not so successful as three years ago, the team made a big advance over its previous season. State's greatest effort was against Harvard, which it held to a tie at thirteen points each. Lehigh defeated State, but the latter scored a big victory over Lafayette, 17 to 0. The Michigan Agricultural College and the University of Pittsburgh were both held to low scores, which indicates that the team must have played an unusually high grade of ball. The best player was Tobin, in the back-field, while the ends, Thomas and Higgins, were also deserving of mention. State College will also institute the freshman rule in 1915.

Three colleges, Franklin and Marshall, Lafayette and the Navy, seem next in line. All three played high class foot ball and deserved great credit for their work during the season. Franklin and Marshall startled the college world by defeating Pennsylvania in its first game, 10—0. It kept up the good work, defeating all its natural rivals with the exception of Ursinus, which played especially well against the Lancaster men and tied them, 6 to 6. In fact, after Franklin and Marshall's defeat by Cornell, the team seemed to go to pieces as it was not only tied by Ursinus, but was able to defeat Gettysburg by only one point. The poor showing at the end of the season was probably due to the team being brought along too soon for the game with Pennsylvania.

Lafayette started out with the brightest prospects and would undoubtedly have had one of the best teams in the college history had not an epidemic of typhoid fever injured its chances. In spite of this the team went through the season with credit to itself, though it was defeated by State College, Lehigh and Princeton. The Navy was not up to the form of previous seasons. It is true that the team was defeated by only Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania and the Army, but the scores made in other games indicated that it did not have the power of a really first class eleven.

For the first time in many years the Carlisle Indians must take a low place in the ranking of the Middle States colleges. They had the most disastrous season in their history. It is true that they played many of the big colleges, but, unlike former years, they were invariably defeated. It is rather regrettable to note that Carlisle was defeated by seven teams last season, and really won games only against the colleges of minor rank.

The above teams can be ranked as given, but it would be impossible to make any special ranking for the others in the Middle States. We shall.

therefore, merely remark upon the merits of some in this section. In Western Pennsylvania, Allegheny College must be given a high ranking among the minor colleges. It went through the season undefeated, and would rank next to Pittsburgh in that district. Its success is due to the fine coaching system instituted by C. E. Hammett in 1913. Westminster College also had a good season and will rank very close to Allegheny. In McLaughrey, Westminster had one of the best full-backs playing in the East.

In Virginia, Washington and Lee University, coached by Walter Elcock, had one of its best seasons. The team won all of its games, and would have as good a title to the championship of the South Atlantic section as the University of Virginia.

The colleges of Maryland were more equally matched this season than for several years. Maryland Agricultural College seemed to make the best showing on the whole, though it was closely followed by St. John's College of Annapolis and Western Maryland College. Though the material was better than for several years past at Johns Hopkins, there seemed to be no spirit to the team and the season was not a success. The alumni have awakened to the occasion and are laying plans to put the university at the head of football in the South Atlantic States from now on. Some very good men were developed in these Maryland colleges. Twigg of Western Maryland, was one of the best centers in the State, while Captain Hisey of St. John's College was chosen by the Baltimore Sun for the All-Maryland team.

NOTES.

Ursinus College had an in and out season. The team played its best games against Franklin and Marshall and Lafayette, which teams were held to a tie. Swarthmore College had a poor season, winning only two games, though it tied with Haverford at the end of the season.

New York University made a big advance. The team won some very good games, and in Wenner had a splendid tackle.

Haverford had a successful season, tying Swarthmore and defeating Johns Hopkins, one of its big rivals.

Bucknell had a good team, as usual, though it did not play consistently.

Gallaudet again came out with a very good team. Its last two games against Maryland Agricultural College and Georgetown University showed that the team was playing a higher standard of ball than ever before. Marshall, at right end, and Cascaden, at right tackle, were chosen by the Washington Post for the All-South Atlantic Eleven.

Lebanon Valley College had the most successful season in its history, defeating Gettysburg and Muhlenberg, and playing Franklin and Marshall and Carlisle to close scores.

Delaware College, very sensibly, played only colleges of its class and had a successful year.

Catholic University had the unique distinction of not scoring during the season.

Muhlenberg College did not have so successful a season as the year before.

Bloomsburg Normal seemed to be the best of the normal schools of Pennsylvania, followed closely by Mansfield. In fact, there was not much to choose between these two teams.

If Union College were to be considered a Middle States college it would deserve special mention, as it won all of the games played and the championship of its league.

HIGH SCHOOLS.

Foot ball throughout the high schools of the Middle States reached probably a higher standard last year than ever before in the history of the game. A very large number of schools had teams that played the game in a remarkably efficient manner. The number of high schools in the Middle States is so large and the ways of comparing their ability so inadequate, that it is really impossible to make any list of schools in the order of their strength. On this account we shall not attempt to rank them. We shall merely mention those which seem to be most prominent.

THIEL COLLEGE, GREENVILLE, PA.

The one school in the Middle States which seems to stand out above all others is the Greensburg High School of Greensburg, Pa. Its victory over Harrisburg Technical High School by 38 to 0, and over the strong Johnstown High School team by 97 to 0, indicates that Greensburg had a powerful eleven. Harrisburg Technical High School and the Williamsport High School, both Pennsylvania institutions, are two others that stood out prominently. Williamsport High seemed to have a slightly better record than Harrisburg Technical, but in their annual contest they tied. Both of these teams claimed the championship of their State, but Greensburg, on comparative scores, would better deserve the honor, so far as the high schools are concerned. Captain Beck as full-back for Harrisburg Technical was considered one of the best in Pennsylvania. Britsch was thought to be another "Shorty" Miller because of his wonderful work in the back-field. On the Williamsport team there were two unusually strong players, Gilbert and Bathurst. Another Williamsport man who was far beyond the average was Frain, who played a great game at end.

Besides the above there were a large number of other teams throughout the State that played remarkably good ball. Of these, probably the best was the Northeast High School of Philadelphia. It won all its games, thus capturing the championship of the Philadelphia Interscholastic League. Bethlehem was defeated by 17—0, which indicates that the team must be ranked high in any list of Middle States schools. Webb was the star of the Northeast, line-up, being prominent for his ability to throw the forward pass and for his punting. The Central High School team was but little inferior to Northeast, and lost the championship to the latter by a 2 to 0 score.

Wilkes-Barre High School had the best team in its history. It won all its games with the high schools, the most important victory being that over Harrisburg High School, 9—6.

Wilkesburg High School won the championship Syracuse Trophy. The team's work entitled it to the championship of Western Pennsylvania. Thompson, at left tackle; Hileman, at right half-back, and Captain Ege, were the stars of the team. This eleven was one of the best in the State.

The Reading High School had a very good season, winning most of its important games. In one respect Reading was most fortunate, in that no injuries were received by the men during the season.

Easton High School made a distinct advance, as it was not defeated during the season. The victory over Reading placed Easton to the fore in any list of Pennsylvania schools.

Johnstown High School, in spite of its overwhelming defeat by Greensburg, had a very good team.

The Clearfield High School had the best team 'n its history, winning the county championship through the victory over DuBois.

The high schools of New Jersey seemed to make a greater advance in their general standard of play than any section of the Middle States. Two teams stand out most prominently, namely, Rahway and Rutherford. Both claim the championship of the State, but there is practically nothing to choose between them. Were it necessary to make a decision Rahway would be given the preference. It had in Alfred Brooks and Captain Russell two star players. The team went through the season without a defeat, scoring 217 points to 34 by opponents.

The Rutherford team won the championship of the Northern New Jersey Interscholastic League, and it undoubtedly had a very strong eleven. This was shown not only by its victories in the League, but also by the defeat of the DeWitt Clinton High School of New York, 21—0. Black, at center; White, at left half-back, and Wallace, at quarter-back, were chosen for the All-New Jersey Eleven.

The Asbury Park team won the championship of the East Jersey High School League, and probably showed more improvement than any other team in New Jersey. It played Rutherford a 0 to 14 game, which indicates that the team was strong.

Trenton High School failed to keep up the fine record of the previous season, though the team played good ball. East Orange High School had a good season, though it was defeated by Rahway, 29—0.

1, Buehler; 2, McCollough; 3, Hatch; 4, Royer; 5, Early; 6, Titzel; 7, Mercer; 8, Welmer; 9, Marks; 10, Baker; 11, Turnbull; 12, Hoar; 13, Scheffer, Capt.; 14, Webner; 15, Mahaffie; 16, Stratten; 17, Stoney.

DAVIDSON (NO. CAR.) COLLEGE.

Atlantic City was, as usual, champion of its district. The team played a good game and would have to be ranked near the front in any list of New Jersey schools. The Burlington High School team won the championship of its county, and made a distinct advance over any previous year.

Erasmus Hall High School made an excellent showing among the Metropolitan high schools, defeating Manual Training, Commercial High and Boys' High Schools.

In the Southern section, Baltimore Polytechnic Institute proved the strongest eleven. It won the interscholastic championship of Baltimore by the victory over Baltimore City College, 3—0. Smith, in the back-field, proved a star throughout the season.

Several other schools deserve mention. Coatesville of Coatesville, Pa., won the championship of Chester county, defeating all the schools of its class. Plainfield High School had a good team, as is shown by the fact that it was defeated by Rahway by only 14 points to 20. The Norristown High School made an excellent record, though only three veterans returned for the team.

Lafayette High School of Buffalo proved the champion of that city by its victories over Masten Park and Hutchinson Central. Camden High School had another good season. In Porter they brought out a back-field star who will be heard from later. The Paterson High School team was the best in its history.

The style of play throughout the schools was more open than ever before. The punting was up to a higher standard than has been seen in many seasons. The ability of the boys to throw forward passes was, in many cases, almost up to the college standard.

PREPARATORY SCHOOLS.

The preparatory schools of the Middle States maintained their high standard last season. In one respect, the season was rather indecisive, in that no one team stood out very prominently above the others. Lawrenceville seems to have led the schools of this section. It scored victories over Tome School, Peddie Institute, and Mercersburg Academy, not being scored on by a prep school during the season. Its only defeat was by the Princeton freshmen, who undoubtedly had a strong team. Funk, at center, and Eastman and Rubsamen, in the back-field, were the stars.

As usual, Mercersburg was near the front. The team's play was confined mainly to colleges, and it is rather difficult to get a line on it. The defeat by Lawrenceville, 5—0, indicated that it had a very strong eleven. It was strong on the defense, but poor on the offense. In only two games did the team score any points, namely, against the Carlisle scrubs and the comparatively weak team from Perkiomen Seminary.

Conway Hall deserves to be ranked with Mercersburg. It had one of the best seasons in the history of the institution. The team played Mercersburg a tie game, neither side scoring, and it defeated Tome School, 9—7. The victory over the Hill School also indicated that Conway Hall was stronger than usual. Tome School had the best season in its history. It was undoubtedly the best team in the Southern section of the Middle States, and should be ranked high in any list of prep schools in this district.

The Hill School team did not have the success of former years, as is shown by its comparatively poor record.

Several other schools throughout the Middle States deserve mention because of the excellent game which they put up. Kiskiminetas had a strong eleven, as usual. Like Mercersburg, it played many college teams, and the fact that it was defeated only by Indiana Normal, Washington and Jefferson and State College freshmen, indicates that it was almost of college caliber. Bethlehem Prep School had another good season, being defeated only by the Northeast High School of Philadelphia. Krushank was once more the school's star.

Wyoming Seminary won all of its scholastic games and undoubtedly deserves to be ranked first in its district. Franklin and Marshall Academy had another successful season, winning every game.

Of the Philadelphia preparatory schools, Penn Charter and Swarthmore are practically on a par. It is true that Penn Charter defeated Swarthmore in the first game of the season, though at that time four Swarthmore regulars were on the side lines. Later on the Swarthmore team scored victories over Episcopal, DeLancey, the strong team from Haverford School, and other elevens.

Penn Charter went through the season undefeated, though it had one tie game with St. Luke's School. Were it necessary to make a choice between Swarthmore and Penn Charter the latter would have to be given the preference because of its early season victory. Geyer of the Penn Charter team proved one of the best punters in Philadelphia scholastic ranks. Chestnut Hill and St. Luke's both had excellent elevens and would rank next to the above two schools. Captain Galliard of Chestnut Hill proved one of the best back-field men around the city.

Cascadilla School of Ithaca, N. Y., suffered its only defeat in two years at the hands of the Binghamton High School. The team was as strong as usual, and would be ranked high in any list of Middle States schools.

Two schools in the Hudson River Valley seemed to stand out from the others, namely, the Pawling School and the New York Military Academy. Both claim the championship of the Valley, but comparative records would seem to indicate that the Pawling School had a little the better of the argument. The team was defeated only by the strong Hotchkiss eleven. The New York Military Academy undoubtedly had a fine team, as it won all its games, including two victories over the New York high schools. Henderson, at quarter-back, and McClure, at center, were two of the best men on the eleven.

Morristown School had by far the best season in its history, and would rank close to the top in any list of New Jersey prep schools. The team won all its games, and was scored on only twice during the season. DeVitalis and Wendell, in the back-field, were two of the best men on any of the teams in this district.

The Kingsley School is another New Jersey institution which had an enviable record last season. The Carteret Academy made a big advance in foot ball, due mainly to the fine work of Johnstone, at center, and DeLaval, at full-back.

Brooklyn Preparatory School made a good showing against the other New York schools, getting fourth place in the B. F. Keith's Cup contest. Deghull was chosen for a back-field position on the All-Scholastic Brooklyn Eleven. Fordham Prep School team had an unfortunate season. After three victories, it was deemed advisable to cancel the remaining games of the schedule. Horace Mann School had a disastrous season, losing all of its games.

In the Southern section of the Middle States, the Army and Navy Prep School, harring, of course, Tome School, seemed to be the strongest. It scored victories over Episcopal High and Georgetown Prep, and played good foot ball all season.

Montclair Military Academy had a good season, losing only to the Kingsley School. In Hazel, at full-back, Montclair had one of the strongest line smashers in scholastic ranks.

The Roman Catholic High School of Philadelphia revived the game after two years and, considering the fact that there was only one candidate who had played the game before, the team made a fine showing. In Frank Greer, at center, and Panzullo, at left end, Coach Greer developed two players who were the best in Philadelphia in their positions.

The preparatory schools also made a distinct advance in the development of the game. Many of the teams had players who were very adept in throwing or receiving the forward pass, dropping goals from the field or in double or triple pass plays.

If comparison were to be made between the high school and the preparatory school teams, it would be necessary to state that the big preparatory schools had somewhat better teams than the best of the high schools. This would apply, however, only to three or four teams. On the whole, however, the high school teams would prove to be better than the preparatory school elevens. There is no doubt that the high schools are coming on very fast in this as in other branches of sport and in a short time will outrank ordinary prep schools in foot ball.

RHODE ISLAND STATE COLLEGE, KINGSTON, R. I.

Foot Ball in New England

BY JOHN J. HALLAHAN, BOSTON, MASS.

Another foot ball season passed into history in 1914, with Dartmouth, the strongest of the New England colleges playing the gridiron game, failing to get a chance to measure its style of play with Harvard. The latter had a remarkable eleven. So did Dartmouth, but because of the strained relations between the Green and the Crimson there was no game, and is not likely to be any for another few years. Dartmouth suffered but one setback. It lost to Princeton, 16 to 12, and with that defeat any chance the Hanoverians had of being placed on the same pedestal as Harvard was lost. The "Big Green" showing during the past season was another grand tribute to the coaching of Frank Cavanaugh, whose services have been retained for another three years by Dartmouth. Cavanaugh had a hard task ahead of him at the opening of the 1914 season, but being a grand student of the game and a tireless worker, developed a team which compares favorably with any of the great elevens which have represented the New Hampshire institution.

While failing to defeat Princeton, Dartmouth scored triumphs over Williams, an aggregation that held Princeton to a 7 to 7 tie, the week after the Tigers had clawed the Green, and smothered Tufts, a team that made Harvard hustle to win. Pennsylvania and Syracuse, the latter which had defeated Michigan, were two other strong teams humbled by big scores. The record against these colleges caused more than one of the alumni of Dartmouth to regret that Harvard was not on the schedule. Dartmouth had the greatest scoring machine of the year, running up 359 points against 25 for nine opponents.

Dartmouth's showing was, of course, superior to the other New England colleges, but Williams, Colby and Tufts all covered themselves with glory. The Williams eleven suffered only one defeat, Dartmouth being the team to do the trick. In this game the Green's superior weight and speed won in the final quarter, the contest for three periods being a grand battle. Williams' greatest success was scored when it tied Princeton. In this contest the Berkshire Hills eleven led up to the last two minutes, when the Tigers saved themselves from being defeated.

Colby won the Maine intercollegiate championship, but was defeated by Tufts, 40 to 14, and after its championship series was over lost to the U. S. Naval Academy, at Annapolis, 31 to 21. Tufts opened up very strong, scoring decisive wins over New Hampshire State, Bates and Colby by large scores. Then the Medford boys tackled Harvard, and on a muddy field gave the Crimson eleven a merry battle. Harvard won, 13 to 6, but Tufts, a small college, had the consolation of carrying the ball from its own twenty-five-yard line down the field across the Harvard goal line for a touchdown, after being set back three times for holding. That achievement was glory enough for Tufts, and undoubtedly had its effect, for Rutgers, after scouting the Medford team for a couple of games, gave the Tuftonians another setback. Dartmouth gave Tufts its worst defeat, the Green walking all over the Medford boys, 68 to 0. Despite that drubbing, Tufts finished its season with the defeat of Bowdoin, 60 to 7.

There were many interesting contests, but the showing of Brown in the latter end of the season was indicative of greater ability than its record shows. The Brunonians suffered because of their failure to develop as fast as the early season games promised. The outcome of the game with Amherst, which resulted in neither team scoring, was a disappointment, although Brown played the better game. Cornell trounced Brown, but the "Little Rhody" boys came back strong and forced both Yale and Harvard, holding the Elis to a 14 to 6 result, and showing their real capabilities for the first time. Against Harvard, Brown arose to the occasion and held the big Houghton squad to no score tie, the outcome of this game making Brown's season a successful one.

 AMHERST (MASS.) COLLEGE.

The Maine intercollegiate games were productive of large scores, Colby defeating Maine, 14 to 0, in the final struggle, after it had defeated Bowdoin, 48 to 0, and Bates, 68 to 0. Maine had victories over Bates and Bowdoin before meeting Colby. Maine had been winner of the championship for a few years, but, different from other years, Colby got even with its great rival. Bowdoin and Bates were much weaker than in past years. However, with Colby and Maine losing players through graduation, these teams expect to furnish keener competition in 1915.

The season at Amherst could hardly be claimed a success, for with no score ties with Trinity and Brown, defeats were sustained in the contests with Bowdoin, Dartmouth, Springfield Y. M. C. A. College and Williams. Only two wins were scored, Middlebury and Wesleyan being the teams to be defeated. Wesleyan also had a hard time, and Holy Cross, which the year before met all of the larger colleges only, had a no score tie with Carlisle and a victory over Boston College to look back at.

Boston College made a fine showing. It was the best that the Old Gold and Maroon has done in years, Holy Cross, Bowdoin and Fordham being the teams to beat it. The team finished its season with a win over the Catholic University of Washington, D. C., and indications point to a brilliant future in foot ball at Boston College.

Trinity, Massachusetts Agricultural, Springfield Y. M. C. A. College, Vermont, and Worcester Polytechnic Institute, found their opponents tough, although the Y. M. C. A. College did extremely well by securing wins over Holy Cross, Worcester, Polytechnic, Massachusetts "Aggies," Norwich, Middlebury and Amherst.

There were many clever players in New England colleges, for the most part the work of the men in the back-field was the most brilliant. Ghee of Dartmouth, Fraser of Colby, Whitney of Dartmouth, Toolan of Williams, Parks and Wescott of Tufts, and Murphy and Clark of Brown, were stars who would have been a great help to either Princeton or Yale. They were equal to playing the open game or puncturing the line.

The selection of a high class All-New England College Eleven is not such a hard task, but such an eleven would hardly be complete without the following:

ALL-NEW ENGLAND ELEVEN.

Telfer (Dartmouth) and LaPlante (Williams), ends.
 McAuliffe (Dartmouth) and O'Donnell (Tufts), tackles.
 Spears (Dartmouth) and Eells (Williams), guards.
 Mitchell (Brown), center.
 Ghee (Dartmouth), quarter-back.
 Toolan (Williams) and Fraser (Colby), half-backs.
 Whitney (Dartmouth), full-back.

Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn.—Considering the handicap under which the team worked by the loss of Captain Kenan, and of Captain-elect Hingeley during most of the schedule, the season proved entirely successful. The playing of Captain Kenan, at full-back, when in form, was the stellar feature, and the winning from Bowdoin and Trinity, by drop-kicks from the forty-yard line, was especially popular.

Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va. Washington and Lee, after having met with only one defeat in 1912 and one in 1913, passed through 1914 without being defeated, and was scored on only twice. This splendid record was due partly to the advent of the new coach—Elcock of Dartmouth—and partly to the excellent material willed him by his predecessor—Down of Princeton. Shultz, the new captain, was picked as an All-America player by the foot ball critic of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, and Shultz, half-back; Young, center; Pierotti, and guard Scarry won places on All-Southern teams. Captain Donahue, quarter-back, was one of the team's stars and had he been able to play all through the game against Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Washington and Lee probably would have won by more than one point. Half-back Young again led his teammates in scoring. The Generals possibly would have won more recognition from the Northern critics had they played teams that were better known, but they defeated everything in their own section and claimed the championship, Virginia also putting in a claim for it. Next season Washington and Lee figures on Cornell's schedule.

Foot Ball in Maryland

BY JOHN L. DAY.

When the curtain fell on the foot ball season of 1914 there were three colleges which believed they were entitled to claim the championship of Maryland. Of the three, Maryland Agricultural, St. John's and Mount St. Mary's, the last named institution had the only team that did not meet defeat, but the writer eliminates it from the race, inasmuch as it was obliged to discontinue the schedule. Prior to this Mount St. Mary's had defeated two State colleges and loomed up strong in the championship class.

As to the choice between Maryland "Aggies" and St. John's many critics gave the distinction to the former, by virtue of that team's victory over St. John's, but the latter defeated Western Maryland by a decisive score, which team triumphed over the "Aggies" in the early season. It may be said that the "Aggies" received a poor start, but surpassed expectations in midseason when they won over both St. John's and Johns Hopkins. The St. John's eleven seemed to take on new life after the "Aggies" game, and Coach Wilson developed a powerful offensive machine, which used the open style of play to great advantage.

The other college teams included in the State, aside from the "Aggies," St. John's and Mount St. Mary's, are: Johns Hopkins, Western Maryland, Washington and Rock Hill. Johns Hopkins and Rock Hill played far below their usual form and of the two, Hopkins scored only one State victory. Washington and Western Maryland each enjoyed a more successful season than in 1913. The Westminster eleven surpassed expectations when it closed the season with a well earned victory over Johns Hopkins. Coach Kibler of Washington College developed a splendid offensive team and his men should be heard from in 1915.

In regard to the preparatory school championship of the State, Tome School receives the undisputed honors. The team was the best that ever represented the Port Deposit institution and its clean cut victory over Hill School showed the real caliber of the eleven. The annual game between Baltimore Polytechnic Institute and Baltimore City College, which is the most important interscholastic struggle in the State, was won by the former by a goal from the field. Tome School defeated both of these teams in the early season.

An All-State team, which is practically the choice of all critics, follows:

ALL-MARYLAND ELEVENS.

FIRST ELEVEN.

Andrews (St. John's) and Frampton (Washington), ends.
 Wilkinson (Johns Hopkins) and Dowdle (Mount St. Mary's), tackles.
 Oberlein (Maryland "Aggies") and Bowland (Maryland "Aggies"), guards.
 Twigg (Western Maryland), center.
 Heiss (St. John's), quarter-back.
 Bowen (St. John's) and Hoffman (Johns Hopkins), half-back.
 Turner (St. John's), full-back.

SECOND ELEVEN.

Noble (St. John's) and Sutton (Mount St. Mary's), ends.
 Graefe (Western Maryland) and Stohlman (Mount St. Mary's), tackles.
 Tarbutton (Maryland "Aggies") and Dwyer (Mount St. Mary's), guards.
 Rice (Mount St. Mary's), center.
 Knode (Maryland "Aggies"), quarter-back.
 Garret (Western Maryland) and Bright (Washington), half-backs.
 Dwyer (Washington), full-back.

Central Board on Officials

The members of the Rules Committee especially desire to express their appreciation of the services of the Chairman of the Board on Officials, Dr. James A. Babbitt, and, by a special unanimous vote, at the meeting held in New York, instructed the Chairman of the Rules Committee to give expression to their views upon this point. They feel that the body of men selected by Dr. Babbitt and his Board has been one of the most instrumental forces in the betterment of the game and they take this opportunity of expressing the thanks of the Committee, as well as foot ball men throughout the country, to Dr. Babbitt for his work in this connection.

(Signed) E. K. HALL, Chairman Rules Committee.

The Rules Committee fully endorses the work of its Central Board and recommends and will use its utmost influence in urging colleges and universities within its central field to accept neutral appointments by the Board, if in general managers' meeting such action be voted favorably, and further requests the managers and coaches to co-operate with the Board in securing stated appointments for major games on or before October 1 of each year.

The Rules Committee also reappointed the Central Board, constituted as before, approved the general plan as outlined by the Chairman of the Board, and voted a regular budget of $1,500, arranged as heretofore by Chairmen and Secretary of Rules Committee, to be assigned the Chairman of the Board for 1915 expenses, with an additional extraordinary budget expense not to exceed $500. (The Chairman and members of the Central Board receive no remuneration for their services.)

The Rules Committee further advise the Central Board on Officials to continue their work upon the same general lines as heretofore, and the Secretary was asked, in addition, to send out lists of officials to the Rules Committee for their perusal and comment.

Alterations in the Rules

The principal alterations in the playing rules for the season of 1915 are as follows:

Interferers will no longer be permitted to knock down the secondary defense after the whistle blows, nor will the defense either be permitted to run into a man after the whistle blows.

The presence of a Field Judge has been made obligatory, and the watch has been taken away from the Linesman and given to the Field Judge so as to make it possible for the Linesman to be more observant of all the matters coming within his provinces, like the above, and "beating" the starting signal.

No longer will throwing the ball out of bounds be substituted by teams for a kick, for a forward pass going out of bounds on the fly, whether it touches a man or not, is now ruled as an incompleting forward pass.

The flocking of substitutes in the last period has been stopped and no re-substitution will be allowed except at the beginning of a period.

The protection of the full-back has been somewhat altered. The rule has been divided into two parts—running into the full-back, and "roughing" the full-back. Running into the full-back is penalized 15 yards, but "roughing" the full-back is penalized 15 yards and disqualification as well.

The Committee recommended that the players be numbered.

At the same time they passed a vote deprecating the putting in of substitutes for the purpose of conveying information.

The penalty for unsportsmanlike conduct was changed to 15 yards, but the power was placed in the hands of the official to disqualify for flagrant conduct.

In snapping the ball back, the center may not hold it after he has made the motion; he must actually let the ball go. This prevents a play that had been practised, consisting of the center holding the ball after he had apparently snapped it and someone coming around behind him and taking the ball from his hands.

The peculiar method of blocking and interfering which has been increasing, wherein men throw their legs up in the air, has been ruled out, for throwing the legs and striking with the lower leg a man above the knee will be penalized 15 yards. The rules already provide that striking a man in the same way below the knee is "tripping."

Another provision was made that unless the captain requests a lesser distance, the referee will always bring the ball out from the side line 15 yards.

If a second eligible man touches a forward pass after it has been first touched by an eligible player, it is simply an incompleting forward pass with the loss of a down.

Several corrective changes were made in the rules but not altering the method of play. There is also appended a set of approved rulings which clear up some disputed points.

RULE I.

FIELD.

SECTION 1. The game shall be played upon a rectangular field, 360 feet in length and 160 feet in width. The lines at the ends of the field shall be termed End Lines.

Those at the sides shall be termed Side Lines and shall extend indefinitely beyond their points of intersection with the goal lines.

The Goal Lines shall be established in the field of play ten yards from and parallel to the end lines. The space bounded by the goal lines and the side lines shall be termed the Field of Play.

The spaces bounded by the goal lines, the end lines and the side lines shall be termed the End Zones.

SECTION 2. These lines shall be marked in white. The Field of Play shall be marked at intervals of five yards with white lines parallel to the goal lines.

NOTE.—Previous to the beginning of play, the Referee shall see that the field is properly marked.

SECTION 3. The goal posts shall be placed in the middle of each goal line, shall exceed 20 feet in height and be placed 18 feet 6 inches apart, with a horizontal cross-bar 10 feet from the ground.

RULE II.

BALL.

SECTION 1. The ball shall be made of leather, enclosing a rubber bladder. It shall be tightly inflated and shall have the shape of a prolate spheroid—Circumference, long axis, from 28 inches to  $28\frac{1}{2}$  inches; short axis, from  $22\frac{1}{2}$  inches to 23 inches; Weight, from 14 ounces to 15 ounces.

RULE II.

RULE III.*PLAYERS AND SUBSTITUTES.

NOTE.—For the purpose of designating the positions the accompanying diagram is inserted.

NAMING OF PLAYERS IN CUSTOMARY POSITION ON OFFENSE.

Substitutes. SECTION 2. A player may be substituted for another at any time, but, before engaging in play, or communicating with any members of his team, he must report to the Referee or Umpire. A player who has been withdrawn from the game may return once, at the beginning of a subsequent period. A player disqualified or suspended may not return to the game.

goal line from the spot of the down during which the illegal substitution was made. If play shall have intervened between the illegal substitution and its discovery, the penalty shall be enforced from the spot where the illegal substitution was discovered.

NOTE—The Committee deprecates putting in of substitutes for the purpose of conveying information.

SECTION 3. No player having projecting nails or iron plates on his shoes or any projecting metallic or hard substance on his person shall be allowed in the game. If head protectors are worn, no sole leather, papier mache, or other hard or unyielding substance shall be used in their construction. All devices for protection must be so arranged and padded as, in the judgment of the Umpire, to be without danger to other players. Leather cleats upon the shoes shall be allowed.

Equipment of Players.

PENALTY

(UMPIRE)

Suspension, unless the fault is corrected within two minutes.

NOTE—The Committee recommends that all players be numbered.

RULE IV.

LENGTH OF GAME.

SECTION 1. The length of the game shall be 60 minutes, divided into four periods of 15 minutes each, exclusive of time taken out, although it may be of shorter duration by mutual agreement between representatives of the contesting teams.

Length of Periods.

In case no such agreement has been reached 10 minutes after the time scheduled for beginning the game, the Referee shall order the game to proceed and the full time shall be played.

Darkness. SECTION 2. Whenever the commencement of a game is so late that, in the opinion of the Referee, there is any likelihood of the game being interfered with by darkness, he shall, before play begins, arbitrarily shorten the four periods to such length as shall insure four equal periods being completed, and shall notify both captains of the exact time thus set.

(REFEREE)

For refusal to abide by the opinion of the Referee under Section 2—Forfeiture of the game.

Intermission. SECTION 3. (a) There shall be one minute intermission between the first and second periods and between the third and fourth periods, during which time no player shall leave the field of play, nor shall any representative of either team be allowed on the field of play, except as provided for in Rule XXIV., Sections 2 and 3.

(REFEREE, UMPIRE)

Loss of 15 yards.

(b) There shall be fifteen minutes intermission between the second and third periods. The Referee shall cause both teams to be notified three minutes before said intermission has expired. Fifteen minutes after the close of the second period, the Referee shall blow his whistle on the field, and in case either team is not ready to play within two minutes thereafter, the offending side shall forfeit such option as it may have possessed under the provisions of Rule VII, Section 1 (a) and be penalized 25 yards—the ball to be put in play by a scrimmage. The offended side may elect whether it will put the ball in play on its opponents' 35-yard line or whether the offending side shall put the ball in play on its own 15-yard line.

SECTION 4. Time shall not be called for the end of a period until the ball is dead, but in case of a touchdown the try-at-goal shall be allowed. In case of a fair catch, made after time has expired, the kick shall be allowed and time shall be called when the ball is next declared dead. Time extended.

RULE V.*SCORING.

The game shall be decided by the final score at the end of the four periods. The following shall be the value of plays in scoring: Scoring.

Touchdown, 6 points.

Goal from touchdown, 1 point.

Goal from the field, 3 points.

Safety by opponents, 2 points.

The score of a forfeited game shall be 1 to 0 in favor of the offended side.

RULE VI.*DEFINITIONS.

SECTION 1. A Place-kick is made by kicking the ball after it has been placed on the ground. Place-kick.

A Kick-off is the term used to designate the opening play of the first and third periods and it shall consist of a place-kick from the 40-yard line of the team entitled to kick. Kick-off.

RULE VI.

After a goal from the field and after a try-at-goal following touchdown, the ball must be put in play by a kick-off.

Punt. A Punt is made by dropping the ball from the hand or hands and kicking it before it touches the ground.

Punt-out. A Punt-out is a punt made by a player of the side which has made a touchdown to another of his own side for a fair catch.

Drop-kick. A Drop-kick is made by dropping the ball from the hand or hands and kicking it the instant it rises from the ground.

Free-kick. A Free-kick is any kick when the opponents are restrained by rule from advancing beyond a certain point before the ball is put in play, and includes Kick-off, Punt-out, Kick from a Fair Catch, and Place-kick for Goal after a touchdown.

Snapping the ball. SECTION 2. Snapping the ball is putting it back from its position on the ground with one quick and continuous motion of the hand or hands, the ball actually leaving the hands on this motion.

Scrimmage. SECTION 3. A Scrimmage takes place when the holder of the ball places it flat upon the ground, with its long axis at right angles to the line of scrimmage, and puts it in play by snapping it back. The scrimmage does not end until the ball is dead.

If the snapper-back does not hold the long axis of the ball as specified, the ball must be put in play over again.

Line of Scrimmage. The Line of Scrimmage for each side is an imaginary line parallel to the goal line and passing through that point of the ball nearest the side's own goal line.

It is evident from the foregoing definition that there must be two lines of scrimmage, one for each side, thus separating the two forward lines by a space equal to the length of the ball. This space is known as the neutral zone and may not be encroached upon until the ball is put in play. Neutral Zone.

SECTION 4. A player is Off-side when the ball has last been touched by one of his own side behind him. Off-side.

SECTION 5. A Fair Catch is made by catching the ball after it has been kicked by one of the opponents and before it touches the ground, or in similarly catching a punt-out by another of the catcher's own side, provided the player (except in case of punt-out, where no signal is necessary), while advancing toward the ball, signals his intention of making a fair catch by raising his hand clearly above his head and does not take more than two steps after making the catch. Fair Catch.

(See illustrations Nos. 9 and 10, Page 154.)

It is not a fair catch if, after the kick, the ball is touched by another of the catcher's side before the catch. Not a fair catch.

The mark of the catch is the spot at which the ball is actually caught. Mark of catch.

Opportunity to make a fair catch is where the player is in such a position that it would be possible for him to reach the ball before it touches the ground. Opportunity to make fair catch.

SECTION 6. A Goal from Touchdown is made by kicking the ball from the field of Goal from Touchdown play over the cross-bar of the opponents' goal, by a place-kick direct, or by a place-kick preceded by a punt-out.

If the ball passes directly over one of the uprights, or if, after being kicked, it strikes an opponent and then passes over the cross-bar or one of the uprights, it shall count a goal. In no case shall it count a goal if the ball, after leaving the kicker's foot, touches the ground before passing over the cross-bar or uprights.

Goal from the Field. SECTION 7. A Goal from the Field is made by kicking the ball from the field of play over the cross-bar of the opponents' goal in any way except by a punt or a kick-off.

If the ball passes directly over one of the uprights, or if, after being kicked, it strikes an opponent and then passes over the cross-bar or one of the uprights, it shall count a goal. In no case shall it count a goal if the ball, after leaving the kicker's foot, touches the ground before passing over the cross-bar or uprights.

Foul. SECTION 8. A Foul is any violation of a rule.

Out of Bounds. SECTION 9. The ball is Out of Bounds when either the ball or any part of the player who holds it touches the ground on or outside the side line or side line extended.

Tripping. SECTION 10. Tripping is obstructing a player below the knee with the hand or with that part of the obstructing player's leg that is below the knee. Mere diving under the play is not tripping.

RULE VI.

SECTION 11. Hurdling, as used in the Hurdling- rules, applies only to the man carrying the ball.

Hurdling in the open is jumping over or attempting to jump over an opponent who is still on his feet. (A man who is on his knee may be hurdled without penalty.)

Hurdling in the line is jumping over or attempting to jump over a player on the line of scrimmage, with both feet or both knees foremost, within the distance of 5 yards on either side of the point where the ball was put in play.

NOTE.—Merely stepping over a prostrate player, though the player so doing may have both feet in the air at the same time, is not construed as being within the definition or prohibition of hurdling.

SECTION 12. A Down occurs when the Down- Referee blows his whistle or declares the ball dead.

NOTE—The Referee should never blow his whistle to indicate a foul while the ball is in play, but, if he inadvertently does so, the ball is dead and the play shall stop.

SECTION 13. The Ball is Dead (and no Ball is dead. play can be made with it except according to rule):

When the Referee blows his whistle or declares that a down, fair catch, touch-down, touchback, safety or goal has been made.

The Referee shall blow his whistle or declare the ball dead:

(a) When a player having the ball goes out of bounds, cries "down," or is so held that his forward progress is stopped, or when any portion of his person, except his hands or feet, touches the ground while he is in the grasp of an opponent;

RULE VI.

(b) When the ball goes out of bounds after a kick, before touching a player who is on-side;

(c) When a forward pass is declared illegal or becomes an incompleting pass, or when the ball, after being passed forward, goes out of bounds, or over the opponents' end line, or strikes the ground in the end zone, or strikes the opponents' goal bar or posts;

(d) When a kicked ball, except one scoring a goal, strikes the opponents' goal bar or posts before being touched by a player of either side; or, when a kicked ball, except one from kick-off or free kick, goes over the opponents' goal line before being touched by a player of either side.

Of course the provisions of Section 13 (c) and (d) do not apply in the case where a forward pass or kick is made by a team from behind its own goal line.

(e) When on a try-at-goal after touchdown the goal has either been made or missed;

(f) During enforcement of penalties.

Unless otherwise specified the ball is dead at the spot where it was when the Referee blew his whistle or declared it dead.

Touchdown.

SECTION 14. A Touchdown is made when the ball, lawfully in possession of a player, is declared dead by the Referee, any part of it being on, above, or behind the opponents' goal line.

RULE VI.

The Touchdown is marked at the point, not where the ball is carried across the line, but where the ball is declared dead by the Referee. If the ball is carried across the extension of the side line, the touchdown is marked at the intersection of the side line and the goal line.

SECTION 15. A Touchback is made when the ball in possession of a player guarding his own goal is declared dead by the Referee, any part of it being on, above, or behind the goal line, provided the impetus which sent it to or across the line was given by an opponent. Touchback.

It is a Touchback when a kicked ball (other than one from kick-off, free kick, or one scoring a goal from the field) goes over the goal line before being touched by a player of either side. If any kicked ball strikes the uprights or cross-bar before being touched by a player of either side, unless it scores a goal, it shall be considered a touchback.

It is a Touchback when a player who is off-side and within the opponents' 10-yard line is touched by a ball kicked by one of his own side.

NOTE—This penalty may be declined.

It is a Touchback when a forward pass crosses either the end line or side line extended; when it strikes the goal posts or cross-bar, or when it touches the ground within the end zone. See, however, Rule XVIII, Sec. 6.

It is a Touchback if any interference with the interception of a forward pass is committed behind the opponents' goal line by the side which put the ball in play.

RULE VI.

It is a Touchback when a player on defense permits a ball, kicked by an opponent, to strike his person and then roll across his goal line and he or any player of his side then falls on it back of the line.

Not a Touchback. It is not a Touchback if such player juggles the ball so that he in any way forces it over the line and he or any player of his side then falls on it.

Safety. SECTION 16. A Safety is made when the ball in possession of a player guarding his own goal is declared dead by the Referee, any part of it being on, above or behind the goal line, provided the impetus which caused it to pass from outside the goal line to or behind the goal line was given by the side defending the goal. Such impetus could come :

(a) From a kick, pass, snap-back, or fumble by one of the player's own side;

(b) From a kick which bounds back from an opponent or from one of the kicker's own side, who, when struck, is behind his goal line;

(c) In case a player carrying the ball is forced back, provided the ball was not declared dead by the Referee before his goal line was reached or crossed.

A Safety is made when a player of the side in possession of the ball makes a forward pass which becomes incompletd behind his goal line, or commits a foul which would give the ball to the opponents behind the offender's goal line, or commits a foul the penalty for which would leave the ball in possession of his team behind its own goal line.

RULE VI.

A Safety is made when the ball, kicked by a man behind his goal line, crosses the extended portion of either side line before being touched by an opponent.

SECTION 17. Crawling is an attempt by the runner to advance the ball after it has been declared dead. Crawling.

RULE VII.

KICK-OFF

SECTION 1. (a) The captains of the opposing teams shall toss up a coin before the game. The winner of the toss shall have the choice of goal or kick-off, which choice shall not be revokable. If the winner of the toss selects the goal, the loser must kick-off. The loser of the toss shall have the same privileges at the beginning of the third period as the winner of the toss had at the beginning of the game. First and third periods.

(b) At the beginning of the second and fourth periods the teams shall change goals, the possession of the ball, the down, the relative spot of the down and the distance to be gained to remain the same as at the termination of the preceding period. Second and fourth periods.

(c) The teams shall not change goals after a try-at-goal following a touchdown, nor after a goal from the field, but the side just scored upon shall have the option of kicking off or having their opponents kick off. After scoring.

SECTION 2. At kick-off, if the ball is kicked across the goal line and is there declared dead when in the possession of one of the side defending the goal, it is a touchback. Ball kicked across goal line.

RULE VII.

If the ball is not declared dead, the side defending the goal may run with it or kick it exactly as if it had not crossed the goal line.

If it is declared dead in possession of one of the attacking side, provided that he was on-side, it is a touchdown.

RULE VIII.*POSITION OF PLAYERS AT KICK-OFF.

Point of Kick-off. SECTION 1. The side having the kick-off shall kick-off from its own 40-yard line at a point equidistant from the side lines.

Kicker's side. SECTION 2. The kicker's side shall be behind the ball when it is kicked.

PENALTY (UMPIRE)

The ball shall be kicked off again from a point 5 yards directly back of the original mark and a new restraining line for the opponents shall be established 5 yards nearer the goal line of the kicker's side.

Opponents. SECTION 3. The opponents shall be behind a line 10 yards in front of the ball until the ball is kicked.

PENALTY (LINESMAN)

The ball shall be kicked off again from a point which may be 5 yards nearer opponents' goal if the kicking side so desires, and a new restraining line for the opponents shall be established 5 yards nearer the opponents' goal.

RULE IX.*POSITION OF PLAYERS AT SCRIMMAGE.

Seven players on scrimmage line. SECTION 1. When the ball is put in play by a scrimmage, at least seven players of the side holding the ball shall be on the line of scrimmage.

A player shall be considered to be on the line of scrimmage if he has both hands or both feet up to or within one foot of this line, or if he has one foot and the opposite hand up to or within one foot of it. He shall also stand with both feet outside the outside foot of the player next to him, unless he be one of the two men standing on either side of and next to the snapper-back (commonly known as guards), in which case he may lock legs with the snapper-back.

Player on

The point to be gained shall remain the same.

If, however, such offense occurs after a fourth down has been declared (i. e., if it occurs during a play following a fourth down) the ball shall go to the opponents at the spot of the preceding down.

SECTION 1. Any player may, at any time, pass or throw the ball in any direction except toward his opponents' goal. A backward pass by the snapper-back on the first, second or third down, which goes out of bounds, shall belong (at the point where the ball crossed the side line) to the side first recovering it; it shall count as a down if recovered by the passer's side; on the fourth down, the ball shall go to the opponents at the point where it went out of bounds.

SECTION 3. A player of the side which put the ball in play from a scrimmage may pass or throw the ball any distance toward the opponents' goal under the following restrictions:

(a) The pass must be made from a point at least 5 yards back of the scrimmage line. Forward pass must be from 5 yards back.

PENALTY*(REFEREE)

If such offense occurs before a "fourth down" has been declared (i.e., if it occurs during a play following either a first, second or third down) the offending side shall put the ball in play at the spot of the preceding down and the play shall count as a down. The point to be gained shall remain the same.

If, however, such offense occurs after a fourth down has been declared (i. e., if it occurs during a play following a fourth down), the ball shall go to the opponents at the spot of the preceding down.

Position of feet

in end zone.

SECTION 6. If the ball, after having been legally passed forward, goes into the end zone, the position of the feet of any legal player receiving the ball and not the position of the ball itself, shall determine whether it is a properly completed forward pass within the end zone (i. e., if the player so catching it has at the time a foot or part of a foot on or outside the side line or the end line, it is a touchback).

Players who
forward pass.

SECTION 7. (a) After the ball has been legally passed forward, it may first be touched only by such players of the passer's side as were at the time the ball was put in play at least 1 yard behind the line of scrimmage or were playing at either end of the said line.

NOTE.—It follows that a player who is more than one foot back of the scrimmage line and not one yard back of the scrimmage line is not eligible in any event to receive a forward pass. He cannot receive it as being the player on the end of the scrimmage line, for he is not on the scrimmage line under Rule IX, Section 1. He cannot receive it as a player back of the scrimmage line, because he is not at least one yard back.

RULE XVIII.

If a player of the passer's side so legally touches the ball, he only of his side may recover or attempt to secure possession of the ball until it touches the ground or is touched by an opponent.

If a forward pass, after having been touched by an eligible player of the passer's side, is touched by another player of that side, who was originally "eligible" (before the ball has been touched by an opponent), the pass shall not be considered as completed.

PENALTY

For such incompleting forward pass same as Section 3 (a).

If a forward pass is touched by any player of the passer's side who is ineligible to receive it, the pass shall not be considered as completed. Forward pass touched by ineligible player.

PENALTY

(UMPIRE)

If any ineligible player of the passer's side touches the ball, it shall go to the opponents at the spot of the preceding down, unless the foul occurred between the opponents' 10-yard line and their end line, in which case the ball may go as a touch-back to the offended side.

(b) Any player of the side which did not make the forward pass has full right to touch and to attempt to secure possession of the ball until it has touched the ground.

(c) When the ball has been legally passed forward and has been touched by any player of the side not making the pass, any player of either side has the right to attempt to secure possession of the ball until it has touched the ground.

RULE XVIII.

Forward pass out of bounds. SECTION 8. If the ball, after having been legally passed forward, goes out of bounds before it touches the ground, unless it be touched by an ineligible player, the pass shall not be considered as completed.

(REFEREE)

If such offense occurs before a fourth down has been declared (i. e., if it occurs during a play following either a first, second or third down), the offending side shall put the ball in play at a spot 10 yards back of the preceding down and the play shall count as a down. The point to be gained shall remain the same. If, however, such offense occurs after a fourth down has been declared (i. e., if it occurs during a play following a fourth down), the ball shall go to the opponents at a spot 10 yards back of the preceding down.

RULE XIX.*OFF-SIDE AND ON-SIDE.

Off-side. SECTION 1. A player is put off-side if the ball in play has last been touched by one of his own side behind him. No player, however, may be called off-side while behind his own goal line, nor when holding the ball for a place-kick after a fair catch or touchdown.

When off-side player may touch ball. SECTION 2. A player may at all times receive the ball from another of his own side who is in front of him, and any player may recover the ball on a fumble or a muff, but in no other instance shall a player when off-side touch the ball. [Apparent violations of the off-side rule by players attempting either legally or illegally to receive a forward pass are to be judged solely under the provisions of Rule XVIII.]

(UMPIRE)

When an off-side player within his opponents' 10-yard line is touched by a ball kicked by one of his own side—Touchback for defenders of goal.

In all other cases—Ball to go to the opponents on the spot where the foul occurred.

SECTION 3. A player who is off-side is put on-side when the ball touches an opponent.

Ball after distance penalty not in advance of point necessary for first down in previous play.

Both sides penalized on same play.      SECTION 8. In case one official signals a foul against one side and another official signals a foul against the other side, on the same play, the ball shall be brought back to the point where it was put in play and be played over again, the number of the down and the point to be gained for first down remaining the same.

Approved Rulings

A forward pass is caught simultaneously by a member of the passer's side and by an opponent. Ruled: Possession of the ball belongs to side putting the ball in play.

A member of side kicking ball is touched by ball when off-side. Ruled: The ball is not automatically dead; play may ensue and penalty may be declined.

The ball is kicked off, goes less than ten (10) yards and is then kicked again. Ruled: As kicking loose ball.

Rule 6, Section 13 (a) should be followed strictly. That wherever the ball is advanced to, at that point the whistle should be blown, that being the point where the ball is dead.

Rule 16, Section 5. Two men signal for a fair catch; one touches the ball and the other gets it still on the fly. No run allowed and ball is dead.

An off-side play by opponents and an incompletd forward pass, or, holding in the line by opponents and an incompletd forward pass. The first offense takes precedence and hence the second is disregarded.

Rule 3, Section 2. Penalty for illegal return: Disqualify player, give half the distance to the goal line and notify Central Board.

Rule 18, Section 8. Position of the feet determines, the same as always, either in the end zone or out of bounds.

Foot Ball in Central New York

BY ELLERY C. HUNTINGTON, COLGATE UNIVERSITY.

Among the colleges in this geographical group, Cornell heads the list. For a season or two past, the work of the team of the State institution was not up to the usual high standard. Starting last season with very raw material in the line and an experienced back-field, the team developed slowly but surely. Yielding a game to Colgate and Pittsburgh early in the season, Cornell stiffened at mid-season to defeat Michigan, after that team had held Harvard to 7—0 the week before, and at the close of the season defeated Pennsylvania in the best and hardest game the Quakers had played.

Captain O'Hearn was deservedly All-America end. Of the men who played under him, Charley Barrett, Cool, at center, and Shelton, Collyer, Philippi and Gallogy bore the brunt of the work. Taber, a most promising man, was unfortunately hurt in an early game and was a serious loss to the team.

Colgate, too, started with raw material. An entire team had been lost by graduation, with the exception of two men on the line and two in the back-field. It was a great work of construction to develop a team around such a small nucleus, and to go through a season accepting defeat from West Point and Yale only. Captain Swarthout, Robinson at half, and Weber were the seniors on the team who did a great part of the work in every game. Robinson was especially spectacular in his running of the open field.

Syracuse again promised a great team at the opening of the season. A 12—7 defeat by Princeton was wiped out two weeks later by a 20—6 victory over Michigan. This was, perhaps, the high water mark of the season, for defeating Carlisle became such a common practice that it could scarcely be counted as a mark of signal importance. The games that followed did not come up to the expectation. Rutgers, 14—14; Colgate, 0—0; a 40—0 defeat by Dartmouth, and a 20—0 defeat by Notre Dame closed the season. As usual, the game of special interest in this section was the Colgate-Syracuse contest, at Syracuse. The largest crowd ever gathered in the Stadium was present. Schlacter was easily the great man of the team. He was well supported in the line by White and Woodruff. Rose and Wilkinson were the noticeable players in the back-field.

The season of 1914 was a successful one for Union College, which finished the season with eight victories and no defeats. Among the teams defeated were Wesleyan and New York Universities. Girling, Roof and Rosekrans, in the backfield; Captain Starbuck, at left end; Hokerk, at center, and Jenkins, at right tackle, were the mainstays.

The University of Rochester team did not have a very good record. It was composed mostly of new men, who had had little experience. The team played its best games against Syracuse, Colgate and Hobart, although the first two were defeats. Captain Chesbro, in the back-field, played a remarkably steady game, both offensive and defensive. Scott, at tackle, also played a good game.

Hamilton College had a light eleven, which was outclassed by most of the teams played. It, however, won from its old rivals, Hobart and St. Lawrence, for the first time in several years. La Force and Pope were clever with the forward pass.

St. Lawrence and Hobart developed well. Both started with much inexperienced material. It can be expected that each of these teams will show much better another season.

Last year Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute started its foot ball season with only three veterans to serve as a nucleus for a team. The first two games were defeats at the hands of Williams and Rutgers, two comparatively strong teams. Following these reverses R. P. I. defeated Middlebury, and on the next Saturday won from Hamilton. Defeats at the hands of New York University and Union were succeeded by a victory over Stevens, and the season ended by defeating Rochester on a field covered with snow.

HAMILTON COLLEGE, CLINTON, N. Y.

Gallagher, captain and left half-back, far outshone his team-mates in every game played, with his characteristic speed and coolheadedness.

HIGH SCHOOLS,

The keen interest in college foot ball in this section has had its influence on the secondary schools, and there is evidence among them of an awakening in this line of sport. There are many schools now which support fairly good teams, and such schools are not all confined to the cities. The organization of these high school and preparatory school teams does not as yet compare with that of the New England States, but there is year by year a marked advance. Much remains to be done in the matter of bringing these teams into relation with one another, in the way of intra and intercity league games, before we can compare with the East. The schools of Syracuse are the best organized in the section, but along the line of the Central Railroad there is great opportunity for town and city leagues.

Alfred (N. Y.) University.—The foot ball season at Alfred was a failure, in point of games won, but a new coaching system has been inaugurated which will almost be sure to turn out well. Captain Buck played good foot ball, as did Bliss, Maure, Crawford, Broad, and Pitts.

Adelphi Academy, Brooklyn, N. Y.—According to Manager Behman, victories over the Brooklyn schools gave Adelphi a clean title to the scholastic championship and the Keith trophy. Seven of the players were included in the Brooklyn Eagle's scholastic teams. They were: Donald Alfred, captain of first team; Donald Mackenzie, Harold Fishbeck, ends; Mortimer Jaquillard, tackle; Harry Leyser, half-back; A. Love, full-back, and Harry O'Brien, guard.

Baltimore City College, Baltimore, Md.—The college team got a poor start during the past season, probably due to the lateness in securing a coach. As the season advanced, however, the team came around to form and was not defeated until the last game, when it lost to its greatest rival, Polytechnic, by the score of 3-0. It was a hard-fought contest. Coach H. Brennick deserves great credit for the machine he built out of a green squad. The team scored a total of 104 points to its opponents' 91. Captain West, Weiskettel, Tall, Allen, Freedom and Lucy took turns at starring throughout the season.

Atlantic City (N. J.) High School.—The first part of the year the team did not pull together. It was not until the Trenton game that it got going. The principal game was with Central High School of Philadelphia. Atlantic City had not defeated that team in six years, but it was done this time, and at Philadelphia, too. The team of the battleship Connecticut outweighed Atlantic City, but through clever interference and quick plays the sailors were defeated. Craig, captain and half-back; Conover, center; Lippway, left tackle, and Duago, right end, were picked for the "All-Scholastic team of New Jersey.

Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa.—The season of 1914 was a surprise, as Allegheny did not expect to defeat Akron, Rochester or Carnegie Tech. The latter game was the big one, and the result entirely unexpected in Pittsburgh, in view of Tech's close games with Lehigh and University of Pittsburgh. It was featured by two touchdowns, from forward passes of thirty and thirty-five yards, respectively; two field goals, from the twenty-five and thirty-five yard line (place-kicks); Cox's sixty-yard run back of a punt and his five successful forward passes, and Munhall's line plunging. The team averaged 160 pounds, and for the first time in the history of the college, went through a season without a defeat.

Albright College, Myerstown, Pa.—This was the third season in foot ball for Albright since the game was abolished in 1904, and it was the most successful the college ever enjoyed. The Bucknell and Lafayette games had to be played with five 'varsity men off the field. The climax of the season was the meeting with Muhlenberg. All season the work was directed toward this game, which resulted in a 20-10 victory for Albright. The team was in perfect condition, and the fact that Muhlenberg played Bucknell to a tie several weeks before is noteworthy. Captain Benfer was not only the star of the team, but one of the best players that ever donned a uniform. He was selected by a number of experts for the All-America team, and his work all season well merited the selection. Hartle, at end, and Yost, at center, played a steady game, both holding their own at all times. Bullhart, at tackle, and Shambough, at guard, also showed high class. Parker, at half-back, proved a great punter and a capable drop-kicker. The fact is every man deserves credit for the season's success, for it was the team work that was always in evidence.

Foot Ball in West Virginia

BY BOYD B. CHAMBERS.

The championship of West Virginia for the third successive time goes to West Virginia Wesleyan. That college gained the undisputed title through its somewhat unexpected victory over West Virginia University in the season's climax on Thanksgiving Day. West Virginia is clearly entitled to second place, as it defeated both Marshall and Bethany, the only other colleges that produced first class teams. Marshall and Bethany are about alike for third place, with Bethany the stronger on the defense and Marshall's strength, as usual, lying in its offense. Davis and Elkins, though playing but few games, had a creditable eleven, while Morris Harvey through a change in the administration of school affairs and the coaching system, made a very poor showing until the last game.

The most important meetings were the Wesleyan-West Virginia and the Marshall-Morris Harvey games on Thanksgiving Day. The attendance at both these surpassed all previous records, and the games were good exhibitions, in which the open style prevailed. None of the other games can be called important owing to the great difference in strength between the two leading institutions and the rest. The Bethany-West Virginia, Marshall-West Virginia, Marshall-Wesleyan, and Davis and Elkins-West Virginia games were won in each instance by Wesleyan and West Virginia.

Surprising as was the improvement in the class of foot ball in the State in 1913 over that of previous years, 1914 showed an even greater advance in all phases of the sport—teams, players, coaches, officials, attendance, conduct of games and behavior of spectators. Manager Harry A. Stansbury of Wesleyan, has been the main factor in bringing the sport to the present high plane, as he has carried the Wesleyan team far ahead, thus compelling the others to develop better aggregations to keep pace with the Methodists. At least three teams ought to give the Buckhannon institution a great battle for honors next fall.

With teams outside of the State, West Virginia was not so successful as in 1913. The most noteworthy accomplishments were Wesleyan's victory over Virginia Poly, Wesleyan's touchdown against Washington and Jefferson, West Virginia's 6-8 score against Washington and Lee, and Marshall's defeat of Ohio Northern. Bethany had good success against the smaller Pennsylvania colleges.

Wesleyan, undefeated in three years by a State team and scored on by West Virginia only in that length of time, defeated Marshall, West Virginia, Virginia Poly and Dickinson; held Carlisle to 6-0, scored on Washington and Jefferson, and was defeated by Georgetown. Kellison, the best man in the State, was the main asset of the team, with Stansbury, Morrison, Shumaker and Heavnor almost indispensable. Coach Frank Mount Pleasant did well with the material at his disposal.

West Virginia had to build from the ground up, as its teams had been weak for a number of years. The showing the team made near the close of last season demonstrated how well Coach Sol Metzger succeeded, in spite of the fact that he was unable to be on the field for a long period because of a broken leg. The team's best performances were against Washington and Lee and North Carolina "Aggies." Washington and Jefferson, as was expected, piled up a big score, but against the smaller teams of Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio the university was irresistible. Leatherwood, through his sensational runs, was mainly responsible for most of the scores, while the work of Hite, Colebank and Curry was very good. Captain Davis and Mulenex also played consistent games.

Marshall was an in-and-outer all season, showing fine form one week, only to be outclassed the next. The men were very light and inexperienced and consequently were no match for the heavy teams met early in the season.

MARSHALL COLLEGE, HUNTINGTON, W. VA.

The showing the team made was due almost entirely to the fine arm of Nagle and the excellent all-around play of Reeser. The attack of the Normal was way above the average, with very little defense. It scored more points than any other West Virginia team in the last seven games and yet had more points scored against it than any of the first class teams.

Coach Roberts of Bethany built a powerful team around full-back Rodgers, one of the very best men the State has produced in years. Bethany played but one game with institutions within the State, and in that held West Virginia to thirteen points. Against Marietta, Carnegie and Geneva, the Bethany team made a good showing, while it smothered Waynesburg and Grove City.

Davis and Elkins held Marshall to six points, but was overwhelmed by West Virginia. Several teams cancelled on this eleven and for that reason no true line can be had on its real strength. Morris Harvey, after securing the services of Coach Shelton a few weeks before the close of the season, was able to hold Marshall to 32-6.

Wesleyan and Marshall, as usual, had great offensive power, through clever use of the forward pass, Wesleyan winning its important games by the air route and Marshall doing practically all its scoring the same way. Both were successful against weak and strong teams alike in this method of attack. In straight foot ball West Virginia was the class, but Wesleyan's passing was too much for the university. Leatherwood of West Virginia and Reeser of Marshall furnished most of the thrills in a season full of sensations. Each scored ten touchdowns. But it remained for Stansbury and Morrison of Wesleyan to pull the real sensation in the final game, when two long passes from Stansbury to Morrison netted the two touchdowns that meant victory and the State championship.

The fact that annually better teams and better officials are coming into the State speaks well for the way the sport is being handled. All the better institutions have announced schedules for 1915, which will be of even greater interest than those of 1914.

My All-West Virginia Eleven needs but few explanations. Leatherwood of West Virginia is the best man left off. Hite and Curry, also of West Virginia, deserve special mention, as does Captain Davis of the same team. Heavner of Wesleyan is the best punter, but the other ends add greater strength in other ways. The eleven follows:

Colebank (West Virginia) and Morrison (Wesleyan), ends,
 Kellison (Wesleyan) and Mullenex (West Virginia), tackles.
 Morgan (Wesleyan) and Brannon (West Virginia), guards.
 Callaham (Marshall), center.
 Stansbury (Wesleyan), quarter-back.
 Shumaker (Wesleyan) and Reeser (Marshall), half-backs.
 Rodgers (Bethany), full-back.

Windsor Collegiate Institute, Windsor, Ont., Canada.—Windsor Collegiate Institute originated the playing of American foot ball in Canada three years ago. It induced the high schools and colleges of Essex and Kent Counties to abandon the Canadian for the American game, and in 1914 demonstrated to Sarnia Collegiate Institute of Lambton County that the American game is superior. It is less dangerous and costs less to play because of the situation on the border. For three years Windsor has held the championship of Essex and Kent Counties, and in 1914 also claims that of Lambton County because of having defeated Sarnia, according to the American game, but was defeated by Canadian rules, owing to the team's unfamiliarity with the rules. Sarnia had played the American game before. The team play of Windsor was especially noted for its ability to hit the line and its success with the forward pass. In the former department Reid, full-back, and Murphy, right half-back, excelled, while in the latter, Wickham, right end, and Drulard, quarter-back, were the operators, the former doing the receiving and the latter passing. Wickham is well known for his speed, being an eleven seconds man. Brulard is a player of several years' experience, and has been throwing the forward pass for the last four years, until now he can put it just about where he wishes. His best pass in actual play was for forty-five yards. Others deserving of honorary mention are: Morrell, Nicholl, Ouellette and Pilon.

Foot Ball in the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association

BY HARRIS G. COPE,
Coach University of the South.

ALL-SOUTHERN INTERCOLLEGIATE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION ELEVEN.

End—Kearley, Alabama Poly.	End—Parker, U. of South.
Tackle—Vandergraffe, Alabama.	Quarter-back—Tolley, U. of South.
Guard—Kerr, Tennessee.	Half-back—Kimball, Mississippi "Aggies."
Center—Pitts, Alabama Poly.	Half-back—Curry, Vanderbilt.
Guard—Thigpen, Alabama Poly.	Full-back—Lindsay, Tennessee.
Tackle—Dobbins, U. of South.

The season of 1914 in Southern foot ball was one of the best in the history of Southern colleges. The ranking of the first eight teams in the Association follows:

First, Tennessee; second, Alabama Polytechnic Institute; third, University of the South; fourth, Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical College; fifth, Vanderbilt; sixth, Georgia; seventh, Clemson; eighth, Alabama.

Two undefeated institutions, Tennessee and Alabama Polytechnic Institute, did not meet, which was unfortunate. The board of arbitration decided that Tennessee was the champion of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, as it won all of its games, while Alabama Poly was tied once. For the second time the Carlisle Indians were defeated by a Southern team, first by Vanderbilt and second by Alabama Poly, which goes to show that Southern foot ball is advancing.

One undertaking, to select an All-Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association eleven, will be found to be more or less of an herculean task, there being a wealth of material for each position. While there are no men that stand out prominently above the field, such as McWhorter of Georgia, Hardage of Vanderbilt, Morrison of Vanderbilt, and Gillem of the University of the South, stars of former years, still we find for every position some man who is in every sense of the word a star. This, being only a S. I. A. A. selection, the teams of Virginia, North Carolina and Georgia Tech are not taken into consideration.

Of course, each team has one or more men that it considers worthy of this mythical eleven, but we are taking into consideration each and every point of a man's play in awarding this much coveted honor. The greatest trouble in making this selection is in choosing the back-field men. Many players of the first water stand out pre-eminently for their work. The line is more or less of an easy proposition. A host of candidates present themselves for the end positions.

Foremost among the men working the wing positions we find Kearley of Alabama Poly, Parker of the University of the South, Robinson of Alabama Poly, Carroll of Tennessee, and Cohen of Vanderbilt. From among this number Kearley stands out away and ahead of the remainder. He is fast, an absolutely sure and hard tackler, quick to take advantage of opponents' mistakes, winning one of the most important games of the season for his team by this latter characteristic, and at boxing tactics he has no superior in the South. It is without hesitation that we pick this man. Robinson of Alabama Poly played a steady and consistent game for his team. Carroll of Tennessee, showed flashes of form at times, but it was chiefly at receiving the forward pass that he shone. However, he was not consistent enough to deserve a place on the eleven. Cohen of Vanderbilt gives promise of being one of the best wing men in the South. His work in the University of the South game last season was especially noticeable. But ranking above all these men is Parker of the University of the South. He weighs 187 pounds and, being well over six feet and extremely fast, is invaluable at receiving the forward pass.

backs up the line on defense in a masterly manner, but he has this over the other ends, that he can advance the ball very effectively when called upon.

Dobbins of the University of the South was the best tackle, both defensively and offensively, in the South, and as a diagnostician of plays was without a peer, being the mainstay of his team on the defense where he backed up the line. Vandergraffe of Alabama is next in line. He is heavy, strong, and, above all, a wonderful punter, the best in the South. Among other men deserving especial mention are Louiselle of Alabama Poly, Schilleter of Clemson, and Kelly of Tennessee.

Thigpen of Alabama Poly gets the call over all other candidates for being the best guard in the South. He is heavy, well over 200 pounds, aggressive, and together with his running mate, Pitts, at center, were the main factors in Poly's success by their famous line-plunging tactics, and also were chiefly responsible in keeping the Plainsmen's goal line uncrossed. Next to Thigpen is Kerr of Tennessee. Playing his fourth year on the championship Tennessee team he was a very important cog in the power of the strong Volunteer line. He was one of the most consistent performers in the South. Other guards deserving of especial mention are Taylor of Alabama Poly, Taylor of Tennessee, and Hicks of Alabama.

Pitts was the best center in the South, and, in fact, could be classed with any other center in the country. Wells of Mississippi A. and M., Scott of the University of the South, and Henderson of Georgia were all good men.

There were many good quarter-backs and back-field men during the past season. No two writers picked the same quartette. In fact, never before was there such a plethora of back-field men, coupled with such uniform ability. As mentioned above there were no stars who really towered above the rest. The quarter-back position goes to Tolley of the University of the South. He possessed all the attributes of a sterling quarter-back. Paddock of Georgia was the most valuable man to his team and comes second. May of Tennessee was a good field general and a clever forward passer.

Curry of Vanderbilt, although light, was the fastest back in the South. He found no difficulty in making big gains against such teams as North Carolina, Virginia, and Michigan, and only an injury received in the early part of the game with the University of the South, on Thanksgiving Day, kept him no doubt from starring in that contest. We unhesitatingly give right half-back to this man. Kimball of Mississippi A. and M. was probably the best half-back of the year. His weight, coupled with speed, gave him the advantage of either plunging through the line or skirting the ends. With Curry for a running-mate, these two speed artists could bewilder any Southern team. Sikes of Vanderbilt, was a great defensive back, but his offensive strength was handicapped by injuries received early in the season. McArthur of Mississippi A. and M. was a splendid half-back.

Lindsay of Tennessee, was, in my opinion, a better full-back than Harris of Alabama Poly. Any good plunger could have gained, with Alabama Poly's line to clear the way, but Lindsay needed no hole. All he desired was the ball, and he would then drag the secondary defense for several yards. Thrash of Georgia, was a good plunger.

Georgetown University, Washington, D. C.—Georgetown started the season very poorly, owing principally to the fact that there were but three veterans remaining from the previous year. The eleven, therefore, was very green. It was the youngest team that ever represented Georgetown, though very heavy and potentially strong. Later in the season, however, Petrits and Kelly, two stars of the 1913 combination, were able to play again. The steadiness of this pair added greatly to the strength of the team and helped to eradicate the fumbling, which had been its constant source of defeat, especially at both Pittsburgh and Washington and Lee, in which games Georgetown gained nearly twice as much ground as its opponents. Prospects for next year are very bright, as only Captain Murray, Petrits and Foley will be lost by graduation. Coach Exendine will again be in charge. This team will also have more experience and will obtain some very good material from the present freshman class. Georgetown has scheduled for 1915, among other teams, Princeton, U. S. Military Academy, U. S. Naval Academy, Colgate and St. Louis University. The stars of last year's team were Captain Murray, Petrits, Kelly, Ward, and Gormley.

PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE OF SOUTH CAROLINA, CLINTON, S. C.

Foot Ball in South Carolina

BY DR. N. BRUCE EDGERTON, COLUMBIA, S. C.

Clemson Agricultural College dominated foot ball in South Carolina last season. University of South Carolina came second, nosing out The Citadel by a one point margin on Thanksgiving Day. Newberry was fourth, Wofford fifth, Presbyterian College sixth, and Furman University was seventh, being defeated by Presbyterian College in a masterful game, on the Furman's grounds, with the forward pass.

The game opened up lively last fall, the University of South Carolina winning its annual game from Wake Forest through the use of the forward pass. The team also used it to advantage against the University of Virginia and against Clemson College in the last quarter of play. The Citadel, Newberry, Presbyterian College and Wofford used this attack to advantage in their big games.

Five victories, five defeats and one tie for the University of South Carolina is considered a record of a very poor team, due in part to a lack of material, and in part to the very hard schedule at the opening of the season. New life, however, has been taken on at the institution, and with the appointment of C. G. Gunter as graduate manager, with the addition of new material a successful season this fall is looked for.

We will have another State college represented in foot ball next season—Erskine of Due West—an associate reformed Presbyterian college. This will swell the number of institutions that will place teams in the field in 1915 to nine, as follows: University of South Carolina, Clemson Agricultural College, State Military College, Wofford College, Furman University, Presbyterian College, Newberry College and Erskine College. A couple of years ago we had only three colleges playing foot ball. This makes this branch of athletics look much more important in the eyes of the public, and marks a new era in college sports in this section.

Athletics in the colleges have advanced to a much higher plane than in the high schools, and therefore there are only a small proportion of the men entering college who have ever had any coaching for foot ball. We have started a move, however, among the high schools of this State that will place their athletics on a much higher plane in a very few years and will help the colleges to an incalculable extent.

Taking everything into consideration the State produced some creditable players last season. An All-State eleven, as selected by some of the leading men, appears below. All of the men played stellar foot ball, and each has been chosen solely because he can fill the position named in any possible emergency.

ALL-SOUTH CAROLINA ELEVEN.

Gee (Clemson) and Hill (South Carolina), ends.
 Schilleter (Clemson) and McMillan (South Carolina) or Shepard (The Citadel), tackles.
 Stoney (South Carolina) and Going (South Carolina), guards.
 Girardeau (South Carolina) center.
 Weeks (The Citadel), quarter-back.
 James (Clemson) and Major (Clemson), half-backs.
 Webb (Clemson), full-back.

Bethany (W. Va.) College.—The team of 1914 was made up of green material, and, taking everything into consideration, made a good showing, especially against the State university. The playing of Dougherty, captain-elect, was especially noteworthy. Although a natural end he was played at quarter-back all season. Rogers, the big half-back, was the pivot of the team. He was a wonderful broken field runner and passer, while no man in the State could punt more consistently. Roberts is the best coach Bethany has had in recent years.

Foot Ball in East Tennessee

By H. F. PASINI,
Athletic Director King College.

College foot ball in East Tennessee had a very thriving season in 1914. All the teams showed a marked improvement in their games, and the struggle for the college championship turned out to be a four-cornered race between Carson-Newman, Maryville, Tusculum and King.

As to a champion one could hardly make a selection, as any of the above mentioned teams would have an equal claim, so far as their games in the State are concerned, so in rating the teams I will place them as to the strength they showed in their whole season's work.

The big drawback in this section has been the scarcity of good officials, and many of the best games were spoiled, from the spectators' standpoint, by the bungling work of volunteer officials.

Outside of a few minor points, all the coaches unite in saying that the rules, as they now stand, have proved very satisfactory.

As to the comparative strength of the foot ball shown in this section of the State, a good line may be had from the showing of several of the teams against strong opponents in the neighboring States.

Maryville played Kentucky State and Transylvania on its Kentucky trip and although early in the season the Tennesseans made a very creditable showing. Later, Maryville met Furman University, at Greeneville, S. C., and won a decisive victory.

Carson-Newman made a three-game trip over into North Carolina. It came back with one victory and made a strong showing in both the other games.

King College took the longest trip of any of the Southern teams, going as far south as DeLand, Fla., and covering over 2000 miles, meeting Mercer University, at Macon, Ga.; University of Florida, at Gainesville, and John B. Stetson University, at DeLand, Fla. One victory was all the Bristol boys could bring back from the land of the Alligators, that being over Stetson. Long train trips and the sandy fields proved the undoing of the King team, although the home elevens played some classy foot ball, especially Florida.

In rating the teams I feel that, due to the hard schedules played and the good showing made, Maryville and King should be placed first, Carson-Newman next, then Tusculum, Tennessee Military Institute, Cumberland, Washington and Athens.

In picking an All-East Tennessee College eleven I have taken the opinions of all the coaches, and from their reports have selected the following:

ALL-EAST TENNESSEE ELEVEN.

G. King (King) and Davidson (King), ends.
Vandergraff (Maryville) and Woods (King), tackles.
Ramsey (Carson-Newman) and A. Doak (Tusculum), guards.
Goddard (Maryville), center.
S. Doak (Tusculum), quarter-back.
Hickman (Carson-Newman) and Fain (King), half-backs.
Peck (Tennessee Mil. Institute), full-back.

Others deserving of mention are: Squibbs, Carson-Newman, full-back, who was perhaps the best offensive full-back in the section; Wilson, Tennessee Military Institute; Burrow, King, and Calloway, Maryville, all quarter-backs, who had an especially fine season; Bryson and Day, Maryville; Edwards, Carson-Newman, and Graham, King, all showed up well in the line. Bunch of Carson-Newman and F. Fox of Tusculum also deserve mention as ends.

Scholastic Foot Ball in Greater Boston

BY JOHN J. HALLAHAN, BOSTON, MASS.

For several years Everett High School boasted of a wonderful foot ball aggregation, and while there were one or two schools that disputed its claim to the scholastic foot ball championship of Massachusetts in 1912 and 1913, there was not a school during the season of 1914 that could cope with it and the eleven was recognized as the greatest contingent of schoolboys ever developed in the long history of the gridiron sport in New England. Not only did this championship combination defeat New England's best, but triumphed over Oak Park High School of Chicago in such a manner that left no doubt in the minds of the followers of scholastic sport about Everett High being one of the most remarkable school teams ever produced in the country.

Two years before Oak Park High, then coached by Zupke, who was with the University of Illinois, the champions of the Western Conference last season, defeated Everett High in an intersectional match, after a stubborn contest. The Chicago schoolboys visited Boston again in 1914 and were forced to accept a stinging rebuke, in the shape of an 80 to 0 defeat, Everett High running care free all over the field. After the Westerners got through with their visit there was another school, Stamford High of Connecticut, which thought fairly well of its foot ball team and challenged Everett, but as in the contest with Oak Park, Everett High just turned loose its variety of plays, which coupled with a wonderful defense, defeated Stamford High 62 to 0. The contests were post-season games. Large crowds attended both games, but were disappointed with the style of play used by both Oak Park and Stamford High Schools.

Everett High School played thirteen games and totalled 600 points, a record which never has been approached in the history of Greater Boston schools. Its goal line was not crossed, showing that Cleo O'Donnell, a former Holy Cross college player, who coached the team, had not overlooked building up a defense as well as a scoring machine. Everett High's style of play comprised a frequent use of the forward pass and a running attack that was propelled by a swift quartet of backs, reinforced by a line that was able to tear open holes through an opposing front that was more like a finished varsity eleven than that of a schoolboy team.

As great as was the superiority of Everett High over the other schools, the season was productive of many interesting contests. There was a greater use of the forward pass than ever before, and while drop-kicking was not so prominent as in 1913, there were several adept youngsters uncovered in the art. The punting was good, and, all in all, the coaching of the teams never was so successful in the developing of all-around elevens. The championships were scattered, Everett High winning the Suburban Interscholastic League title before its conquered Oak Park High and Stamford High Schools. With the winning of that title Everett High was assured the Greater Boston premiership, and with Manchester (N. H.) High among those stopped, the title of "The best schoolboy team in New England" could be applied. English High was the winner of the Boston High School championship, Volkman School of the Boston private schools, Rindge Technical of the Cambridge district, St. John's Prep of the Essex County, Brockton High of the Plymouth County Interscholastic Association, Holyoke High of the schools in the Western part of the State, and Marlboro High in the Midland Interscholastic League.

Another strong team was the St. John's Preparatory School of Danvers, Mass., which visited Chicago the first part of December and defeated the De Paul Academy, 8 to 6, another indication of the high standard school foot ball has reached in this section of the country. Groton School settled accounts with St. Mark's School in their annual battle, by winning, 14 to 0, after having been defeated by St. Mark's for a few years.

BOWDOIN COLLEGE, BRUNSWICK, ME.

Another setback, the worst in the history of the annual battles, was given Andover by Exeter in their yearly conflict. It was thought that after the disastrous 59 to 0 defeat of the year before that Andover would do something to atone for that loss, but, instead, it showed a much inferior eleven to that of 1913 and was further humiliated, 78 to 7. It was another victory for the method employed at Exeter and one which has caused graduates of Andover to wonder what has become of the remarkable elevens that wore the blue, from the time the new game was brought into use in 1905 and stopped in 1913. "Tad" Jones, the old Yale quarter-back and a graduate of Exeter, developed a team of tremendous speed and power. Its record showed victories over the freshmen teams of Dartmouth, Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Pennsylvania. The only team which made it interesting for the Exonians was Worcester Academy. The game was played one week before the contest with Andover, and the score was 15 to 6.

While they won no championships, Waltham High, Rindge Technical and Wellesley High Schools were all strongly represented. The last two named played Everett High and though defeated gave the champions their hardest contests. The Waltham eleven made a wonderful record as regards running up scores, making 480 points to its opponents' 11. The Watch City boys defeated Portland High, 26 to 3, but found Newton High its hardest opponent, the contest ending, 6 to 6, thus preventing the Waltham team from figuring in a claim for the title. The latter did not play Everett High, nor did it play either Wellesley High or Rindge Technical, leaving some doubt as to whether it was strong enough to defeat them. Waltham High secured the record score, by running up 111 points against Worcester South High, while the latter did not have the ball in its possession on Waltham's side of the field at any time.

Thanksgiving Day was another big day in school foot ball in Greater Boston. English High and Boston Latin Schools, the first to make a feature of playing on the forenoon of Turkey Day, battled to a 3 to 3 tie, each scoring a goal from the field. Rindge Technical easily defeated its great rival, Somerville High, and Beverly High, after being humbled the year before by Salem High, defeated the "Witches," 12 to 0, young Nelson of Beverly, showing a masterly performance as a drop-kicker, booting over two goals in an easy, cool, deliberate manner. It is figured that about 250,000 persons saw foot ball games between rival schools on Thanksgiving Day morning before they gathered around the table to score touchdowns on the "Old Turk."

There were many clever players in the Greater Boston schools, but the work of Jack Cannell, the captain of the Everett High team, stood out more conspicuously than that of another player, although Captain White of Rindge Technical School and "Pike" Johnson, the tackle of the champions, were not very far behind when it came to shining in individual effort.

The following players would undoubtedly have made a remarkable eleven:

ALL-GREATER BOSTON SCHOLASTIC ELEVEN.

Temple University, Philadelphia, Pa.—Temple played six games last season, winning three, losing two, and one, with Pennsylvania Military College, a tie, 0-0. The brilliant playing of Ertle, full-back, was the leading feature. Lemmer, Scarry, Johnson, MacDonald and Shaeffer also played in fine form.

Williamson Trades School, Williamson School, Pa.—The team was exceptionally light, and was handicapped by an unusual number of injuries early in the season. The leading player of the team was Eyster, at end. His ability as a receiver of forward passes, his wonderful open field running and hard tackling marked him as the sensation of the year in Philadelphia. McCue's remarkable drop-kicking, under adverse conditions, showed him to be a player of ability.

Foot Ball in New Jersey Schools

BY G. A. FALZER,

Sporting Editor Newark Sunday Call.

G. A. FALZER

Out of the 116 school foot ball teams that clawed up the gridirons of New Jersey last season, Lawrenceville, long recognized as one of the leading preparatory schools in the United States, speaking of its ability to turn out mighty foot ball elevens, once more emerged from the 1914 campaign with the championship of the State scholastic ranks. The Red and Black team of the pretty little Jersey hamlet, near the lair of the Princeton Tiger, was invincible in dealing with the preparatory and high school teams that came into its path. Battling against the Princeton freshmen, which numbered in its ranks several stars who had helped Lawrenceville win championships in prep school days, the latter had to lower its colors in the first game of the season, the score reading, 10 to 0, in favor of the Tiger cubs. But in the series of conflicts against the school elevens, and Lawrenceville encountered some of the strongest in the East, the State champions brushed them all aside. It conquered, in turn, Barringer, Tome, Peddie and Pennington, and concluded its triumphant campaign with a victory over its most formidable rival, Mercersburg Academy. Not one of these schools scored against Lawrenceville, not even to the extent of a field goal. No question, then, but that the State championship, crown should rest again upon the brow of the Lawrenceville School.

Second honors were awarded to Peddie Institute, which also was the runner-up in the 1913 campaign. The Hightstown team was shorn of most of its stars of the year before, including Higgins, who shone at end on the Penn State team last season; Leonard Norcross, who passed on to Brown University, playing a brilliant game at half-back, and Garrett and Miller, both of whom were important cogs in the Rutgers foot ball machine last fall. Despite these gaps torn into their ranks the wearers of the Gold and Blue gallantly upheld the honors of the school. They lost to Lawrenceville, 10 to 0, and were nosed out by the classy Hill School team of Pottstown, Pa., but they held the Princeton freshmen to a safety, surpassing even Lawrenceville's showing against the same team; squelched the Princeton scrubs, and triumphed over Barringer, Williamson, Blair and Pennington. Blair, which shortly before had defeated the husky Princeton Prep team, fell before Peddie, 38 to 0, and Pennington was crushed, 94 to 0.

Rahway High School won the laurel wreath emblematic of the high school championship of New Jersey last season, Lawrenceville and Peddie, which are rated ahead of the Rahwegians, being major preparatory schools. Claim to the high school championship may be disputed by several other teams, notably Rutherford, one of the few undefeated elevens, and Atlantic City, which swept everything before it in the Southern end of the State. These three schools did not meet in actual conflict, but Rahway, on its record, clearly had the best claim to the title.

Rahway won all its games, its principal triumph being a 29 to 0 victory over East Orange, which, up to last season, was invariably a strong contender for the New Jersey championship. Rutherford, though undefeated during the season, could only tie East Orange, 7 to 7. Against Barringer the Rahway team ran up a score of 18 to 6. Rutherford against the same team stopped at 13 to 7. As for Atlantic City, its record was marred by a 7 to 6 defeat administered by the Wilmington (Del.) High School. The seashore boys wer from Trenton, 8 to 0, whereas Rahway humbled the capital city team, 33 to 0. Trenton won the high school championship in 1913, but last season lost eight of its stars of the year before, and consequently did not play up to its former standard.

Of the 116 teams whose records were compiled, five were undefeated last season. These were Rahway High School, Kingsley School, Morristown School, Newman School and Burlington High School, the latter playing teams of a lighter caliber. Rutherford High School, Wenonah Military Academy and South Side High School of Newark did not lose a game but were held to a tie. Asbury Park High School, the champion of the East Jersey League, met its Waterloo in the last game of the season, playing against Rutherford. One of the principal surprises of the season in the scholastic ranks was the achievement of the Stevens School in winning the championship of the New Jersey Interscholastic League over East Orange, which had a monopoly on that title many years.

Following is the rating of the leading twenty school teams, based on their showing last season. Where a defeated team appears ahead of an undefeated eleven the former was given a higher rating in judging its class.

1, Lawrenceville School; 2, Peddie Institute; 3, Rahway High School; 4, Rutherford High School; 5, Morristown School; 6, Kingsley School; 7, Wenonah Military Academy; 8, Atlantic City High School; 9, Stevens School; 10, East Orange High School; 11, Newman School; 12, Asbury Park High School; 13, Montclair High School; 14, Barringer High School; 15, Montclair Academy; 16, South Side High School; 17, Trenton High School; 18, Blair Academy; 19, Bordentown Military Academy; 20, Salem High School.

The writer personally looked over all the important school teams in New Jersey during the season, and at the close the Newark Sunday Call selected an All-State eleven and a second eleven out of 2,088 players, the total derived by figuring on an average of eighteen to a team. The selections were as follows:

Foot Ball in Washington, D. C.

BY CURLEY BYRD.

With teams in the colleges and schools much stronger than those of the previous year, with the game reaching a general development never before recorded for it in the District of Columbia, and the organization of teams by many independent clubs, foot ball in Washington widened so perceptibly that there was little connected with the sport with which fault could be found. There were some factors that might have been improved upon, but, considering everything in toto, the game showed a substantial growth and evidenced much that augurs well for the future.

Georgetown, of course, has always taken the lead in foot ball among the Washington institutions and last fall was no exception. While it did not turn out a team to win the majority of its contests, it was represented by a combination that was well coached and which was made up of several players of ability. Rather mediocre back-field material proved a big handicap; but the line was one of exceptional strength. More than one critic gave an opinion that the Georgetown forwards were the equal of almost any other aggregation in the East. Petritz and Gormley were easily the stars, the former playing brilliantly at center and the latter distinguishing himself at tackle.

No game has yet been found by Georgetown to take the place of that with Virginia. The absence of the contest with the Charlottesville institution has been particularly noted, though Georgetown has left no stone unturned in its efforts to give the public splendid attractions. Washington and Jefferson was brought here last fall and, although the game was lost, it was one of the most brilliant exhibitions of the gridiron sport ever seen in the South. A great crowd turned out to see the contest which brought forth one of the strongest elevens in the country, yet there was lacking that spirit and color which goes to make the annual game with a great rival of long standing an annual feature.

Georgetown had a stronger team than the scores of some of its games would seem to indicate. It played good foot ball and especially in two of the contents lost on foreign fields critics were unanimous in declaring that Georgetown had played the better game. Particularly was this true of the conflict with the University of Pittsburgh. Georgetown developed a splendid lot of first year men and may look forward to a successful season this fall. It will have a squad of veterans and, with a coach of the capabilities of Albert Exendine of Carlisle, little trouble should be experienced in turning out a team to meet the heaviest schedule any Southern institution has ever attempted.

Catholic University had never done much in foot ball, owing to the disfavor with which the game was looked upon at that school, but last season a determined attempt was made to develop a good eleven. The team which represented the school was undoubtedly the strongest and most capable the institution has ever had.

It was practically a beginning and this season great things may be looked for. The authorities have gone a long way toward insuring success by obtaining the services of Fred K. Nielsen, who won the championship of the South Atlantic section for two years at Georgetown and one year at George Washington. Mr. Nielsen gave up coaching upon becoming Assistant Solicitor of the Department of State, but was prevailed upon by the Catholic University management to help it turn out a team of real worth.

Gallaudet again was out with a splendid team. The players, though handicapped by a lack of hearing and speech, found little difficulty in mastering the teams opposed to them, and on Thanksgiving Day capped a very successful year with a great game against Georgetown, in which they were beaten by only 12 to 7. Another particular feat of Gallaudet's was the playing of 6 to 7 contest with Fordham at New York.

SUSQUEHANNA UNIVERSITY, SELLSBURG, PA.

Gallaudet and Catholic University developed several players who were exceptionally capable. In fact, the former was made up almost of stars. Foltz, at end, and Moore, at quarter-back, were the backbone of the eleven. Foltz gained the major part of the ground covered in the games while running from an end formation, while Moore's directing of the play was not inferior to that of any other quarter-back in the South. Rogers and Ahearn, two former Holy Cross players, were the best men Catholic University had. Rogers played brilliantly at half-back and Ahearn did very well at end. Cuscaden of Gallaudet was the best lineman in the two schools, while Martin of Gallaudet was not far behind.

Technical High again won the high school championship. Tech had heavier and more experienced material and it was not a surprise when it defeated the other schools. As a matter of fact, it was rather expected that it would win its games by even larger scores than it did. Business, Central, and Eastern put up great fights in their games against Tech, and it was only by a touch-down in the last few minutes of play that Business was defeated.

St. Alban's School put out about the best combination developed in the preparatory institutions. It rolled up two of the most remarkable scores ever registered by a schoolboy team, defeating the Dunham's Latin School of Baltimore by 118 to 0 and Fredericksburg High School of Fredericksburg, Va., by 97 to 0.

Several of the military organizations around Washington were represented by elevens. Fort Washington and Fort Myer turned out creditable aggregations, but the best was that of the Engineer Corps. In fact, the Engineers would have done credit to many a college eleven. They had the benefit of a former West Point player, Lieutenant Caruth, and showed the effects of his tutoring. In a final contest with the Vigilants, for years the strongest independent club in the South, the Engineers came out victorious. Neither team had lost a game when they met and one of the biggest crowds that watched a game during the whole year was present. The Regent Athletic Club and the Mohawk Athletic Club were represented by about the best boy teams in the city.

Space precludes the possibility of naming the feats of the various players, or of giving to everybody his just due. It may be said, though, that Ochsenreiter and Supplee of Technical High, Richards and MacDonald of Central High, Culligan and R. Wise of Business and Brewer of St. Alban's were the best of the scholastic performers. Blair and Hassenstab played well for the Engineers and Sinclair and Licarione did exceptional work for the Vigilants.

University of Rochester, Rochester, N. Y.—The team started the season of 1914 under a handicap. Only a very few old men were available, and a practically new team had to be developed. It played a good game at times, notably against Syracuse, St. Bonaventure and Colgate, but at other times it played rather mediocre football. Captain Chesbro showed up well in the back-field, running well in open field, hitting the line in good shape, and backing up the line, on defense, cleverly. Scott, at tackle, and Captain-elect Schiebel, at center, were prominent on the line. Several freshmen showed much promise, and prospects are bright for 1915.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn.—While the Trinity team did not come through the season with a clean slate, it proved itself to be an eleven powerful alike on attack and defense, outrushing every team which it played, and allowing but a small total of yards to be made through the line. The college lost the services of its old coach, Professor Gettell, but Dr. Price, his successor, turned out a team that was the peer, if not the superior, of every team which it met. The season's record was four victories, two defeats and one tie. Worcester Tech, Bowdoin, New York University and Haverford were defeated. The Amherst game resulted in no score, and the Williams and Wesleyan games were lost. The Williams game best showed the true power of Trinity, for after Williams had scored 20 points in the first half by means of trick plays and a Trinity fumble, the latter came back in the last half with 14 points, gained on straight rushing, and was threatening to score again when time was called. The Wesleyan game was lost by the margin of a drop-kick, Wesleyan making good on her only chance to score, while Trinity lost several opportunities, both on goals from field and on touchdowns. Captain-elect Castator, at full-back, and Cole, at half-back, distinguished themselves, particularly on the defense, while Lambert, at tackle, starred on the offense. These men will be back another year, and with the loss of only three players, prospects for another season are bright.

Ohio Conference Foot Ball Season

BY PROFESSOR C. W. SAVAGE, OBERLIN COLLEGE.

The Ohio Conference foot ball season of 1914 was characterized by the stronger showing made by colleges usually not considered seriously as first rank and the consequent falling off of at least three institutions customarily considered as championship contenders.

Beyond a doubt, the strongest team in the State at the close of the season was again Ohio State. But because only three Ohio Conference games appeared on State's schedule, many critics refuse to consider this team's record. However, its games played with Western Conference teams were of such caliber that there is no just reason for denying the real worth of the big university's team.

It seems to me clear that second rank should be given to Denison. This team, though at times very weak on defense, was unusually brilliant on offense. Three or four individual stars made its attack both powerful and versatile.

Ranking close to Denison comes Mount Union, less powerful on offense, but with a sturdy defense that caused its most powerful opponents worlds of trouble.

The three teams mentioned above should be classed as first group. In the second group would come Miami, Cincinnati and Ohio University, probably in that order. The Miami team was the real surprise party of the season, defeating Mount Union, Cincinnati and Oberlin. Never has finer material formed an Ohio team than represented the Oxford institution.

A third group of teams would be formed of the three old rivals, Case, Reserve and Oberlin, usually considered championship contenders. To rank the three relatively seems impossible, though it should be said that Reserve beat both the others. No one of the three played a consistent season.

Kenyon, Wesleyan, Wooster and Wittenberg compose a fourth group and could well be ranked in that order.

The ranking of Ohio Conference by percentages is as follows:

College Notes

Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, Ala.—Auburn has only been defeated once by a Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association team in the last five years, and only three times in the last seven years. The team enjoyed the distinction of not being scored upon during the regular season, at the same time meeting the strongest teams in the S. I. A. A., and extended their record into the post-season by defeating Carlisle, 7 to 0.

Amherst (Mass.) College.—With rather mediocre material to start with, Coach Riley developed a team which put up a strong fight against Dartmouth, was outrun by Springfield Y. M. C. A., and would have defeated Williams in a walk had it not been for a break of luck, which was admitted by Williams' supporters. Tom Ashley, full-back, was awarded the cup for being of most value to the team, while Warren, captain, and Rider, the other back, were almost equally as good. The line was light, but was strongly reinforced by "Hen" Swasey, at left end.

Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio.—With a light and inexperienced bunch of men, Wallace, student coach and player, turned out one of the best teams that ever represented Antioch. With only two days' practice it played Muskingum to a 32-3 score, and won from St. Mary's the next Saturday, 7-0. The team was defeated by Ohio Northern, Otterbein and Heidelberg, but each game was strongly contested. The forward pass was greatly relied upon because of the lack of weight, and the Heidelberg and Wittenberg papers were profuse in their praise of the open play, stating that it had never been excelled on their gridirons. Tress undoubtedly was the star, and there seems to be no doubt that if he had been playing on any Conference team would have landed the All-State quarter position. Riggie, at tackle; Vandervoort and Wallace, at ends, and Funderburg, at half-back, were the other lights. The victory over Wittenberg on Thanksgiving Day was the climax. It was open play and science against beef and brawn, and the former conquered. Tress' passes in the game averaged forty-five yards. On one pass a gain was made of sixty yards. Taken as a whole the season was the best Antioch ever had, winning five and losing four games. The prospects for next year are bright, although four men will be lost by graduation.

Barringer High School, Newark, N. J.—Barringer's team for 1914 did not turn out as good as expected. The most creditable thing that it did was to hold Peddie down to a 3-0 score. The big game with East Orange was lost after a well played game, 3-0. The leading players were Hummel, at end, and Noble, at guard. They were both picked by some newspapers for the All-State scholastic team.

Bay Ridge High School, Brooklyn, N. Y.—Seven victories and one defeat was the Bay Ridge gridiron warriors' record in 1914. They piled up a grand total of 135 points to 13, and were scored on but once, when the Commercial High School eleven defeated them, 13-0. Two players were picked for All-Scholastic eleven, Jack Bright, half-back, and Tom Grace, right end and captain. Three were selected for the second team, B. Karlson, guard; H. Karlson, half-back, and Cuddell, tackle. The Bay Ridge eleven ranked second to Adelphi among the high and prep schools of Brooklyn.

Bates College, Lewiston, Me.—While the records do not show a large percentage of victories, even several severe defeats, the sentiment of the student body at Bates is that the 1914 season was a good one. The team lacked material at the first of the season, and too much cannot be said in favor of the work of Coach Roger A. Greene. The leading players were: John J. Butler, William F. Manual, George E. Talbot, Edward M. Connors, William Boyd, Earle Clifford, Ernest More (captain), John B. Curtin, John Neville and William Neville.

Berkeley School, New York City.—With only twelve men in the squad, Berkeley successfully closed a short schedule by defeating its old rival, Cutler. Four men entered the first game without ever having been in a scrimmage before. Of the remainder only three or four had ever had any real foot ball experience. Williams was the leading player, making all the points in the Cutler game. His sixty-yard run, after coming in from his position as defensive quarter-back and scooping up a fumble by a Cutler end, on a cross-cross end around end play, is a feat seldom accomplished on a foot ball field.

Blair Academy, Blairtown, N. J.—The academy team was not up to the standard last fall, as only one letter man returned. But, considering it was made up of all new men, Blair had a successful season.

Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me.—The season of 1914 was one of disappointment to all Bowdoin followers. The team started out well, but instead of showing improvement seemed gradually to go back. It is hard to pick the cause of this, but it is the common opinion at the college that it was largely due to a lack of good material, and the wrong kind of coaching. Throughout the season Captain Lewis and Leadbetter, captain-elect, both played strong, consistent games. Plays worthy of mention are few. In the Tufts game, in the fourth quarter, Colbath, right half, tore through the Tufts' line for twenty-five yards and a touchdown, which was quite a surprise. In the Amherst game also, Colbath, in the last two minutes of play, intercepted a forward pass and ran fifty-five yards for a touchdown. His playing throughout the season was noticeably good.

Brown University, Providence, R. I.—The schedule for the Brown team of 1914 was no harder than that of 1913, but the material was much better. The team, as a whole, was light, averaging only 169 pounds, but by its open style of play was able to tie Harvard, and to hold Yale to a score of 14 to 6. The season opened with two easy victories over Norwich and Rhode Island State, and the men continued playing in good form until the Cornell game. This and the tussle with Vermont were decided disappointments, and the men seemed to have taken a bad slump. However, they came back strong in the last three games. The leading players were Captain Mitchell, center; Captain-elect Andrews, half-back; Gordon, half-back, and Murphy and Clark, quarter-backs.

Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Pa.—The season of 1914 was not as successful as in 1912 and 1913. Cruickshank, the fast quarter, left the university, and Schaffner, the star center, received an injury at the beginning of the season. Notwithstanding this fact, the team outclassed the college teams of its own standing. This was due to the coaching of Cockill, with the aid of Assistant Coach Jordan. The back-field, Topham, Gdanic, Keiser and Macdermott, played its usual game. Macdermott will not be back, and graduation will cost the team Topham, Gdanic and Keiser. The prospects, however, for a good team next fall are very promising.

Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, Pa.—F. E. Foster, graduate manager, says: "In many respects the 1914 football season was a remarkable one for Carnegie Tech. For several years prior to the past season, foot ball had been on the decline, and it was left for Coach Walter Steffen, the ex-Chicago star, to come to Carnegie, revolutionize the coaching system, and start the course of the gridiron sport on the upward path once more. Steffen's system thoroughly justified itself, and in the University of Pittsburgh and Lehigh games, where the Tech players were hopelessly outweighed by their opponents, it has been truthfully said that the Plaid team played phenomenal foot ball."

Catholic University, Washington, D. C.—The poor success of the season of 1914 can be accredited to the late start and to lack of back-field material. Two extra good games were played, one with Gallaudet and the other with Boston College. Rogers, at left half-back, played a wonderful game, gaining mostly all the ground, while Murphy, at center, and Killian, at tackle, did great work in the line. Everything points to a much better team for 1915.

Central High School, Newark, N. J.—Central began the season with good prospects, but through deficiencies in studies was deprived of the services of regular players in all games, except the first and last. In the final game of the season all the regulars were eligible to play and the team made, probably, the best showing of the season. Central's All-Newark selections were: Krout, end; Anderson, center; Smith, guard, and Saifer, quarter-back.

Central High School, Philadelphia, Pa.—The school's foot ball authorities describe the season of 1914 as follows: "It was purely a miracle for Northeast, when Ridpath blocked Butler's kick and caused the scoring of a safety, which resulted in Central High School losing the championship. Captain 'Billy' Stephens played a commendable game. Vaughan Chambers, the veteran guard, had a bad attack of 'Charley Horse,' which prevented him from playing in the championship games. Then 'Bill' Butler, the star full-back, had a bad attack of lumbago which prevented him from showing just what kind of a player he was. Notwithstanding the difficulties under which he labored he proved his worth by being the best bet for the All-Scholastic position at full-back. Harry Voss, a wonderful foot ball player, played all season with a bruised hip. Emanuel Wirkman found his normal position at left tackle and kept up the good work that made him All-Scholastic for three years, 1912-13-14. He is a big, powerful, aggressive, fast player, with a good eye for the ball, and was fast in getting down the field under kicks. Alec Farmakis played finely at center, and Raymond Romig also performed well at guard."

Colgate University, Hamilton, N. Y.—Although handicapped by the loss of fourteen letter men from the famous 1913 team, Colgate developed an aggressive eleven, which early showed its power by a 7-3 victory over Cornell. The forward pass was perfected and used to great advantage in many games. The team was defeated by the U. S. Military Academy and Yale. The Maroon came back strong and battled Syracuse to a 0-0 tie, in one of the hardest fought games ever seen in the stadium. Brooks and Captain-elect Abell, the giant tackles, proved towers of strength on offense and defense, while Robinson and Captain Swartout were the most consistent ground-gainers. The team will lose by graduation, Captain Swartout, Robinson, Weber, Leary, Fowler and Brooks.

Concordia Preparatory School, Bronxville, N. Y.—The season of 1914 was an unsatisfactory one, due principally to injuries received in the early part of the campaign, from which the team did not recover all season. The last few games were called off for that reason. Berg, at left half, was without doubt the best man on the team. He played a strong game until he received an injury which caused him to permanently retire. Captain Schleele handled his crippled squad in fine shape, and always could be found in the thick of the scrimmage. Mention should also be made of Ski, at tackle, and Rippy, at end, both strong players.

Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.—Starting with inexperienced material in 1914, the Cornell team lost two early season games to Colgate and the University of Pittsburgh. These defeats, however, showed the team its faults and they were soon erased by the coaching staff. It is claimed by some experts that the team was the greatest team ever developed in Ithaca. With odds greatly against them the Cornell men went West and walloped the strong Michigan team, after two touchdowns had been scored against them. The contest with Pennsylvania, while a disappointment to many from the score standpoint, was a well earned victory after a hard fought game. Cornell had several men who were picked by quite a number of critics. O'Hearn, Barrett, Cool, Phillippi, Shelton, Collins and Munsick were all men of high foot ball caliber.

Cresson (Pa.) High School.—Cresson was represented by a team for the first time in 1914, and it closed the season with the best record of any high school in Cambria County. Eight games were played, six of which were victories, and Cresson scored 147 points to 74 by opponents. Although the material was very light and green, Coach McKinney developed a fast and well balanced team. The work on the defense was very good, tackling being a feature of every game. The chief offensive strength lay in the end running of Connell, one of the fastest and best broken-field runners in the district. Captain Cleave handled the team like a veteran. In the distribution of praise, however, the whole team should be mentioned, as success was due largely to fine work as a team and fighting spirit.

Cushing Academy, Ashburnham, Mass.—The team won every game except with Exeter and Andover. Andover was victorious on a wet field. Williston was defeated in the final game of the season, at Easthampton. The victory over Dartmouth Freshmen was a notable one. The leading players were: Vanderlick, Captain Lynch, Walker, O. Williams, Turnbull and Colby.

Dartmouth College, Hanover, N. H.—From the scores it will be seen that every game played last season was won with the exception of the one with Princeton. Captain Whitney played splendid foot ball, as did Curtis, Murdock and Ghee, quarterback. Several sophomores showed up well, and with a year's experience should develop into fast players.

Davidson (N. C.) College.—Under the efficient coaching of Bob Fetzer, Davidson made an exceptionally fine foot ball record for 1914. Only once did the Red and Black eleven taste defeat. At all times the team fought with the tenacity and "pep" which is characteristic of a Davidson game. The work of McKinzoan, at full-back, showed him master of the position, and White, at center, played stellar ball the entire season.

Dean Academy, Franklin, Mass.—The Dean team of 1914 was the lightest in history of the school, averaging only 151 pounds, and it is claimed that it was the first time in four years a Dean eleven was defeated in foot ball. Captain Jones was the only member of the 1913 team in the squad. Harris, at quarter; Jones, Purdy and Keefe were the stars of last season's team.

Delaware College, Newark, Del.—Delaware lost only one game during the season of 1914. This was to Lafayette. It was the first game of the season and the first had had only one week's practice. Stevens Institute was the principal game. It was played at Hoboken, and resulted in a 0 to 0 tie. Crawford, full-back, and Handy, half-back, were the stars, both on offense and defense. Their line-plunging when a touchdown was needed, often turned defeat into victory, and their continual breaking up of forward passes always kept Delaware's opponent's score small. Cann, left tackle, also was strong on the defense.

Denison University, Granville, Ohio.—Probably the heaviest schedule and the most successful season in the history of foot ball at Denison. Most of the games were won in open style play, using the long forward passes. Roubesh, right half, to Thiele, left end. Reese, at center, was especially strong on defense. The most sensational offensive work was the line-bucking and open field running of Rupp, left half. These men were the most frequently mentioned on the All-Ohio teams selected by the various Ohio papers. Denison believes it has a clear title to the Ohio championship.

Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa.—The team was entirely new and very light. Several of the men, however, will undoubtedly develop into good foot ball players, because of their consistent work last season. Among these are Palm and Dalton.

Dr. Holbrook School, Ossining, N. Y.—The foot ball season of 1914 was quite successful. Out of eight games played only three were lost, to Stamford High School, Mooristown and Mohegan. The team was light, but unusually fast and scrappy. Head work and speed supplanted weight. Captain Simonds, Roux, Seeley, Heartfield and Hale bore the brunt of the attack throughout the season. This was especially true of Simonds, who led his team in a praiseworthy manner. The feature game of the season was with Irving, which Holbrook won, 20-7.

Easton (Pa.) High School.—Easton High's team did not lose a game during 1914. It defeated such teams as Reading High School, Bordentown Military Institute and Phillipsburg High School. Captain Brunner starred at full-back, making many wonderful broken-field runs. He is one of the best throwers of the forward pass in the high school ranks. He outpunted his opponents in every game. McCarthy, tackle, was a stonewall on the defense. He was always good for a gain when called back to carry the ball. Albus, end, was the receiver of Brunner's forward passes. This proved a great factor in scoring. The success of the team was mainly due to the machine-like play as taught by Coach Reilley.

East Orange (N. J.) High School.—The team won six out of ten games played last season, scoring 187 points to 67 by opponents. Rutherford and Montclair tied East Orange, while Stevens Prep and Rahway defeated the locals. Practically every team outweighed East Orange. The big game was against Barringer of Newark, on Thanksgiving Day. East Orange was victorious, 3-0. Maurice Lequin made the winning drop-kick. Abbott, at full-back; Francke, at left end; Morse, at left tackle, and Lequin, at quarter-back, were the stars of the season.

East Syracuse (N. Y.) Team.—The record of this team, which claims the championship of Central New York, in 1914, was unusually brilliant. Nine games were played, all of which were won, and East Syracuse scored a total of 408 points to nothing. Among the opponents were Washington, Auburn, Silver Links and Oakdale.

First Infantry, U. S. A., Hawaiian Islands.—The first regular interservice foot ball series ever played in the Hawaiian Islands, although they are garrisoned by a force of nearly ten thousand men, including all arms of the service, was successfully decided in 1914. The games were well attended, and first class teams developed through the work of a number of former West Point stars and Lieutenants Everitt, First Infantry, and Daly, First Field Artillery, both having been foot ball mentors before entering the army from civil life. Some star players were developed, among the number being Varnum of the Engineers, White of the Marines, and Greenaway and Stavosky, First Infantry. The college game, as played in the Eastern portion of the United States, was in vogue here. It is thought that other service teams will be entered next season, and that some games may be scheduled with the colleges of Honolulu.

Fisk University, Nashville, Tenn.—Fisk started the season with practically a green team, having lost six of the previous year's squad. The early games showed promise of a successful campaign, but just as the team was rounding into shape there were a number of injuries, which broke up the good work of the men. However, the final game on the schedule was won from Morehouse, 7-0, furnishing, on the whole, a fairly satisfactory season's playing. Captain Charles Lewis, quarter-back, and Wade, left tackle, will be lost to the team next fall, thus leaving vacancies hard to fill. Captain Lewis, in his position, has been regarded for the past three seasons as having no superior in the State.

Flushing (N. Y.) High School.—Flushing High School had a strong team last season, despite the fact that only three veterans were left from the undefeated eleven of 1914. Coach Pulvermacher had a difficult task, but after the first two weeks of playing, and after the defeat by Adelphi, the eleven began to show added strength. It easily defeated Curtis, St. John's and St. Francis, in the order named. As a fitting climax to the season's efforts, the game against the strong Commercial team was close and hard fought, Commercial winning 7 to 0, as a result of a fumble and long run in the last two minutes of play. Buel Trowbridge, brother to the 1914 leader, was elected captain for 1915.

Fordham University, New York City.—The 1914 team was the best that has represented the university since 1909, when Fordham defeated Cornell, 12 to 6, and was defeated by Princeton in the last few minutes of play, 3 to 0. The Fordham line, averaging only 155 pounds, played a remarkably aggressive game against teams of superior weight. Captain "Bud" Wymard, at center; Rice, at left guard, and J. Conklin, at right guard, were in every play. The back-field, made up of Regan, right half; Dunn, left half, and Yule, full-back, was exceptionally fast. A poor arrangement of the schedule, placing games with the heavy Gettysburg and U. S. Naval Academy teams in the same week, sent Fordham to Annapolis in a crippled condition and forced the team to end season much weakened. Captain Wymard made a remarkable record of fourteen consecutive goals after touchdowns. His fifteenth attempt in the Vermont game was missed only by inches, due to a high wind.

Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Pa.—The college foot ball authorities consider 1914 as the best year they ever had. For this much credit should be given to Coach C. W. Maysner, who made a good team from ordinary material. It was the first time in the history of the college's relationship with Pennsylvania that it defeated the Quakers. In all, nine games were played, and only two defeats were recorded. Six games were won, and the meeting with Ursinus resulted in a tie. This record entitles Franklin and Marshall to a good rating.

Franklin College, New Athens, Ohio.—Foot Ball was re-awakened at Franklin College in 1914, after having been out-ruled for six seasons. The college had no representative team, however, the academy representing Franklin in this sport. Only four of the Academy players had ever previously donned the moleskins, and, considering this handicap, the team made marked progress. Six games were played, and two were cancelled, due to bad weather. The team, averaging 143 pounds, was outweighed in each contest, but developed much speed and cleverness at the finish. Captain Frater was prominent as an offensive man, playing left half-back; Forsberg, as an accurate forward passer; Black, as a line-plunging full-back, and Hughes, as a punter, were also conspicuous for good playing.

Gallaudet College, Washington, D. C.—Gallaudet had one of the hardest schedules in the history of the college, but still came out with an exceptional showing. Fordham was held to a 7-6 score, with the breaks against Gallaudet. The latter upset all 'dope when it held the strong Georgetown University team to a 12-7 score, Gallaudet being greatly outweighed. The Washington team defeated its most formidable rival, Maryland Agricultural College, by the creditable score of 23-0. Marshall, right end, played a great game and was picked by many for the All-South Atlantic team. Martin, at left tackle, was also placed on the All-South Atlantic eleven. Cuscaden did fine work at right tackle. He was mentioned for the All-South Atlantic eleven. Captain Folts, Moore, Keeley and Rockwell received much praise for their work in the back-field. The last named made a pretty eighty-five-yard run in the game with the Maryland "Aggies" for the State championship. Coach "Frits" Crafts of George Washington University, was highly complimented for the good showing of Gallaudet's team in such hard games.

Geneva College, Beaver Falls, Pa.—Having only four days practice before the first game gave the Geneva players no time to develop. The first three games were ragged exhibitions of foot ball, but they were just what was needed to awaken the squad to a realization that it would have to work, which the remaining number of games show. Open style of play was used a great deal. The back-field was composed of five men, all of whom can do a 100 yards in better than 11 seconds. "Every Man Clip a Man" was Geneva's slogan. McCarter, left half-back, played an exceptionally fine game both on offense and defense. He is a fast man carrying the ball, an accurate kicker and passer, and a hard tackler. Armstrong, left guard, was powerful on offense and defense, and followed the ball at all times.

Georgia School of Technology, Atlanta, Ga.—The Tech team had a highly successful season, despite the fact that a majority of the players were new. Though caught napping by the unexpectedly fierce and excellent playing of the University of Alabama early in the campaign, the team rallied splendidly and showed fine ball to the finish. It won handily from Virginia Military Institute, overwhelmed the University of the South as well as Clemson "Aggies." The hardest games were with the University of Georgia and Alabama Polytechnic Institute. The former is Tech's hardest game, and this time the Atlanta students won by a touchdown and goal. In the Alabama Poly game wretched playing was responsible for the 14-0 defeat, as Tech gained more ground than Poly in almost every department. The team was very strong in end running, the work in this line, according to Tech followers, excelling anything seen in that section of the country, due mainly to the cleverest kind of interference. The team was also powerful in line-bucking and forward passing. The punting game, however, was only fairly well developed. The greatest weakness of the team was its inability to keep from fumbling the ball. Had it not been for this the school contends that its team would probably have won the Southern championship. The best players were Senter, at right end; Morrison, at quarter-back, and Captain Fielder and Patton at the halves; Goree also did good work. The outlook for 1915 is the best, by many odds, in the history of the institution. Financially, the season of 1914 was entirely successful. Atlanta has become one of the very best cities for foot ball attendance in the country, and as an excellent schedule of games for 1915 is assured, everything points to a banner season for Tech.

Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y.—The team was handicapped throughout by a lack of material, the result being a green team. The start was slow, but team developed rapidly after first two games. No serious injuries. Good back-field and ends. Captain La Force and Captain-elect Pope starred with their use of the forward pass. Passes of thirty to forty yards were successful. Defeated Hobart for first time in years, and St. Lawrence for first time in four years. Was clearly outclassed by Union in big game of season.

Hamilton Institute for Boys, New York City.—A reflection on the team of 1914 cannot bring to those interested in foot ball at Hamilton Institute any disappointment, either in the games won and lost, or in the quality of Foot Ball that was displayed. With a short schedule, owing to the cancellation of games by other teams, only five games were played, of which three were victories and two defeats. The season opened auspiciously and ended satisfactorily, Horace Mann going down to defeat, 12-7, in a contest marked by the open and spectacular plays of the Hamilton; eleven. The victory of St. John's was in the nature of a try-out on signals, formations and plays. The first real match of the season was the victory over Mt. Vernon in a close and exciting contest. The first reversal came at Garden City, when St. Paul's strong team overwhelmed Hamilton by a score of 19 to 0. This was followed by a defeat in the last two minutes of play by Newman, at Hackensack.

Hampden-Sidney (Va.) College.—Hampden-Sidney had a successful season in 1914, considering the light material at hand. The team was tied for championship honors with Richmond College. Among the conspicuous ground-gainers and general all-around players were Ebel Driver, Thurman, Pendleton, Bowling, Hanes, Perkins, Shackelford, Bugg, Oliver and Warwick.

Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass.—Harvard suffered severely in mid-season on account of the loss of Captain Brickley, and minor injuries to Mahan, Pennock, Hardwick, Coolidge, and Soney. In no game, up to that with Princeton, did the Crimson have its full regular team, with the result that three new men were developed—Francke, at full-back; Parson, at tackle; and Wallace, at center. Hardwick, Bradley and Mahan were the leading back-field men, and Pennock, acting captain, and Trumbull in the line, and Hardwick and Coolidge on the ends were always prominent.

Haverford (Pa.) College.—While the team won three games and lost three last season, from Haverford's viewpoint it was successful, in that Swarthmore, Haverford's rival, played for the first time in twelve years, was tied in the last game of the season. Haverford, in most of the games, while being outweighed, equalled its opponents in playing, even in the games lost. In the Franklin and Marshall contest Haverford outplayed that team for three and a half quarters, but a fumble, misjudged punt, and a spectacular forward pass produced two touchdowns for F. and M. in the last five minutes of the game. Under M. S. Bennett, the old University of Pennsylvania star, a strong defense was developed. Haverford's offensive policy worked well under the guidance of Captain Carey, who starred at quarter-back. Other players who showed up well were, Howland, center; Moore, tackle; Reeves, end; Croaman, half-back, and Ramsey, who played consistently at full-back. Haverford will lose no men by graduation, and, with Bennett as coach, the 1915 season should be successful.

Heidelberg University, Tiffin, Ohio.—With nine men of last year's team back, and Fred Brown of Fostoria filling Captain D'Arcy's place at quarter, Heidelberg turned out one of the best teams in its history. With the exception of Marietta College Heidelberg claims to have had the best team, outside of the Conference, in the State, and ranked with some of the best Conference teams. Clark, former Fostoria High School star, played his usual sensational game throughout the season. Kelly and Captain Brown, tackles, Andrews and Elliot, guards, and Stahl, end, also deserve special mention. Marcus Guther, full-back, of Loveland, Colo., was chosen as Captain of next year's team.

Hill School, Pottstown, Pa.—Hill was handicapped by an exceedingly light team and the early injury of Captain Fuller. Ash, Jermyn and Fuller starred throughout the season. Of the seven games played, Hill won four, scoring fifty-four points to eighty-six for opponents.

Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y.—The team lost heavily in players from the previous year. Captain-elect Ferguson, one of the strongest players and an experienced quarter-back, being unable to return to college at the eleventh hour. However, Hobart grew steadily stronger as the season advanced and was playing splendid ball at the close. Captain Smith, Jenkins and Spalding did good work for the team.

Holy Cross College, Worcester, Mass.—Foot ball at Holy Cross took on a new aspect in 1914, when a radically different system of coaching was inaugurated. For a few years past the old style play of line plunges and the like, was in vogue, but the beginning of the past season saw a change. The open game was adopted with its double, triple and lateral passes, and as was to be expected it took some time to become acclimated, as it were, to the new departure. However, as the season progressed and the team became more proficient in its practice, it proved its scoring value, besides at the same time furnishing an interesting game for the spectators. The team began to hit its stride about the time of the game with the U. S. Military Academy, which defeated Holy Cross, but only by a 14-0 score. Then the Carlisle Indians were held to a scoreless tie, for which Holy Cross seems to be deserving of no small amount of credit because of its wonderful defensive game. The season ended with victories over Boston College and the University of Vermont. The team was very light, being outweighed in every instance by teams which they played. Perhaps Captain-elect Brawley is deserving of the most praise for his stellar game at center. He was picked as second choice for All-America center by one of the Boston papers. Devlin, who took charge of the team in mid-season and generalised it as only a quarter-back should, was also prominent. However, the virtues of the team were found not in individual men, but in the composite whole.

Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn.—The team did not lose a school game last season, the only defeats being at the hands of Yale freshmen and Yale scrubs. Hotchkiss scored 143 points to 24 for opponents. The players who so ably represented Hotchkiss were: Baker and Blakeslee, right end; Page, left end; Douglass and Niles, right tackle; Knight, left tackle; Hotchkiss, right guard; Sidenberg, left guard; Ross, center; Smith, quarter-back and captain; Biglow, right half-back; Winter, left half-back; Hixon, full-back.

Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind.—The new coach started the season with rather raw material. The team progressed steadily, playing strongly in the last three contests. Some of the leading players were Captain M. Erehart, at half-back; Worsey, at tackle; Krause, at end, and A. Erehart, at half-back.

Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md.—Despite the fact that Johns Hopkins started off with a rush, and won in handy fashion the first two games on its schedule, the season was far from a successful one. Captain Paul Wilkinson and Bobby Hoffman played a stellar game in the back-field, while Arthur Primrose and Fear, on the line, showed up very well.

Keuka College, Keuka Park, N. Y.—Foot ball is uncertain at Keuka because of lack of material. There is no prejudice against the game, however, and as soon as conditions warrant it, a team will be placed in the field.

King College, Bristol, Tenn.—King had an unusually heavy schedule in 1914, with a team picked from a school of ninety students. It played many of the leading universities of the South, and made an excellent showing. A trip was made into Florida, the team travelling nearly 2000 miles. It played three games in six days, winning one and losing two. Fain and Davidson, at half-back, and King, at end, were the consistent stars of the team. Wood, at tackle, played fine ball and was easily one of the best punters in the South. The outlook is not overpromising for 1915, as the team will lose its whole back-field and at least one end and a tackle. Besides, Coach Pasini will leave the college.

Kingsley School, Essex Fells, N. J.—The season of 1914 was Kingsley's second without a defeat. In fact, Kingsley has been defeated but once in the last three seasons. The team was light, averaging but 140 pounds. Almost every team Kingsley lined up against averaged ten pounds heavier. In spite of this fact but one down was scored against it. This was in the game with Pingry, which resulted in a score of 67-7 in Kingsley's favor. Kingsley, by defeating Montclair High and Montclair Academy claims the championship of the district and also the private school championship of Northern New Jersey. The Newark Sunday Call placed Kingsley fifth in its ranking of more than one hundred public and private school teams of New Jersey. Right half-back Sperry won the full-back position on the All-Scholastic eleven of Northern New Jersey. Three positions in the Call's private school selections of Northern New Jersey were filled by Kingsley players, namely, Captain Schultz, at left end; Proudft, at left tackle, and Sperry, at full-back.

Lafayette College, Easton, Pa.—Lafayette's foot ball season of 1914 was a success, although the team lost to its rival, Lehigh, by the score of 17-7. The squad, with D. Diamond as captain, reported for practice to Coach Crowell the middle of August, at the Delaware Water Gap, preparatory to real gridiron work after college opened. All indications pointed toward a brilliant and successful season. A start was made by an easy victory over Delaware State, then Ursinus, after which the team tied the University of Pennsylvania. The boys, in high spirits, started practice for the Princeton game, when typhoid fever broke out among the members. With George Brown, the half-back of three years' fame, and Joe Gerlich, the big guard, out of the game, the Tigers defeated Lafayette, 16-0. From this time until the middle of the season almost daily inroads of the dread disease robbed the team of eight varsity players. Not dismayed by misfortune, Coach Crowell whipped a team of substitutes into condition, which did great credit to themselves and the college. Penn State was victorious, 17-0, after a hard struggle, that team being unable to score until the third period. Then Lafayette won two more games, and on November 21 met Lehigh and was defeated, 17-7, after an uphill struggle against great odds. The season, considering all circumstances fairly, was a decided success, and 1915, barring accidents, bids fair to eclipse all former records.

Lawrenceville (N. J.) School.—The Lawrenceville team of 1914, according to Manager Watkins, had a fairly heavy line, and a light, fast backfield. Funk, the captain, played a wonderful game at center, and Ryon was very strong at guard. Hunter played a hard, fast game at end. In the back-field, Eastman was the best man. He played a fast game, and was in every play. He was at left half-back. Rubsman was strong at full-back. He starred mostly on the defensive, breaking up the best the opposing teams had to offer. Fraryheim was probably the most consistent player on the team, with the exception of Captain Funk. He played half-back and full-back, alternately. The best games of the year were with Peddle and Mercersburg, both of which Lawrenceville won.

Lebanon Valley College, Annville, Pa.—Lebanon Valley had the most successful season in 1914 in the history of the college. It opened with the Carlisle Indians, and the latter were held to the low score of 7-0. Franklin and Marshall won from Lebanon by a field goal in the last minute of play. Just a week previous, F. and M. defeated Pennsylvania, 10-0. Gettysburg was defeated for the first time in twenty years, by the score of 24-9. The season was fittingly concluded by defeating Muhlenberg, 7-0. Teams such as the Indian Reserves, Washington College, and Western Maryland were easily disposed of. Lebanon scored a total of 234 points as against 23 by opponents.

Lehigh University, South Bethlehem, Pa.—The 1914 foot ball season at Lehigh produced one of the most successful teams in the history of the university. Although at the beginning the prospects were not bright a semblance of a team was whipped into shape to meet the strong Franklin and Marshall eleven. The game was harder than expected and was closely contested, Lehigh winning, 12-0. In the Indian game the team showed up better, and at Yale played a better game than the score of 20-3 for Yale indicates. The Carnegie Tech game was loosely played, but against Muhlenberg and Johns Hopkins, Lehigh played in first class form. Penn State was the first big game of the season and the first real test. Lehigh won, 20-7. The team made 11 first downs to State's 3. In this game Cahall, Hoban and Sawtell were the stars. Cahall for his drop-kicking and ground-gaining, Hoban for his line-plunging and Sawtell for his fast end work. At Lafayette the team was prime and working like a machine. The backs ripped big holes in the Lafayette line and gained almost at will. Here again Cahall and Hoban were the stars. In fact, Cahall, due to his drop-kicking, was the big man in every game, for very rarely did he ever fail to boot the ball true and in some cases kicking from hard angles and from long distances, forty-seven yards being his record. Hoban rarely ever failed to gain, and his line-plunging was spectacular.

Manual Training High School, Brooklyn, N. Y.—One victory out of nine games played was the school record for 1914. The team started with fair prospects, but during the week of October 5 injuries in practice robbed it of the services of of the best men. At that, Manual claims it clearly outplayed Adelphi and fought Commerce to a standstill. The most prominent players were Hinch, Firsching and Titus.

Marietta (Ohio) College.—Marietta, although losing two important games, closed a successful season, winning from its greatest rival, Ohio University, on the latter's grounds, and also defeating the University of Akron, on Akron's ground and while that team was one of the chief contenders for the State championship. It is contended at the college that Hinman, the full-back, was the best ground-gainer in the State, and had Marietta been in the Ohio Conference he would have been first choice for All-State full-back. Hayes, who played his first year at quarter-back, showed much foot ball ability, distinguishing himself in the art of handling passes. Herron and Sutton, captain-elect, acquitted themselves very creditably. The college should have a season of even greater success in 1915.

Marshall College, Huntington, W. Va.—Marshall won five of the ten games played and scored 232 points to 167 by opponents. The features of the playing were: Marshall scored seven touchdowns (41 points) in six minutes against Sandy Valley Seminary, a team of the same weight; Nagle passed fifty yards to Reeser, who ran thirty yards for the only score of the game against Ohio Northern; Marietta completed nineteen forward passes, while Marshall completed eighteen. Marietta used one pass six times, while Marshall used the same formation and pass five times successfully.

Maryland Agricultural College, College Park, Md.—The team was made up of green material, which was the cause of the poor showing early in the season, but at that the "Aggies" claim to have won the championship of the State in 1913 and 1914. Knode, Hindman and Bowland were the only letter men. Derrick, Oberlin and Carter showed themselves to be very promising. The team will lose only three men by graduation.

Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, Mass.—Although the final scores of many games do not show up well, the college foot ball authorities consider that the season was satisfactory, considering the quality of the teams played. The center, Dale, was mentioned by Captain Angel of Tufts as a player of All-America caliber. Palmer, who was at full-back and half-back, played every minute of every game, and scored all of the points but twelve, including the goals. In the game with Tufts the "Aggies" displayed the best foot ball of the season, and were a credit to any coach. Coach Brides is a man of exceptional ability and will serve in the same capacity in 1915.

Masten Park High School, Buffalo, N. Y.—Masten Park started the season in good form, but could not keep it up. Coach Gresham Andrews developed some very promising material. Webster, half-back, and Dieter, guard, were selected for the All-High School team. Webster was a wonderful end and broken field runner, while it is claimed there was not a guard or lineman in Greater New York who could touch Dieter. Captain Schnals spoiled his chances for the highest honors by playing full-back part of the season, but he was a great player. Schoedel, full-back, was the most consistent ground-gainer on the team. Workley, quarter-back, used excellent judgment and ran the team finely. Zangerle, center and guard, was a hard worker for his first year in foot ball. Kamelnsky, another first year man, was the third choice for All-High School tackle. The ends were rather weak, most of the opponents' gains being made around those positions. Zimmer and Cressel played in splendid form, but were unable to take part in the majority of the games played. The substitute ends, Young, Weadrick and Long, were fair, but could not stop the interference of opposing teams. Manager Randolph says: "We hope to have better luck in 1915, and are going to win. Our motto still holds: 'In Victory or Defeat, Masten Park.'"

Miami College, Oxford, Ohio.—With the exception of the Ohio University and Indiana University games the team's playing in 1914 was very good. The Mt. Union, Denison and Cincinnati games were excellent exhibitions of foot ball, not from the standpoint of individuals, but of team work and hard, clean play. The Denison contest, in particular, was far above the average games played in Ohio. Although the score does not indicate it, both teams played great ball and showed the possibilities of fine teams for both institutions in 1915. The leading players of the Miami team were Pierce, Cranford, Landry, Baer, Butterfield and Farley.

Michigan Agricultural College, East Lansing, Mich.—The Michigan "Aggies" failed to repeat their sensational performance of 1913, but still proved their right to be ranked with the "big" teams of the country. The most satisfactory developments of the season were the defeat of Penn State, on the first invasion of the East, and the selection of Captain Julian and Blake Miller as members of the All-Western team. In the game with the University of Michigan the "Aggies" claim to have outplaythe Wolverines for three-quarters of the game, and lost in the last three minutes of play, when Splawn kicked a goal from the field. To this gruelling battle is attributed much of the cause for the defeat by Nebraska, a week later. The team was not in the best physical shape, although it appeared fit, and the Nebraskans were primed for the fight. Overconfidence also had a part in the downfall of the "Aggies." To the credit of the men, they came back strong, and finished the season in fine shape by defeating Penn State, at State College, on Pennsylvania Day. Another man to play a consistently brilliant game, and whose work merits special mention, was Smith, the giant left tackle. He has met and outplayed some of the greatest tackles in the West.

Middlebury (Vt.) College.—The season of 1914 was successful because Norwich and St. Lawrence, Middlebury's special rivals, were both defeated, and Vermont was held to a scoreless tie in the decisive game of the season for the State championship, and when odds were in favor of Vermont. The schedule was the hardest one in the history of the college, and much heavier teams were held down to close scores, the Massachusetts "Aggies" winning on what was considered at Middlebury as a fluke. Only two men will be lost by graduation, Captain Jones, who has played a steady game at left end for four years, and Kron, who has played in the back field. With the good material at hand, Middlebury ought to give a good account of itself in 1915.

Middletown (N. Y.) High School.—Four victories and four defeats was Middletown's record last season. The most important game was the last on the schedule, with the Newburgh Free Academy, for what was termed the championship of Orange County. Middletown won, 19-0. The line-up against the New York Military Academy was made on a field covered with six inches of snow, the result being in favor of the Cornwall boys, 14-0. Captain Sundstrom and Captain-elect Lutes were the leading players.

Montclair (N. J.) Academy.—The team of 1914 was one of the best of late years; a team of all-around excellence, which won every scholastic game, except one, it played. Unusual coincidence of illness and injuries kept five regulars off the field for the week previous to and the day of the final game with Kingsley, which resulted in defeat.

Morris High School, New York City.—Morris High School enjoyed its best year in foot ball in 1914. The team, composed of most of last year's men, won six games, tied one and lost two. Mt. Vernon was easily defeated, in which game many new men were tried out. Yonkers played Morris when the latter had three regulars out, eligibility rules being the cause, and 6-6 was the score. Stuyvesant was easy, 24-0. Curtis was overwhelmed, 39-0. After outplaying Commerce, Manly's thumb was put out of place while throwing a forward pass, which went wide, and was intercepted for a touchdown. Peekskill Military Academy, Clinton and Plainfield were defeated in order. The forward passing and line-bucking of Captain Manly, the end runs of Ervix, the interference of Bronfman, and the plunging of Colletti were the prime factors in the success of the team. On the line, Weinheimer's catching forwards, Traenor's passing, and Schweidle's tackling were noteworthy.

Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, Md.—Mount St. Mary's season of 1914 was cut short, after two games were played, when the faculty decided to discontinue the sport for one year. The team had defeated two State colleges, and the prospects for a championship eleven were never brighter. Captain Dowdle was the star of the team and his work on offense and defense was of the highest type. He is considered at the college the greatest tackle that ever played in the State. Other players who deserve mention are Kelley, Stohman, Mahony, Cahill, Rice and Sutton.

Mount Union College, Alliance, Ohio.—The 1914 season of Mount Union was the most successful in the history of the College. Coupled with a good defense was probably the most powerful offense possessed by any team in Ohio. Mount Union claims to have led all teams in the State in points scored, 276. The team was at its best the last month of the season. In that time Case was defeated, 49-0; Michigan "Aggies" kept to 14-21; Ohio University defeated, 23-6, and Wooster crushed in the final game on Thanksgiving Day, 70 to 3. Lovell, full-back; Beck, at tackle; Bletser, end, and Peterson, guard, were the stars, and were placed by most critics on the All-Ohio eleven. Vandegrift, Shoemaker and Thompson also did good work. Bletser made a wonderful record in goal kicking, scoring thirty-seven goals, after touchdowns, in thirty-seven attempts.

Mount Vernon (N. Y.) High School.—The followers of the high school are not at all discouraged over the team's poor record of having won only three games out of eight played. In fact, they contend that it played fine foot ball. Fee, Stickles and Van York were the stars of the back-field, each player scoring a number of touchdowns during the season. Parker, left tackle, was another star with his cellent passing, while Sweet, the right end, showed exceptional ability in handling passes and punts.

Muskingum College, New Concord, Ohio.—The team's poor showing in the early part of the season was due to the fact that Captain Garges, quarter-back, and mainstay of the eleven, was out of the game because of injuries. Few teams in Ohio had a better bunch of material out for foot ball than Muskingum, and the reason that a winning combination did not result was probably due to lack of proper coaching. Only two players, Bell, full-back, and Monteith, tackle, will be lost by graduation, and prospects for a winning team next season are very bright. A splendid schedule has been arranged by Manager Miller. Each member of the 1914 team acquitted himself creditably, and special mention should be made of the playing of ex-Captain Sinclair, Captain Garges, and Captain-elect Booth. The line-up of the team was: Gibson, left end; Swalar, left tackle; Shearer, left guard; Cogsl, center; Jeffrey, right guard; Monteith, right tackle; Hecker, right end; Garges, quarter-back; Booth, right half-back; Atkinson, left half-back; Bell, full-back; Morrow, Devore, Moorehead, Kuhn and Smith, substitutes.

Neptune High School, Ocean Grove, N. J.—Neptune had a fair season last year, winning three and losing three games, and one was a tie. The players did very well, considering the amount of new material, but they were well trained by Coach Cook. Sifford and Capibianco played finely throughout the season, well deserving of their position on the All-East Jersey High School team.

Newberry (S. C.) College.—Although handicapped by injuries the greater part of the season, foot ball was considered a success at Newberry, it being the second year of the intercollegiate game. Captain McLain, at quarter-back, was the class of the State as a field general, forward passer, and in returning punts. During the season he returned punts for touchdowns five times. Ashbaugh, at end, was an All-State selection. Captain-elect Swanton, and R. Baker, at half-back, were the best ground gainers. R. Baker and Renken were selections for the second All-State team. The team was most successful with the open game. Prospects for 1915 are very bright, with six regulars returning.

New Brunswick, (N. J.) High School.—The season of 1914 was not a great success, considering the victories and losses, but, taking into account the caliber of the opposing teams, the school feels it did very well. The team won two games and lost four, but in the six contests New Brunswick amassed a total of 75 points to 42 for opponents. Trenton High School was held to 6-0, the touchdown being made on what New Brunswick termed a fluke. Scott, at guard, was, perhaps, the team's leading player, though the work of Charles Morris, full-back, proved of great value to the team. Ivy, half-back, was a fine ground gainer. Captain Bergen did as well as could be expected, everything considered. The team defeated its old rival, Rutgers Prep, by a score of 34-0.

Newman School, Hackensack, N. J.—Following is the data of the 1914 foot ball team at Newman, as outlined by J. A. Locke: "The foot ball season of 1914 was one of the most successful that a Newman team ever had. The record was seven victories, and no defeats. In the game with Lincoln High School, Newman ran up a record score for the State of New Jersey, 102-0. Coach L'Henreux claims the eleven was the best that ever represented the school. The fine playing of Mitchell, O'Brien and Webb was a prime factor in making the team what it was. But more important than the great prowess of any individual was the strength and spirit of the team as a unit. It is to L'Henreux's ability as an organizer that the team work was due. It was scored on only twice, and Newman made 219 points to 12 for opponents."

New York University, New York City.—The team had a successful season, winning five out of nine games. The two stars were Captain Huntley and Wemer. The latter was named in many Eastern newspapers as All-Eastern tackle. The kicking of Tom Cusack, the big Irish guard, deserves mention. He consistently booted the ball over the bar from the fifty-yard line.

North Carolina Agricultural and Mechanical College, West Raleigh, N. C.—The team had a fairly good season, the start being especially promising, but on account of losing some of its best players the team was unable to hold up as well as expected. The principal games were with the U. S. Naval Academy, Georgetown, West Virginia University and Washington and Lee. Among the leading players were Tandy, full-back; Van Brockline, quarter-back, and Seifert, right end.

Northeast Manual Training High School, Philadelphia, Pa.—Team work and the self-sacrificing spirit of every player for the benefit of the team were chiefly responsible for Northeast's success last season. There were, however, members of the team who stood out more prominently than others. Webb, captain, made fine galat end running, and was unsurpassed in throwing forward passes. His passes and the effective playing of the ends, Breithaupt and Wilson, aided the team greatly. The line-plunging and defensive work of Hendren were much in evidence. Reidpath did notable work at guard. It was he who, in the big game of the season with Central High School, got through and blocked a kick, which enabled Northeast to score the safety that won the game.

Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.—With the exception of the Indiana game the results at the university were about as predicted. The team was composed of inexperienced men, who were unable to adjust themselves to changing conditions. Two ends, two tackles, and one guard had never played foot ball of any kind, not even during their freshman year. One guard and the quarter-back had played only on the freshman team. Captain Hightower, who played brilliantly in 1913, was affected by injuries all season and could not do his best. Captain-elect Stromberg was the most consistent performer.

Oberlin (Ohio) College.—The Oberlin team began the season of 1914 with only four men from the first team of the previous year. The abundance of mediocre material showed such a woeful lack of foot ball experience that the coaches were not able to develop a team for the opening game of the season against Miami. This team outweighed Oberlin about fifteen pounds per man, and by using old fashioned foot ball was able to smash its way to victory. Demoralised by this defeat, Oberlin was easily defeated by Denison the following week. At this period the team began to show some unity and won the next two games without much difficulty. Two reverses again followed, at the hands of Western Reserve at Cleveland and Ohio State at Columbus. But the team fought hard through both of these contests, and in the last game of the year against Case, at Oberlin, showed the first real class of the season, defeating Case, 35 to 7. In victories and defeats it was the poorest foot ball season Oberlin has experienced for five or six years, but when the class of material is considered, there is a general feeling that the college's record was a fairly good one.

Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio.—Owing to the ineligibility of several players the team failed to get going in good shape until the Wisconsin game. Although neither of the two leading teams of the Ohio Conference were met, Ohio State, according to Manager Watt, was generally considered as the strongest team in the State. The exceptions based their decisions on the fact that Ohio State was now in Western circles and could no longer be considered. Cherry, left end, was selected on the All-Western teams almost unanimously. He also was selected on three All-America teams, and received honorable mention on others. Captain Graf was second choice for All-Western full-back. Cherry, Snyder, Kiefer, Pickereel, Graf, Boughton, Yassenoff were picked on All-Ohio teams. The first five were named on the mythical eleven selected by eleven of the fourteen Ohio foot ball coaches. Ohio was given fifth place, with Purdue, in the Western Conference standing, each team winning two and losing two games. On comparative scores, however, Ohio is ranked above Purdue.

Ohio University, Athens, Ohio.—Captain Palmer, at half-back, was easily the best man on the team. Others who played well were R. Finsterwald, Hendrickson, Goddard, Hanley, Shoffer and Fuller.

Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio.—During 1912 and 1913, our foot ball standards at Ohio Wesleyan took a big drop, but last season, under the direction of F. W. Dixon, there was a complete reorganisation with very satisfactory results. The teams of 1913 that defeated Wesleyan so decisively were in 1914 held to within one touchdown, and, in some cases, were defeated by Wesleyan. The latter was unfortunate in the first part of the season, owing to the fact that Coach Dixon was detained in Europe by the war conditions. This was largely responsible for the Colgate score. W. Harris was almost unanimously selected by all competent authorities as All-Ohio guard. Littick received mention for end position, while White was several times mentioned for tackle honors. The quarter-back was selected for the second All-Ohio team. The newly elected captain, Battenfield, was one of the stars on the Delaware High School team, which won the State championship, and was coached by Dixon, the present university coach. Wesleyan expects to have the best team in the history of the institution in 1915, and is out strong for the championship.

Paterson (N. J.) High School.—Of the work of the Paterson team in 1914, Manager Lloyd McCann writes: "It was the first season of Paterson High School at foot ball with a coach. Our first defeat was at the hands of the Atlantic City team. When it was found impossible to take our regular team to the seaside city we asked to have the game cancelled, but the request was refused. The result was we played with five regulars missing, including the captain, quarter-back and half-back. The man who played at quarter-back had never been in a foot ball game before. In the game with the alumni the latter team was made up of former stars, now college men, and many playing on 'varsity teams.'

Peddie Institute, Hightstown, N. J.—The team last season had to be developed from green material, only three of the 1913 regulars being available. Therefore, it took some time for the new men to get into their stride. They played their first real foot ball by the end of the season, and in the final game made 81 points in the first half. Only two minutes of the second half were played, during which time Peddie scored two touchdowns, which shows what might have been done had a full game been played. The most consistent work was done by Stegman, Murphy, Garrett and Wescott, the showing of the latter being the more remarkable because he played at left guard, although weighing only 157 pounds. The average weight of the team was 158 pounds. Twelve of the 'varsity squad are expected to be on hand in 1916.

Pennsylvania Institution for the Deaf, Mt. Airy, Pa. The season of 1914 was almost a clean sweep for this team, as of the seven games played only one was lost. Another game, with the Southern High School, resulted in a tie. The team scored 210 points to 14 for opponents. The players who made up the team were: Freeman Weaver, left end; Charles Rosenmund, left tackle; Ernest Werner, left guard; Albert Doby, center; George Davies, right guard; Lawrence Barret, right tackle; Bert Dunkerly, right end; James Jennings, left half-back; Donald Smith, right half-back; Gilbert Singerman, quarter-back; John Macowski, full-back; Stanley Kreiger, Chalmer Snabley and Ladislav Lullbacke, substitutes.

Penn State College, State College, Pa.—Penn State reached the height of its season in the game with Harvard, played at the Stadium. During the last minute of play, Harvard, by a triple pass, tied the score. A series of accidents, during and following this game, deprived the team of its star ends, "Whitey" Thomas and Higgins, also Clark, full-back. At a bonfire celebration of the Harvard game, Captain E. W. Tobin was so badly burned as to be unfit for active work the rest of the season. It must, therefore, be remembered that Penn State played the last three games with a badly crippled team. The Michigan "Aggies" contest, at home, was played on Founders' Day, and was the biggest game, in point of attendance, that was ever played on Beaver Field.

Perkiomen Seminary, Pennsburg, Pa.—The schedule at Perkiomen Seminary in 1914 was much more difficult than in previous years. The teams met were, in every instance, heavier than the Perkiomen eleven. Against such teams as West Philadelphia, Blair Hall, Farm School and Vernon Training School, however, where the difference in weight was only about ten pounds in each instance, the Perkiomen team showed excellent ability and played a remarkable game. The open style was used almost entirely, due to the extreme lightness of the men. The team averaged about 145 pounds. Ruos, the captain, was an exceptional open field runner. The fact was shown by his ninety-five-yard run through the entire West Philadelphia team, after he had received the ball on a punt on the five-yard line. He threw the forward pass accurately and in this department was, it is claimed, probably superior to any schoolboy in the East. Moyer, at full-back, was another star, while Falconer and Gregory were exceptional defensive players.

Phillips Exeter Academy, Exeter, N. H.—Exeter started the campaign of 1914 with but four of last year's team, but under the efficient coaching of T. A. D. Jones had the most successful season in the history of foot ball at the Academy. It is impossible to pick out any one man as being better than the rest, as it was the perfect team work rather than individual playing which allowed Exeter to win every game by such large scores. An example of this was shown in the Yale freshman game when Yale twice had the ball on Exeter's two-yard line with first down, but was held without a score, and this was against a team which far outweighed the academy boys and included more experienced players.

Plainfield (N. J.) High School.—In the game with the alumni the high school team met the strongest combination the former ever put in the field. The result was a tie, 6-6. The alumni team included Good, the Colgate guard, and Nash of Temple College. During the season Plainfield played nine games, of which it won four, lost four and one was a tie. The stars were Penneck, guard and captain-elect; Peacock, quarter-back, and Semer, end. Rosenon, half-back, kicked every punt safely.

Princeton (N. J.) University.—Princeton's 1914 foot ball season was a bitter disappointment at the university. The best material that had offered itself in many years failed to develop as expected. The "open game" policy announced by the coaches was well carried out in the first two games, but dwindled as the season advanced. The Dartmouth game, 16-12, was a success through Driggs' punting and the team's alertness to take advantage of opponents' errors. A surprise and incentive to harder practice came in the tie with Williams, 7-7. Captain Ballin and Highley starred in the Harvard game. Ballin was half of Princeton's defense, and Highley work at end was distinctive. Though each man played a good game the defeat of 20-0 was due to the lack of unity in Princeton's line. The last quarter of the Yale game was typical of Princeton's "never say die" spirit. With Glick at quarter, the team played as never before during the season and won a victory for themselves by outplaying Yale in the last quarter, though the final score favored Yale, 19-14.

Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind.—Under the direction of Coach Smith, Purdue made a good showing in 1914. Wabash and Western Reserve were easily defeated. Wisconsin won a hard fought game from the Bollermakers, while Chicago won by three sensational runs for touchdowns. Kentucky State and Northwestern were overwhelmed. In the final game of the season, Purdue's oldest rival, Indiana, was defeated in a red hot contest. Routh and Blocker were stars in the line. The work of the back-field, composed of Pultz, Abfell, O'Brien and Van Aken, was wonderful. Purdue will have twelve letter men back in 1915, and the team should put up a great game.

Rahway (N. J.) High School.—Rahway claims the high school championship of the State for 1914 by defeating Barringer, East Orange, Trenton and Dickinson. Brooks, right half-back was given a place on the All-State team, and A. Armstrong was placed on the second All-State team. Rossell deserves especial mention for his fine work at quarter-back. Manton was an excellent end, and Durand, at center, and Schweitzer, at tackle, were strong in their respective positions. The principal games were with Barringer, East Orange and Trenton. Over 5000 persons witnessed the East Orange game on November 3.

Randolph-Macon College, Ashland, Va.—Randolph-Macon started off with a nucleus of only five regular men from the year before, and it looked anything but encouraging for a successful season. However, some good foot ball was exhibited, and the team was able to win half of its games, running up a total of 124 points to its opponents' 83. In the Eastern Virginia Intercollegiate Association, Randolph-Macon made a strong bid for the championship, after losing the first two games to weaker teams. William and Mary squeezed out a victory, and Hampden-Sidney also won by a close margin, but when these two teams met again a different tale was told. Randolph-Macon won from both teams, and likewise ran up the largest score ever recorded in the association, that against William and Mary of 63 points. Leaving off the first two contests, which were simply practice games for the larger institutions, Randolph-Macon had a satisfactory season, and, while not winning the championship of the association, finished second. W. R. Scott, captain-elect, was the individual star of the team and was picked for one of the ends on the All-Eastern Virginia team.

Referees for Important College Games.—At a meeting of the Intercollegiate Rules Committee's sub-committee on officials, held in Philadelphia, May 28, the following selections were made for the Harvard-Yale, Yale-Princeton, and Harvard-Princeton contests this season: Yale-Harvard—Tufts, Brown, referee; Fultz, Brown, umpire; Dr. Williams, Pennsylvania, field judge; Morice, Pennsylvania, head linesman. Yale-Princeton—Tufts, referee; Marshall, umpire; Morice, field judge; Pendleton, linesman. Princeton-Harvard—Langford, Trinity, referee; Williams, umpire; Pendleton, Bowdoin, field judge; G. N. Barthart, linesman.

Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y.—The season of 1914 was fairly successful, considering some big handicaps. There were only three veterans left from last year, and it fell to Coach Gargan to build up the team. With very light material he developed a good fighting machine. Gallagher, the star full-back, played his usual brilliant game. "Deak" Young, at center, was the best ever seen around Troy. Frank, a freshman who has had a great deal of experience in "prep" school foot ball, played an excellent game at right guard. Peart and Parrot both played real foot ball. Lockman and O'Hara, in 1915, should show much improvement, in fact, all the team.

Rhode Island State College, Kingston, R. I.—The work of the team in 1914 was disappointing, due to the fact that there were so many new men. Some of the first string men were the victims of injuries, causing a serious handicap. The playing of Captain Price, right half-back, was one of the features of the season.

Richmond (Va.) College.—The Richmond team was fast but suffered many setbacks from minor injuries, never presenting the same line-up in two consecutive games. Captain Ancarrow finished his foot ball career by playing a heady, consistent game. Logan, Craig and Pallard, in the back-field, did most of the ground-gaining, while Robins' work at right tackle was the season's leading feature. Wicker, at center, and McNiell, Coburn and Oaks formed a very capable line, the first named being especially active in breaking through and tackling on the ends. Privott and Newton, at ends, played well, and "Tiny" Wicker developed into a first class quarter-back

Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N. J.—The Targum, Rutgers College official organ, in its review of the 1914 season, says: "The season was undoubtedly the most successful in the history of the college. It marked an epoch in the career of athletics at Rutgers, an epoch where the prevailing characteristics were plenty of material, earnest co-operation between faculty, alumni, coaches and team, a marvelous coaching staff, absence of dissension and the hearty and active support of the student body. For real, versatile, exciting foot ball the game at the Polo Grounds was probably the best of the entire foot ball season. Washington and Jefferson displayed a lightning back-field and a wonderfully developed and varied forward pass, while the Scarlet demonstrated its great power in line-plunging and in steady team work. No other team of the year was able to carry the ball down the field for two touchdowns against W. and J. In selecting an All-America team every metropolitan newspaper placed Captain Toohy on the first team as one of the best two tackles in the country, but in justification of Coach Sanford's statement that it was not a team of individual stars, but one that was consistent throughout, the daily papers gave much credit to Naah, Twing, Talman and Garrett."

S. J. Grenet Team, Pittsburgh, Pa.—The season of 1914 was one of the most successful and prosperous in the history of the Grenet team. Practically the same squad has been together for four seasons, the exceptions being Alton and Dixon. Nine games were played, eight of which were won and one resulted in a tie. The Grenets scored 276 points to 9 for opponents. The Sycamore A. A. was the first to score against the Grenets, getting a touchdown through forward passing, and in the final game of the season the Bradley A. A. scored a field goal in the first quarter. During the season the New Kensington Scholastics issued a challenge to all teams for the independent championship. This was accepted by the Grenets, and in a game played at Peterson Park, Tarentum, the result was a tie, 0-0.

Springfield Y. M. C. A. College, Springfield, Mass.—Manager Van Geyt, in a review of Springfield's 1914 season, says: "With the first call for practice in September, Dr. McCurdy found that he had a nucleus of nine veterans and two first string 'subs' from the 1913 team. That Springfield was to make a name for herself on the gridiron was manifested after the first game, in which Worcester Tech was defeated in extremely easy fashion. The next game was one of those unaccountable things in foot ball. Springfield made 11 first downs to Harvard's 7, gained 163 yards on forward passes to Harvard's 38, made 63 yards at rushing to Harvard's 136, and was defeated, 44 to 0. Harvard was certainly not more than ten points better than Springfield. With the sting of this game still fresh, Holy Cross was taken on and had to suffer to the tune of 25 to 0. Next came what proved the hardest pill to swallow of the year. With the score 13 to 3 and four minutes to play, Williams, by the wonderful play of Toolan, scored two touchdowns in two and one-half minutes. Even then Springfield did not give up, but carried the ball from its ten-yard line, after the kick-off, to Williams' twelve-yard line, only to have time called. The next two games were rather easy, Vermont teams being the victims in both cases. Now the highest point of the season was to be reached in the final three games. All three were hard. Springfield won from Amherst, 20 to 0, and from the "Aggies," 16 to 3, but had to work every minute to do so. The final game with the U. S. Military Academy was played in a sea of mud. The condition of the field was so bad that Springfield was unable to make a single end run from scrimmage, its fleet ten-second men, Williams and Beghold, not being able to get started. The whole plan of the work during the season hinged on the team playing as a machine and for this reason it is somewhat difficult to pick individual stars. Captain Bell did his best work in acting as interference for the runner, shining particularly well in the manner he overcame men who were trying to get the man with the ball. Miller, in his handling of punts, showed exceptional ability, especially in the U. S. Military Academy game, when he repeatedly brought the ball back for good returns, once making sixty-five yards and again forty-eight yards through the whole Army team. Williams, Myers and Fountain, because of their speed, could be counted on to gain ground around the ends, aided materially by the good work of the interference. Gibson demonstrated his ability at line bucking, his biggest piece of work being a sixty-yard run against Harvard."

Stamford (Conn.) High School.—Stamford again claims the Connecticut school championship, defeating Hartford High School, the other important contender, for the 1914 title. The team also won from De Witt Clinton of New York, and Dickinson of New Jersey, both representative teams in their respective States. Everett High Boston proved too much for the Connecticut lads, however, and although the lads played far below form, chiefly due, no doubt, to the long trip, Everett was admitted to be easily the better team. Kelley, Cook and Captain Brennan were the stars. Kelley is one of the fastest schoolboy players in the East. He will enter Rutge and Cook will enter Syracuse. Brennan has another year at Stamford. Most of the credit for the success of the team is due to Coach Boyle, an instructor in the school.

Staunton (Va.) Military Academy.—This team started out with bright prospects, but suffered much from injuries. Was at its top form in the Woodberry Forest School game, which was won, 14—3. Praeter, at full-back; Scherer, at guard, and Randall, at half-back, played consistently throughout the season.

Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken, N. J.—The season of 1914 was a disastrous one for Stevens. With the exception of one game, a tie with Delaware, the schedule was a row of defeats, and Stevens scored only 26 points in eight games to 263 for opponents. The leading games were with New York University and Rutgers, in both of which Stevens was easily defeated. The men who did the best work were: Todd, right half-back and captain-elect; Stretch, left tackle and captain; Webb, right end, and Marshall, full-back.

St. John's College, Annapolis, Md.—St. John's went through the season of 1914 with only one defeat by a State college out of four games played. The season ended with a great "come back" after the defeat by Virginia. The old rival, Johns Hopkins University, was overwhelmed on Homewood Field, Thanksgiving Day. Every man in the back-field—Turner, Bowen, Stromeyer and Heise—deserves credit for good work. Heise was picked as captain of the All-Maryland team. Both of the ends, Noble and Andrews, were among the fastest men in the State. Captain Kelly, at left tackle, played a steady, hard game throughout the season. Many times he would break up a play before it passed the line of scrimmage. Hyde, at center, played very well. At times he broke up plays before the quarter-back could get the ball to the backs.

St. Lawrence University, Canton, N. Y.—St. Lawrence started the season of 1914 with a team of practically all green men, and at no time played a game of special merit. The defeat by Hamilton followed a string of four consecutive victories. Two regulars will be lost by graduation.

St. Paul's School, Garden City, L. I., N. Y.—The season was started with green material and did not develop until the middle of the schedule. The season was counted as successful, as St. Paul's principal rivals, Newark Academy and Irving School, were both defeated. The team was light, and was handicapped by playing much heavier aggregations.

St. Stephen's College, Annandale, N. Y.—The season of 1914 was the second since foot ball was restored at St. Stephen's and was therefore considered quite successful. The game with Hobart College was won after a hard contest, 16—14. Only three men out of a squad of over thirty will be lost by graduation, so that a strong team is expected in the fall of 1915.

Stuyvesant High School, New York City.—Although Stuyvesant finished the season with a better showing than Clinton, the season cannot be said to have been a satisfactory one. While the team was playing with eleven regulars on the field it defeated such powerful elevens as Commercial and Stevens Prep, and with a disabled team played De Witt Clinton off its feet, for the first time in the history of the school. Captain McGuinness showed that he was a greatly improved player. Sinclair and Haight starred in the line, and Berglund and Samson played well in the back-field. Taken all in all, Stuyvesant claims that it has been recognized as a dangerous contender for the New York City championship.

Sunbury (Pa.) High School.—The season was not as satisfactory as it might have been, on account of the visiting teams not showing up very well. The only good game was with Mt. Carmel, at Sunbury, which was won by the local team, 8—0. Both teams played finely. The leading players of the season were: Captain Adams, tackle; Stillwagner, quarter-back; Thomas, full-back, and Weaver and Fetler, ends.

Susquehanna University, Selinsgrove, Pa.—Foot ball came back into its own at Susquehanna in 1914, after an absence of five years. The team did not have many victories to its credit, but made a creditable showing, considering the greenness of the material—only two men having ever played the game before. Then, again, fate seemed to be against the team, for several of the most promising men were laid up, more or less, throughout the season. Plenty of fighting spirit was shown, and every game was contested to the limit. The leading players were: Captain Swope, Nichols, Peters, Shannon, Harmon, Middlesworth and Keller.

Swarthmore (Pa.) College.—Swarthmore had a rather disastrous season in 1914, due largely to the large number of new men playing their first year of college foot ball. Only two games were won, one tied and five lost. The season marked the appearance of Haverford on the Garnet schedule, after an absence of ten years. On November 21 the two old Quaker rivals met at Haverford, and after a bitterly fought game, neither team could score a touchdown. The game resulted in a tie, 3—3. Dr. Mercer, the former Pennsylvania and All-America full-back, acted as trainer and assistant coach, and his services were of great value. Captain Ben Cilme, Pete Hunter, D. Murch and Endicott were the men who showed up to best advantage. Cornog and Lock, two freshmen, should develop into sterling players the coming season.

Swarthmore (Pa.) Preparatory School.—The team was green but heavy, developing speed and efficiency for the Haverford game, which Swarthmore won, 7-0, in a splendid struggle. The first half closed with the ball in Swarthmore's possession on the one-yard line. Against Penn Charter the locals had a scrub back-field and poor line, while Penn Charter was strong. The result was the latter won, 20-0. Stevenson, Stow and Kelley were the best ground-gainers, while Stiles, Johnson and Hoyt, with Blake at end, were hard men to get by.

Syracuse (N. Y.) University.—Opening the season by defeating Hobart and Hamilton by large scores, Syracuse gave evidence of having a championship team. On October 10, at Princeton, Syracuse upheld this reputation by outplaying the Tigers, so it is claimed, but losing in a hard fought game, 12 to 7. Two beautiful drop-kicks and a fumble by Syracuse caused its downfall. On the following Saturday Coach O'Neill sent his reserves against Rochester, and easily defeated that eleven. Then began the long, hard list of games. The team easily defeated the University of Michigan, 20 to 6. Even the mighty Maulbetsch failed to gain against the Syracuse line. Carlisle was given the short end of a 24 to 3 score. These two games, however, badly crippled the Syracuse back-field. Injuries and lack of material in this department proved to be the undoing of the team, so far as victories were concerned. Rutgers and Colgate were played to ties. Then came the worst defeat of the season, at the hands of Dartmouth. The team finished the season on Thanksgiving Day with a defeat at the hands of the rejuvenated Notre Dame team. Captain-elect Rose, Wilkinson, Schlaecter and White were the bright lights in the Syracuse team's action.

Troy (N. Y.) High School.—Troy claims a tie with Albany for the Northeastern New York foot ball championship. The first eight games of the season resulted in victories over such teams as Albany High School, Saratoga High School, Edison Draughting School. The last two games were lost, but Troy claims the second Albany game was the only real defeat, as in the Hoosick Falls game Troy outplayed its rivals, except for a few minutes when Hoosick Falls scored a goal on a drop-kick. It was the strongest team Troy has had for several years, and much credit should be given to Arthur Pierce, a former Williams College player, who showed himself to be a clever coach.

Tufts College, Medford, Mass.—"Dr. Charles Whelan, Dartmouth, 1901," says Manager Hunt of the 1915 eleven, "sustained his reputation as being one of the best coaches on offensive play in the country, by turning out a record team in 1914. The 40 to 14 score against Colby, and the 60 to 6 score against Bowdoin, Tufts' old rivals, showed the offensive strength of the team. The defeat by the champion Harvard team by a score of 13 to 6, only after a hard fight, was a commendable showing. The work of the entire back-field, consisting of Angell, Wescott, Hadley and Parks, the captain-elect, was excellent. Stankard and Bennett, at ends, and Richardson, at center, contributed greatly to the success of the team."

Tusculum College, Greeneville, Tenn.—The season was very successful, considering the late start and few games that were played. The latter was due to the fact the faculty did not vote to allow foot ball until late, and no schedule could be arranged. The chief features of the games were the line-plunging of Captain Fox, the spectacular end running of L. Fox and the kicking of Clemens. There is some excellent material and a good schedule for the season of 1915, and Tusculum expects a winning team.

Union College, Schenectady, N. Y.—Union enjoyed the splendid success of winning all of the eight games played in 1914. In connection with a defense, which was steady and versatile, the team presented an offense which increased in power as the season advanced. During the first half of the season games were won through forward passing, but the last four games found the Union team relying on straight foot ball, with the passing game always on hand to vary the attack. Captain Starbuck, at left end; Hokerk, center, and Jenkins, right tackle, were the most valuable forwards. Girling and Rosekrans, in the backfield, were called upon to do the advancing. Girling's punting and broken field running, and Rosekrans' line-bucking and defensive work were features.

University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, Ala.—Team had best kicker in the South, Van de Graaff, at tackle. He also was the most valuable player on the team. Hicks, at guard; Love, at end, and Captain-elect Harsh, at half-back, were conspicuous performers. The loss of the star quarter-back, Joplin, before the Tennessee game, spoiled hopes of a brilliant season. The light line played remarkably well, except the U. of South game, when the men were overtrained.

University of Chattanooga, Chattanooga, Tenn.—The team started the season of 1914 in poor form, but won from Mercer against big odds. In the U. of South game Captain Dexheimer met with an accident, and Spencer, at right half, injured his knee. Both were out for several games, in fact, Spencer played only one-third of the season. These two were the stars in 1913 and much depended upon them last season. This was Balenti's first year as a coach, and the old Carlisle expert showed some of the cunning that made him famous in 1908. In no game after meeting U. of South did the regulars all start. Injuries made the development of new men a necessity. Several shifts were made, Woodworth, the star quarter, going to half. His place was taken by Scott, who played a great game on Thanksgiving Day against Cumberland. All the old time fight and spirit were prevalent on that day, and Cumberland had no chance against the regulars. Dexheimer, at left half; Scott, at quarter; Woodworth, at right half, and Sutherland, at right end, all played finely. The team will lose six men in 1915, all of whom it will be hard to replace.

University of Chicago, Chicago, Ill.—Chicago started the season of 1914 with six vacancies and with only mediocre material to fill them. Won the Indiana, Northwestern, Iowa and Purdue games in succession, but in the Wisconsin game Gray, the brilliant and veteran half-back, sprained his ankle. This occurred in the first quarter, when Chicago was close to Wisconsin's goal line, and greatly handicapped the playing. The game resulted in a tie. With Illinois Gray went in for one play only, and Russell, the wonderful quarter-back, received such a severe injury to his shoulder early in the game that he was unable to make forward passes at all and missed several tackles before he finally was retired. The team made a wonderful showing in the Minnesota game, despite the fact that Gray was out entirely, and Russell threw all his forward passes from his hip. Until the last quarter it looked as if luck would give Chicago the victory, but when Captain Des Jardien received a kick in the groin that resulted in a two weeks' stay in the hospital the tide turned and the Gophers quickly made the winning score. The University of Illinois had a wonderful team, but the outcome of the game depended largely on the referee's decision in awarding Illinois a touchdown on a forward pass play, which, it is claimed, photographs show to have been made after the man, who made the pass, was tackled.

University of Florida, Gainesville, Fla.—The foot ball season of 1914 was quite successful, only two defeats being recorded against the team, and they were by teams ranking first and third in the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association. Captain Hancock played brilliant foot ball, and others who deserve particular mention are: Sparkman, mentioned for All-Southern half-back; Ramezell, full-back and quarter-back; Farrior, center, and Latspuch, tackle.

University of Georgia, Athens, Ga.—The season of 1914 at the university was the most disastrous in recent years. The association, of which Georgia is a member, passed a one year rule for players. As only two veterans returned, and being unable to use freshmen, together with a difficult schedule, the team could not get started. In late November it improved and finished the season by outplaying the champion Alabama Poly Institute team. In 1915 Georgia should be found back among the leaders, which was its place during the six years regime of Coach Cunningham. Captain Paddock was the almost unanimous selection for All-Southern quarter-back, and also mentioned for the All-America team. He is one of the best players developed in the South. Henderson, center, and Thompson, end, were valuable and brilliant players.

University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill.—According to Coach R. C. Zuppke, the most remarkable achievements of Illinois last season were the successful working of the spread formation and the perfect interference given by the back-field. The special features of the play were the ability of the men to gain ground at all times by means of the forward pass and the defensive ability of the team that was supposed to specialise on offense. In the Indiana game fifteen out of twenty-five forward passes were successful. The first four games of the season, with Christian Brothers, Indiana, Ohio State, and Northwestern, resulted in mere practice games. The first hard contest of the schedule was the Minnesota game. After the decisive victory over the Gophers, Chicago and Wisconsin fell when their turn came. Among the leading players were: Captain R. D. Chapman, Pogue and Macomber, at half-back; Clark, at quarter; Graves, at end, and Watson, captain-elect, at center. The play of the season was marked by a strong defense and a brilliant offense. Pogue and Clark starred by their runs in the open field. Clark's most spectacular run was for ninety yards and a touchdown, from the kick-off, against Chicago, November 14. In the Wisconsin game, on November 21, he ran back a punt for sixty-five yards and a touchdown. In the Indiana game he went around an end for fifty yards and a touchdown. Pogue's runs were the sensation of every game. His open field running was superb. In the Wisconsin game he scored two touchdowns, one fifty-five yards and the other sixty yards. In the Minnesota game he got around an end for thirty-five yards and a touchdown. In the same game he intercepted a forward pass and ran sixty yards for a score. In the Ohio game he went around an end for fifty-five yards and a touchdown. Several scores from place-kick were made by Macomber. Four were made from the thirty-yard line, and one was made from the forty-yard line.

University of Maine, Orono, Me.—Maine had a fairly successful season in 1914, although the State championship was lost for the first time in four years. Captain Baker played in his usual good form, as did Donahue, Martin and Rivington. Taking everything into consideration, Maine should make a strong bid for the championship next year.

University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Mich.—Considering the prospects, Michigan had a more successful season in 1914 than it could expect. Coach Yost lost Craig, Pontius, Paterson, Allmendinger, Musser, Torbet and Traphagen of the 1913 team, and started the season with but three regulars. Of these, Captain Raynsford was shifted to center and Lyons to the back-field, so that Hughtitt, at quarter, was the only member of Michigan's regular team at his old station last fall. The acquisition of Maulbetach and Splawn, the two sophomore stars, braced up the back-field, however. Maulbetach was, of course, the big ground-gaining star for the Wolverines, and led the team in points, with Hughtitt second. Splawn drop-kicked five goals from the field. The showing of Michigan's green team against the veteran Harvard aggregation was the most satisfactory aspect of the season's work, as the Wolverines outrushed the Crimson many yards. The inability of Hughtitt or Splawn to carry the ball in that game, owing to injuries, made the showing of the Maize and Blue still more significant. Lyons being a newcomer to the back-field, Maulbetach was practically the entire reliance of the Westerners in the big intersectional duel.

University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.—The season of 1914 was one of the most successful in the history of the college. Nine games were played, of which only one, with University of Virginia, was lost. Tardy, Taylor, Winston, Homewood and Ramsey were the prominent players.

University of Notre Dame, Notre Dame, Ind.—Six victories and two defeats was Notre Dame's foot ball record for 1914. The team scored 238 points to 61 for opponents. The principal games were with Yale, which Notre Dame lost, 0—23; with the United States Military Academy, which was won by Uncle Sam's boys, 20—7, and with Syracuse, which the Indianians won, 20—0. The leading players were: Eichenlaub, full-back; Borgman, quarter-back; Jones, left tackle; Cofall, left half-back, and Bachman, right guard.

University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, Pa.—The university, in 1914, enjoyed its best year in foot ball. Of eight games played, seven resulted in victories, the only defeat being credited to Washington and Jefferson, conqueror of Yale, 13—10. The team lost this game on a rank fumble on a kick-off, after having it apparently won, 10—7. Victories were gained over Cornell, U. S. Naval Academy, Penn State and Georgetown, by decisive scores. It was the second year in succession that the team has triumphed over Penn State. The star players were Peck, center; Hastings, Miller, Williamson and Fry, backs, and Carlson, end. Peck was a whirlwind at center and outplayed every opponent, including Cruikshank of Washington and Jefferson. Hastings had great success with his drop-kicks, getting four, one against Cornell and Washington and Lee, and two against Penn State. He was also a great open field runner, and strong on defense. Miller was a star on offense and in getting men out of plays. Fry and Williamson were both fine kickers. Williamson was injured in the U. S. Naval Academy game and did not play until the State contest, when he ran the team well. He was later elected captain for 1915.

University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn.—In describing the playing of the university team during the season of 1914, Manager Chaffee says: "Sewanee considers that it had the best team since 1909, when it won the Southern championship. We won from our rival, Vanderbilt University, which is the aim and object of all Sewanee teams. All other games merely lead to this contest. R. L. Tolley, captain and quarter-back; B. T. Dobbins, captain-elect and right tackle, and 'Rube' Parker, left-end, were picked for All-Southern honors. Scott, center, and Fort, half-back, were given honorable mention. Tolley and Parker are the only men lost from the 1914 aggregation, and fifteen 'S' men will trot out on the field in 1915. Sewanee looks forward to the most successful season it has had in years."

University of Tennessee, Knoxville, Tenn.—The Tennessee team won the championship of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association in 1914, being the only team in the association to win every game played. Four men were chosen for the All-Southern team, Kelly, Kerr, Carroll and Lindsay. This is the best that Tennessee has ever turned out, and the coaches deserve a great deal of credit, for their material was very limited. The back-field averaged only 147 pounds per man. The most noteworthy games were with Vanderbilt and the University of the South, which were both played on foreign fields and bitterly contested. Against Vanderbilt, Carroll, the star end, had the unique distinction of making all the points. He scored both touchdowns, kicked both goals, and finally kicked the field-goal from the thirty-eight-yard line that won the game. Lindsay, the leading full-back of the South, weighed only 155 pounds, but he has finished his four years, and never had to be taken from a game. The men played consistent ball all season. Team work and spirit won, for the team really did not possess a player who outshone the others. Five men will retire in 1915, but a good nucleus is left so that Tennessee should again stand among the topnotchers of the South.

University of Vermont, Burlington, Vt.—Although the scores would indicate that Vermont had an inferior team, it must be considered that most of the colleges played against are much larger, therefore out of Vermont's class; also the fact that most of the games were played on the opponents' grounds, which necessitated long and tiresome trips. Among the players deserving of special mention are Malcolm, Little, Burke, Tennen and Visner. Little, at tackle, featured in every game. Visner featured in the Fordham game, making a sixty-five-yard run, which won for Vermont. The team deserves credit for the fine spirit of sportsmanship shown throughout the season. The prospects for 1915 are encouraging. Only three men will be lost by graduation.

Ursinus College, Collegeville, Pa.—Manager Harrity of the 1914 team, says: "The season can be considered a success. We started with a new coach, but with strong backing from the student body. From the first it was evident that the team was imbued with a fighting spirit. By scoring a touchdown on Lafayette and holding that team to a tie we did what no other Ursinus team had ever accomplished. But the triumph of the season came when we held Franklin and Marshall, the conqueror of Pennsylvania, to a 6-6 tie. In this game, as in no other, was the fighting spirit of the men displayed. Captain Mitterling, Clark, Minich, Gingrich and Kennedy played wonderful games, especially against F. and M. All the players deserve special mention, for the schedule was hard, and often their spirit was the only thing that kept them in the game. Too much credit cannot be given to the Ursinus warriors of 1914."

Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn.—Owing to a slump caused by the introduction of the one year rule and lack of sufficient candidates to qualify, Vanderbilt fell from its pinnacle of fame in Southern foot ball in 1914. Only twice was the team outplayed, first by Michigan, then by Virginia, but the remainder of the games were lost on flukes of one kind or another. The star of the "Commodore," eleven was the diminutive field general, "Rabbit" Curry, who, by his brilliant performances in practically every game, earned his place as the choice for All-Southern back-field honors.

Villanova (Pa.) College.—Villanova opened the season of 1914 by defeating Swarthmore, 6-0. In this game the team showed remarkable form on defense. In the next game, with Catholic University, the defense was again strong, but offense was poor. In the Lafayette game both offense and defense showed a decided brace. At West Point, Villanova was swamped by score of 41-0. But for this game, Villanova might consider 1914 a complete foot ball success. During the remaining games, with Ursinus, Lehigh, Muhlenberg, and Fordham, only Lehigh was victorious. Reagon and T. Reap, at tackles, and Lynch, at center, were the main factors in Villanova's defense. Forst, at half-back, was easily the offensive star, while the work of J. Reap, Hanlon, Ward, McGuckin, Suttiff and Captain Prendergast is worthy of mention.

Vineland (N. J.) High School.—Vineland High School went through a fair season in 1914, although it lost the foot ball championship of Cumberland County to Millville High, which it had won the year before, when it turned out the greatest team in the history of the school.

Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Va.—Beginning the season with few old men back and the lightest material in years, Coach Gorton turned out a team well versed in foot ball, which was a real machine in its late season games. With Mr. Gorton again in control and with more old men returning, a successful season is anticipated from the first kick-off. Oakes, captain-elect, is one of the best defensive men in the South and a very heavy line-plunger.

Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, Va.—The team was slow in getting started because of much new material, but finished strong. Poly was the first to cross the goal line of Washington and Lee, the former "point-a-minute" team. It is claimed that Poly should have won or, at least, tied this game but failed to kick goal. Defeated North Carolina "Aggies," who had previously held Navy to 16 to score. The season closed with a victory over the Virginia Military Institute, its old rival.

Wake Forest (N. C.) College.—At the beginning of the season Wake Forest had seven old men on the field. The new material was from the freshman class, who had practically no experience. Coach Smith, however, whipped these new men into a set of strong players. Olive, Parker and Pace were three of these, and they will be in the field at the beginning of next season. Captain Moore was not only the best man on the team, but the best tackle in the State. Blackman, Stallings, Harris, Holding, A. Riddick, Herst and Witherington deserve mention for work they did in the game with Davidson. Every man on the squad will return next season.

Washington College, Chestertown, Md.—The State championship was lost to the Maryland "Aggies" only after a hard fight, the latter emerging victorious by a field goal during the last six seconds of play. The following men made their letter: Captain Davis, Scheiburg, Hooper, Healy, Sterling, Lickie, Frampton, White, W. Wallace, F. Wallace, Enright, Walton, Duyer, Brown, Mann, Biddle and Manager Graves.

Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Pa.—The season of 1914 was remarkable for a small college. Out of eleven games it was defeated only by Harvard, 9-10. The big games were with Harvard, Yale, University of Pittsburgh and Rutgers. The playing of Spiegel, Captain Cruikshank, Patterson and Goodwin stood out prominently.

Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md.—Although the work of the team in 1914 was not what was hoped for and was hardly up to the standard, it was a great improvement over that shown by the 1913 eleven. In the early part of the season the team was probably at its best, winning from Maryland Agricultural College. Twigg, who has been elected captain for 1915, played a good, consistent game at center. He was at work every minute of every game.

Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio.—Team was badly crippled in early season by hard games, such as Purdue, Mt. Union, and U. S. Naval Academy. Captain Englehart was the most consistent player. The team played a good, scrappy game at all times. Very light, averaging about 158 pounds. Defeated University of Akron, which was a claimant to the State title, and outplayed both Denison and Mt. Union, but the latter won on lucky forward passes. McConnell and Denaple, half-backs; Englehart, full-back; Price, end; Portmann, tackle, and Hole, guard, were the best men.

Westminster College, New Wilmington, Pa.—Westminster played the strongest colleges in Western Pennsylvania and made a favorable showing in 1914. "Tus" McLaughry, full-back, was the greatest ground-gainer. He is conceded the best full-back in the section. "Ted" Buckley, quarter-back, won many points kicking field goals. McLaughry was named as quarter-back on the All-Western Pennsylvania team.

Westminster School, Simsbury, Conn.—The team in 1914, as in 1913, completed the season without its goal line being crossed. To Coach Pettee, and the excellent spirit of the team must be attributed this brilliant success. On the defense and as a ground-gainer, Galt proved far superior to any of his opponents, and Captain-elect Williams, at end, although light, was in every play.

West Virginia University, Morgantown, W. Va.—The 'varsity team won five games and lost four during the season of 1914, and scored 153 points to 96. The men who made the All-West Virginia first team were: Carl P. Leatherwood and H. Curry, half-backs; Captain O. H. Davis, center; Dorsey Brannon, guard; J. B. Webster, tackle; J. N. Colebank, end. For the second team were: C. B. Hite, half-back; R. C. Newman, guard, and R. Mullinex, tackle. Leatherwood was the most brilliant star of the team. He made the longest runs, which were as follows: Seventy yards against Washington and Lee, forty-five yards against North Carolina "Aggies," and thirty-five yards, returning a punt to touchdown in game with Marietta. In addition to these achievements he scored sixty-four points, and made ten touchdowns.

West Virginia Wesleyan University, Buckhannon, W. Va.—The 1914 foot ball season at West Virginia Wesleyan, while not so successful in point of number of games won was nevertheless classed as one of the most successful ever enjoyed by the gridiron representatives of the institution. The championship of West Virginia was won for the third successive time and this alone was enough for the season to be termed successful. The team was coached by Frank Mount Pleasant, the former Carlisle athlete, and he was ably assisted by another Carlisle graduate, Garlow. At the beginning of the season the material was not especially promising, but good coaching and loyal men produced wonders in the material at hand, and in the West Virginia game the team showed its best form of the year. Prominent players included Kellison, Captain Shumaker, Morisson, Vance, Heavner and Stansbury. Kellison and Stansbury were picked by every sporting writer and coach in West Virginia for All-State positions, and Morisson, Heavner and Shumaker were picked by the majority of those making selections. Only one man will be lost by graduation, and under the leadership of Captain-elect Kellison, with a good squad of veterans and a quantity of new material, West Virginia Wesleyan should cut a wide swath in its section in intercollegiate foot ball in 1915.

Williams College, Williamstown, Mass.—The only defeat of the season was at the hands of Dartmouth, which won, 21—3, but only after a hard game, in which Williams led, 3—0, until the final quarter. Williams was in the lead in the Princeton game, 7—0, until within a few minutes of the end of the game, when Princeton scored because of a fumbled punt; the final result being a tie. Amherst, the real rival, was defeated, 14—6. Toolan, a half-back, regarded by some as of the All-America type, was an excellent open field and end runner. He also did some punting. Eells, a valuable man, also regarded as of All-America caliber, was an exceptionally good punter and lineman. Laplante was a very fast end and a good man in covering punts and catching forward passes.

Wilmington (Ohio) College.—The season of 1914, in many ways, was very successful. Notwithstanding the fact that Wilmington had practically all new material, it was, perhaps, the best team the college has had during the past five years. Powers, at center; Carr, at half-back, and Brown, at end, did the best work.

Worcester (Mass.) Polytechnic Institute.—The team started the season of 1914 poorly, but, under the direction of Coach George Jones, it developed into a winner. Injuries were a handicap at times. The season was brought to a successful close by the victory over Rensselaer Poly, on Alumni Field, which was opened with that game. The prospects for a winning team in 1915 are good, for most of the players will return. Captain Stone, Captain-elect Shumway and Mossberg were the individual stars of last season.

Statistical Review of 1914

BY PARKE H. DAVIS.

Intercollegiate foot ball in the autumn of 1914 was played by 450 college teams, by 6000 elevens representing secondary schools, and by 1500 teams not connected with educational institutions, but representing organized athletic clubs, large and small. The squads of these 7950 teams contained approximately 159,000 players and their schedules comprised 31,300 games, which figures allow for the fact that two of the above teams engaged simultaneously in the same game. Notwithstanding the distractions of war and the handicap of tight money an increased attendance at the games was noted generally throughout the United States. Estimates received from the various sections of the country justify placing the total aggregate of spectators at all games last fall in this country at 6,292,000 persons. The culminating assemblage, of course, was that at the Harvard-Yale game, at New Haven, where 68,500 persons were comfortably seated in the Yale Bowl. The seats, by the way, if extended, would have reached twenty-nine miles.

In the vast network of schedules overspreading the entire country it is impossible to select the various sectional champions without relying largely upon the consensus of local critical opinion. A fair selection of the best teams in the various foot ball sections is believed to be as follows:

East—Harvard. Middle West—Illinois. Ohio—Ohio State. Missouri Valley—Nebraska.

South Atlantic—Virginia and Washington and Lee. Pacific Northwest—Washington University. Middle Atlantic—Tennessee. Southwest—Oklahoma.

South—Alabama Poly Institute. Southeast—Texas.

Notwithstanding that so many college and university teams participated in the autumn campaigns, only seven teams are to be found which defeated all of their opponents. These seven teams are Army, Ellsworth, Friends, Illinois, Missouri School of Mines, Texas and Union. It will shock some to note in this list the absence of Harvard, but be it remembered, the great Crimson eleven was tied by Pennsylvania State.

An impressive feature of the season was the return of high scores. It has been ten years since a team, with one or two exceptions, has rolled up a total of 275 points against all opponents in a single season, yet in 1914 seven elevens passed the 300 mark, three the 400 mark, two the 500 mark, and one, a high school team, reached the extraordinary height of resting squarely upon the 600 grade. Two of these teams also achieved the exceedingly rare feat of accomplishing their great scoring records, in fact, the greatest of the season, without allowing their opponents to record a single point against them. These seven teams were as follows:

Everett High School, Mass.....	600 to 0.	North Carolina.....	344 to 49.
Missouri School of Mines.....	560 to 0.	Virginia .....	319 to 25.
Oklahoma .....	431 to 96.	Washington and Lee.....	313 to 12.
Washington and Jefferson.....	369 to 54.

Single scores passing the century mark also were more frequent in 1914 than in previous recent years, not less than nine teams being fortunate, or rather unfortunate, enough, to roll up such a score. These teams and the data of their scores were as follows:

Missouri School of Mines 150; Osteopaths 0. Coe 115; Highland Park 0. Georgia Tech 105; Mercer 0. Washington and Jefferson 105; Dickinson 0. St. Louis 104; Blackburn 0. Missouri School of Mines 104; Pittsburgh Normal 0. Washington and Lee 103; Rose Poly 0. Notre Dame 103; Morris Harvey 0. Georgia 101; Dahlonega 0.

Turning our attention to individual performances we continue to find the increased excellence and formidableness in every department of play. Prior to 1914 only twenty-six instances are to be found in which a player has caught the ball on the kick-off and run through an entire opposing team for a touchdown. Notwithstanding the rarity of this occurrence, the monarch of all individual performances in the running attack, not less than eighteen runs of this character occurred in 1914. For the first time in the annals of the sport a player has duplicated this performance in the same season, J. P. Gallagher of Christian Brothers' College, of St. Louis, having two runs of this class to his credit. Seven players tie for the honor of having made the longest run from kick-off to touchdown. Their runs and the games in which they were made follow:

Yards.

- 95 H. N. Benfer (Albright) vs. Susquehanna.
- 95 B. F. Chamberlain (Nebraska) vs. Michigan Agricultural College.
- 95 J. P. Gallagher (Christian Brothers') vs. Ohio Northern.
- 95 G. C. Kingsley (Syracuse) vs. Hamilton.
- 95 R. L. Tolley (University of South) vs. Cumberland.
- 95 W. S. Tucker (Pennsylvania) vs. Swarthmore.
- 95 A. L. Williams (Cornell) vs. Holy Cross.

Similar in character and cleverness to the run back of the kick-off is the run back of a punt. The difficulty of such a performance, when making a touchdown on the run also is involved, may be appreciated when it is stated that out of the thousands of punts run back last fall only twenty-four of those which covered fifty-five and more yards ended in a touchdown. Three men tied for the distinction of having made the longest runs of this kind. The data of their performances are as follows:

Yards.

- 85 A. Thomas (St. Louis) vs. James Millikin.
- 85 R. L. Tolley (University of South) vs. Florida.
- 85 W. Sacksteder (Christian Brothers') vs. Ohio Northern.

The successful long runs from scrimmage, in which the ball was regularly received were principally those which were directed to the outside of the tackles, the runner passing through the left side of his opponents' line. Although many runs of this character were achieved last fall, curiously only one long run from scrimmage formation, regardless of how and where made through the opponents' line, determined a game. That run was the sixty-five-yard dash of J. E. Spiegel of Washington and Jefferson, through Rutgers. All of the other runs contributed to the victory or were a consolation in defeat, but were not the sole deciding play. Again, four players must share the honor of having made the longest successful run from scrimmage, and very appropriately they come from different sections of the country. Their brilliant performances are represented in the following data:

Yards.

- 90 C. E. Kirk (Maine) vs. Norwich.
- 90 G. E. Smith (Michigan Agricultural College) vs. Akron.
- 90 William Morris (Denver) vs. Wyoming.
- 90 G. V. Leverett (Arkansas) vs. St. Louis.

A study of the forward passes, which were successfully thrown last fall and subsequently carried to a touchdown, will surprise us by the small number thereof, and by the further fact that for every forward pass that went through for a touchdown in 1914 two forward passes were intercepted and run back for a touchdown. Only nine runs from recovered forward passes, twenty and more yards in length, were achieved, while twenty of the intercepted variety were carried back to a touchdown. The longest run from a completed forward pass to a touchdown was made by H. W. Miller of Pittsburgh, who raced seventy yards through Dickinson and scored. The longest run for a touchdown from an intercepted forward pass was performed by R. Westervelt of Central College, Pella, Iowa, who in a game against Des Moines caught a forward pass on his own ten-yard line and raced down the field for a touchdown. No game was decided by a run from a completed forward pass, however, and only one game was determined by a run from an intercepted forward pass. W. H. Avery of Pennsylvania, in the game with the Navy, caught one of the latter's forward passes on his forty-yard line and returned it sixty yards for a touchdown and victory.

A capital feature of the season of 1914 was the return of the continuous running attack, the steady advance of the ball through an unbroken chain of first downs, resulting in frequent scoring and the extraordinary performances above described. Notwithstanding, it was the most remarkable season from the standpoint of kicking in the history of the game. There were better punters than ever before, more goals from the field, and more goals from greater distances than any previous season has presented. It has been fifteen years since a player has kicked a field goal from the fifty-yard line by a drop-kick, and in the entire history of the game only four goals have been scored in this manner from this line or beyond. And yet, 1914 brought forth two successful drop-kicks from midfield. T. S. Cusack of New York University sent the ball spinning this long distance by a drop-kick against Rensselaer Poly cleanly crossing the bar, and S. L. Cofall of Notre Dame duplicated the performance against Carlisle. In 1913 only four goals were negotiated from the forty-yard line or beyond either by drop or place-kicks. In 1914 not less than twenty-three goals of this class were kicked and ten of these were from the forty-five-yard line and beyond.

It is splitting a foot ball hair, perhaps, to say that only a single yard separates the record drop-kick from the record place-kick. The latter, a forty-nine-yard goal was accomplished by Lloyd Bingham of the University of Denver, against Wyoming. Second in this art was Marvin Pierce of Miami, who kicked a goal by place-kick from the forty-seven-yard mark against Mount Union, and J. J. Dowdle of Mount St. Mary's, who scored a similar goal against Washington.

The foremost field goal man in the United States, in point of number of goals kicked during the season, was W. C. Cahall of Lehigh, who has a record of ten, many from difficult angles and distances and against the charge of first class teams.

Three players share the honor of having kicked the most goals from the field in one game. V. H. Halligan of Nebraska shot three across the bar against Iowa; F. B. Macomber of Illinois achieved the same against Ohio State, and Earl Freeman of Missouri School of Mines earned the only scores for his team and the victory by sending three place-kicks through University of Missouri's goal.

The distinction of having kicked the greatest number of goals, following touchdowns, is divided between the East and West equally. Earl Freeman of Missouri School of Mines, and M. D. Fleming of Washington, and Jefferson, each achieved thirty-nine. But there is another goal kicker who looms high in view and that is Lloyd Bletzer of Mount Union. This clever player was given thirty-seven opportunities to negotiate the crossbar and successfully kicked the entire thirty-seven goals. Fleming's record was made out of fifty-three tries, and Freeman had even more. Bletzer's performance probably constitutes a world's record.

In disposing of the punting record we encounter the necessity of distinguishing between longest punting and making the highest average for a single game. Upon the Harvard team H. Francke was used when an extraordinarily long punt was needed, but in other exigencies the punting was done by H. L. Hardwick. Five men gained the astounding punting average of fifty-five yards, but varied in the length of their longest punts. The work of H. W. Le Gore of Yale, and that of E. H. Driggs of Princeton, is especially commendable, for the former's average is based upon eleven punts against Princeton and the latter's upon twelve punts against Dartmouth. The detailed figures are as follows:

	Ave. One Longest. Game.			Ave. One Longest. Game.
H. P. Bells (Williams).....	75	55	H. W. Le Gore (Yale).....	68	55
E. A. Curtis (Dartmouth)...	70	55	E. H. Driggs (Princeton)...	68	55
Charles Barrett (Cornell)...	70	55

Two teams command especial attention for total volume of points scored. One of these is Everett High School of Everett, Mass., which met the best secondary schools in its section, and also faced a representative school team from New York and one from Chicago, yet amassed a total of 600 points to its opponents' 0. The Missouri School of Mines finished the season with a total of 560 points to its opponents' 0. It has been ten years since a team has rolled up a total score in excess of 275 points, and it has been twenty-two years, with a single exception, since a team has gone through an entire season without encountering an adverse score. The two record scores of this character are:

Harvard 761, opponents 12, 1886. Yale 698, opponents 0, 1883.

The greatest point scorer of the year was J. Imlay of the Missouri School of Mines, who made for his team 180 points by scoring thirty touchdowns. The second man was E. N. Mayer of Virginia, with 121 points, representing nineteen touchdowns and seven goals from touchdowns.

Those who may desire to pursue farther these studies in the statistics of the gridiron are referred to the tables accompanying this review, which appear elsewhere in this Guide.

†These four goals scored in the original Harvard-Yale game, were made under a special rule, to wit: "To secure a goal the ball must pass between the goal posts and over a cross-line, 10 feet high." (Rule 4, Concessionary Rules.) This rule allowed goals to be kicked by punts as well as by drop- and place-kicks. No records are in existence as to the distances.

* The ball secretly was slipped beneath the back of Dillon's jersey which had been specially prepared for the purpose. Harvard did not discover the ruse until Dillon had run past all of their men. † Although classed as a fumble, Poe obtained the ball by wrenching it from the arms of Yale's runner. ‡ Runs for 1914 are tabulated separately.

Scores of Intercollegiate Dual Series 1873 to 1915

Compilations of Parke H. Davis.

NOTE.—Intercollegiate foot ball in America, and England as well, dates from a game played by Princeton and Rutgers, November 6, 1869. Columbia appeared as an intercollegiate competitor in 1870 and Yale in 1872. Up to this time each college had its own set of rules, all of which were modeled upon the "Association" code. In 1873 delegates from Princeton, Rutgers and Yale met in New York and drafted a common set of rules, following the principles of the "Association" game, under which the first Princeton-Yale game, in 1873, was played. In 1872 and 1873 Harvard was playing a game which was a combination of both the Association and the Rugby styles of play. In 1874 McGill University sent a Rugby team down from Montreal and played Harvard. The latter immediately abandoned its peculiar game and adopted English Rugby. The following year, 1875, Harvard challenged Yale. Yale accepted, but demanded certain concessions in the Rugby code from which the special rules drafted for this game were known at the time as the "Concessionary Rules." In 1876 Princeton sent a call to Columbia, Harvard and Yale to assemble in convention and form an intercollegiate league with the Rugby rules as a playing basis. This convention was held in the Massasoit House at Springfield, November 23, 1876, and a modified code of Rugby drawn up, which with the changes introduced from year to year, comprises the present intercollegiate rules. In the original intercollegiate rules of 1876 Rule 7 provided: "A match shall be decided by a majority of touchdowns; a goal shall be equal to four touchdowns, but in case of a tie a goal kicked from a touchdown shall take precedence over four touchdowns." In the Harvard-Yale and Princeton-Yale games of 1876 and 1877 Yale exacted a special rule that the score should be computed by goals alone, following the English rule therefor. In 1881 the following rule was adopted: "In case of a tie a goal kicked from a touchdown shall take precedence over a goal otherwise kicked. If the game still remains a tie, the side which makes four or more safeties less than their opponents shall win the game." In 1882 the rule was added: "In scoring, four touchdowns shall take precedence over a goal kicked from the field; two safeties shall be equal to a touchdown." Numerical scoring was adopted in 1883 as follows: safety 1, touchdown 2, goal from touchdown 4, goal from the field 5. These values were changed the following year as follows: safety 2, touchdown 4, goal from touchdown 2. In 1897 the value of a touchdown was increased to 5 points, and the value of a goal following a touchdown was reduced to 1 point. In 1904 the value of a goal from the field was reduced to 4 points, and in 1909 to 3 points. In 1912 the value of a touchdown was increased to 6 points.

Officials' List American Intercollegiate Foot Ball Rules Committee, 1915

(Subject to Additions and Corrections.)

It is difficult for the Central Board to attempt to publish a complete list of satisfactory field officials, but in order to put the results of their work in more concrete form and preserve these data for convenience of managers, we have prepared the enclosed partial list of men who have proved most serviceable to the sectional committees in the East, West and South. It is hoped this will be of permanent value and simplify future arrangements.

We take great pleasure in extending this to those whom it may aid.

(Signed) CENTRAL BOARD ON OFFICIALS.

WALTER CAMP,

HARRIS G. COPE,

HERBERT W. TAYLOR, Secretary,

SUGGESTIONS FROM THE CENTRAL BOARD.

The Central Board on Officials in concluding its work for the year would suggest the following plan for its work in the future:

That the function of the Central Board, appointed by the Rules Committee, should be (a) to advise, rendering assistance as indicated; (b) to assist by public interpretation of the foot ball rules; (c) to maintain a certain control over sectional boards in the management of executive details; (d) to publish lists of accredited officials; (e) to offer recommendations for the conduct of these officials; (f) to arrange meetings for interpretations; (g) to arrange, when advisable, conferences tending to the formation of sectional boards.

The Rules Committee fully endorses the work of its Central Board, and recommends and will use its utmost influence in urging colleges and universities within its central field to accept neutral appointments by the Board, if in general managers' meeting such action be voted favorably, and further requests the managers and coaches to co-operate with the Board in securing stated appointments for major games on or before October 1 of each year.

The Rules Committee also reappointed the Central Board, constituted as before, approved the general plan as outlined by the Chairman of the Board, and voted a regular budget of $1,500, arranged as heretofore by Chairman and Secretary of Rules Committee, to be assigned the Chairman of the Board for 1915 expenses, with an additional extraordinary budget expense not to exceed $500. (The chairman and members of the Central Board receive no remuneration for their services.)

The Rules Committee further advised the Central Board on Officials to continue their work upon the same general lines as heretofore, and the Secretary was asked, in addition, to send out lists of officials to the Rules Committee for their perusal and comment.
